Law Report, May 30

SUMMARY

Mr. Justice Luxmoore continued the hearing of the action for an injunction and for damages by G. Ricordi and Co. (London), Limited, music publishers, who allege that their copyright in Puccini's opera Madame Butterfly has been infringed in the song "Asleep in My Heart" in the musical comedy Silver Wings at the Dominion Theatre, W. The defendants, Herbert Clayton and Jack Waller, Limited, producers of Silver Wings; Dominion Theatre, Limited, owners of the theatre; and Mr. Jack Waller and Mr. Joseph Tunbridge, composers of the music of the play, deny that there has been any breach of copyright. Dominion Theatre, Limited, further say that if there has been a breach of copyright they permitted the performances of the music without having reasonable grounds for suspecting an infringement. (G. RICORDI AND CO. (LONDON), LIMITED v. HERBERT CLAYTON AND JACK WALLER, LIMITED AND OTHERS.)

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE
CHANCERY DIVISION
"SILVER WINGS" MUSIC: ALLEGED BREACH OF COPYRIGHT
G. RICORDI AND CO. (LONDON), LIMITED v. HERBERT CLAYTON AND JACK WALLER, LIMITED; DOMINION THEATRE, LIMITED; JACK WALLER AND JOSEPH TUNBRIDGE.

(Before The Right Hon. Sir Justice LUXMOORE)

His LORDSHIP continued the hearing of the action in which G. Ricordi and Co. (London), Limited, music publishers, of Regent-street, W., claim damages for alleged breach of copyright from Herbert Clayton and Jack Waller, Limited, producers of Silver Wings, the musical comedy at the Dominion Theatre, W.; Dominion Theatre, Limited, owners of the theatre; and Mr. Jack Waller and Mr. Joseph Tunbridge, the composers of the music of the play.

Messrs. Ricordi and Co., who are the owners of the copyright in Puccini's opera Madame Butterfly, allege that the defendants have infringed that copyright in the song in Silver Wings, "Asleep in My Heart." They also claim an injunction to restrain the defendants, their servants and agents, from singing, playing, performing, or reproducing the music of Silver Wings, so as to involve infringement of the copyright in Madame Butterfly.

The defendants deny that there has been any breach of copyright, and Dominion Theatre, Limited, further say that if the performance of the music of Silver Wings has constituted a breach of copyright, they permitted the performance without having reasonable ground for suspecting that it would be an infringement.

Mr. Rudolph Moritz, K.C., and Mr. Melford Stevenson appear for the plaintiffs; Mr. S. O. Henn Collins for Herbert Clayton and Jack Waller, Limited; Mr. Gilbert Beyfus and Mr. John J. Llewellin for the Dominion Theatre, Limited; and Mr. K. E. Shelley for Mr. Jack Waller and Mr. Joseph Tunbridge.

Mr. HENN COLLINS, addressing the Court on behalf of Herbert Clayton and Jack Waller, Limited, said that, in composing the "Humming Chorus" in Madame Butterfly, Puccini had used the most elementary baby language of music. He had used the ordinary stock-in-trade of music with regard to the air and the fact that that stock-in-trade had been used by the composer of "Asleep in My Heart" was not sufficient evidence that the source from which the latter got its theme was Puccini's work. The real value of Puccini's work lay in his extremely skilful treatment of the commonest possible material. The originality lay in the treatment and not the subject-matter of the treatment, whereas what the defendants were alleged to have taken was the subject-matter and not the treatment, except in a few instances where the treatment, again, was of the most ordinary character. Coincidences were not enough to drive his Lordship to the conclusion that the defendants took the music from Puccini.

Mr. SHELLEY, for Mr. Waller and Mr. Tunbridge, said that there was no room in the case for subconscious imitation of Puccini's air. It was either deliberate plagiarism or nothing. "Asleep in My Heart" was composed by Mr. Tunbridge, who for many years had been familiar with the "Humming Chorus" in Madame Butterfly. If there had been any resemblance between the two airs Mr. Tunbridge must have observed it. Mr. Tunbridge played

A DERBY TRIAL

LINGFIELD MEETING

(FROM OUR RACING CORRESPONDENT)

I understand that Ballyferis was galloped at Newmarket yesterday morning. He was wearing a hood, a thing which it should not be necessary for any Derby candidate to wear, and I hear that he did not give satisfaction. Canty, who has been engaged to ride the colt in the Derby, had come over from Ireland to ride him yesterday. The distance of the gallop was a mile and a half, and the horses galloped with Ballyferis were Leopardus, Coligny II., Poor Man, and Dick Bush. In my opinion not one of these horses is a satisfactory trial horse for a horse which, it has been stated, is believed to have a chance in the Derby. For the first six furlongs of the gallop Ballyferis appeared to be fighting for his head, but when he had finished doing that he had finished with racing, and finished fourth, Leopardus finishing first, Coligny II. second, Poor Man third, and Dick Bush fifth and last. I have no idea what the weights carried in the gallop may have been. As the result of the gallop I think no better and no worse of Ballyferis's chance next week at Epsom but then I have never thought that he had any chance at all in that great race. He is not bred to win a Derby, and it will be a bad thing for our breeding industry if the winner of the Derby has to be successful in a hood, the sign of a horse who is a rogue or who has a dislike of racing.

There was quite a good attendance of visitors at Lingfield yesterday in spite of there being two other meetings in the North. There should be an even larger attendance this afternoon, when racing will be begun at half-past 2 o'clock. The course is in excellent order and the surroundings at their best and prettiest, and there is no prettier course in the South of England. The most important event on yesterday's programme was the Cosmopolitan Cup, for which Haste Away was absurdly handicapped. This good colt had shown last year on more than one occasion that he was very little removed from the best stayers of his year, and certainly had claims to be considered a Classic colt. Yet he was handicapped in this race as a very ordinary handicapper, and set to receive weight from Arctic Light and give only a pound to such a horse as Blissful. He would most certainly have been a general selection and a pronounced favourite if it had not been understood that he had not been giving satisfaction in his most recent work. Further, the convincing win of Mountain Lad in the Chester Cup and the fact that handicappers' mistakes never win caused many people to refrain from taking an interest in Mr. Gordon's colt. As at Chester Mountain Lad went off in front and tried to make all the running. But for the well-handicapped Haste Away he would have succeeded in repeating his Chester triumph, but when Fox brought Haste Away up to him half-way up the Straight the race was very quickly over, Haste Away drawing away to win by three lengths in the style of the good stayer that he most certainly is. Joyous Greeting was third, three lengths behind the second. Haste Away should win other good races this season, but he is not likely to be so kindly handicapped again as he was yesterday. Fox, who rode him, had earlier in the afternoon won the Oxted Selling Handicap on Portia's Plea, a four-year-old gelding by the fashionable Stratford who had not run before this year but who started a very short-priced favourite. Portia's Plea had been placed in a small selling race last autumn. This was the third successive day on which Fox had ridden two winners.

Fuzzy Wuzzy, who had run well in his last race at Windsor, was very nicely handicapped in the Ford Manor Handicap, in which he made all the running and won quite easily. Fuzzy Wuzzy belongs to Mr. J. B. Joel, whose colours are seldom successful these days. His interest in breeding, however, continues unabated, and his luck will, it is hoped, soon turn. Odds were laid on Empire Builder to win the Breeders' Plate, and he duly won, but only after a great struggle with Part Four. After being well placed behind Crusader's Star and Oromatto, Empire Builder took up the running when in the Straight. At the same time Part Four also improved and joined the favourite, the pair fighting out a fine finish. It was only close home that Empire Builder got the better of the duel and won. A newcomer belonging to Mr. Dewar was made a pronounced favourite for the Beacon Plate, but he ran greenly and was beaten by Good Fish. The Recorder was in front until below the Distance, where he was challenged by Good Fish, who drew away to win easily.

Mr. H. R. King, whose colours are all too seldom successful, won the Wray Maiden Selling Plate with Valid, who won easily from Gallant Girl, with Vica third. Valid, who had won her last race at Stockton, was sold after her success yesterday to Mr. H. P. Nickalls for 340 guineas. I very much doubt whether she will be as successful as a two-year-old plater named Noble Star, who was winning selling plates for Mr. Nickalls last year, but who is now a candidate for the Derby.

LINGFIELD PROSPECTS

2.30.—GODSTONE SELLING PLATE (5f.).—The Limpet and Sea Music have both run fairly well in such races as this. Of the two I prefer the chance of Sea Music, for I am convinced that the best was not seen of her at Chester. Sol-Fa fily apparently is not to be started, but Go On will be among the starters, and will be ridden by Ray. He was well backed at Windsor, but did not run too well. Carslake rides the Melithea filly. The best selection seems to me to be SEA MUSIC.

3.0.—STERBERGH SELLING HANDICAP (1m.).—Bill Sykes does not run. If he had been started he would have been my selection. In his absence it is very difficult to make a selection. Perhaps the winner will be GRANDENE, who has not run on the Flat this season, and who ran only once last year but who started a very short-priced favourite. Portia's Plea had been placed in a small selling race last autumn. This was the third successive day on which Fox had ridden two winners.

3.35.—VILLAGE HANDICAP (1m.).—Rapahannock was a good favourite to win the Hastings Stakes at Newmarket, but the distance there, a mile and a quarter, was too far for him. Before that he had run very well indeed in the Free Handicap at Newmarket, and had behind him Noble Star, to whom he was giving weight. Noble Star, by some people, is expected to win the Derby. Rapahannock put him in here with about 8st. 7lb., and he would have no chance in the Derby if he could not win this race with that weight. It seems reasonable, therefore, to assume that Rapahannock must have a good chance in this race this afternoon. Trembling Grass and Golden Combine may run well, while Junior Counsel is not without a chance now that County Wicklow does not run. He will be ridden by Sharpe. RAPAHANNOCK seems to me the probable winner.

4.10.—OLD MILL HANDICAP (5f.).—Chestnut Oak ran very well indeed in the Victoria Cup, and this five furlongs may suit him much better than the seven furlongs over which that race was run. Somme Orb has a penalty for winning at Windsor, but even then is not badly handicapped. Golden King has failed since running away with a race at Newbury. On the Newbury form he is nicely handicapped. Bearskin and Marble have been well backed several times this season, and each, if started, has a chance here. Duchess of Mars ran well at Bath, where the heavy going was against her. This is a difficult handicap to deal with. On Newbury form I make GOLDEN KING the winner, and therefore make him my selection.

4.40.—WEIR COURTENAY PLATE (5f.).—Lady of Rank was well backed to beat Pharian at Epsom, but did not run well, and on that form will not beat the Lady Kitty colt here. Putting Green, Tom Tit III., and Sultanita are others who have shown promise, while The Eccentric did not run too badly at Gatwick last week. This is not the sort of race for which I like to make a selection. Perhaps the LADY KITTY COLT, who will be ridden by SC. Richards, will win.

5.10.—LINGFIELD CLUB WELTER STAKES (1¼m.).—There will be only a small field here, and that, allied to the fact that the riders are amateurs, precludes me from making a selection.

DONCASTER PROSPECTS

3.0.—CORPORATION SELLING HIGH-WEIGHT HANDICAP (5f.).—Wearing a Crown should run well, as should Some Pep, who ran well behind Arran Beg last time out, but the best selection on the handicap seems to be MUDLARK.

3.30.—SCURRY HIGH-WEIGHT HANDICAP (6f.).—Merton Abbey ran very well against Culzean and Cloud Nymph at Haydock Park. Sergeant Custume may run well, while I am the Captain and Camacha can also be fancied. However, I shall take MERTON ABBEY to win from Camacha.

4.0.—DON SELLING PLATE (5f.).—Speardora colt ought to have won at Ripon, and has a chance, as has Cloutsham, but on this occasion I prefer the chance of GRAND ROCK.

4.30.—CHESTERFIELD PLATE (1m. 6f. 132yds.).—Scottish Fusilier ran well for this distance in the Chester Cup and afterwards gave Polyanthus a good race at Beverley. Monastic Haste has a chance on Haydock Park form, while Richborough and Tanker can also be fancied. I shall select SCOTTISH FUSILIER.

5.0.—FITZWILLIAM STAKES (5f.).—The best selection here seems to be ICARUS, who may win from Smolensk filly. I hear that the Cravenette colt is useful.

5.30.—MILTON MAIDEN (APPRENTICE) PLATE (1m.).—BOTANY BAY may win.

NEWMARKET PROSPECTS

LINGFIELD

(FROM OUR NEWMARKET CORRESPONDENT)

There is an attractive programme at the final stage of the Lingfield Park Meeting today, and our trainers hold good chances in four of the six events.

Of those engaged in the Godstone Selling Plate both Tanit Bay and Melithea filly have done well in this class of race. They will not be easily beaten as they are in their best form, and I give preference to TANIT BAY.

The Village Handicap.—Nothing in D. Waugh's string has done so well as TRIPTYCH since he finished third for the Haverhill Stakes at Newmarket, and I believe he will prove the winner, but he will have most to fear from Junior Counsel, who is nicely handicapped.

In the Old Mill Handicap Plate BEARSKIN will be our only representative. By the way he has been shaping in home gallops I should say he is at his very best and will require beating.

The Weir Courtenay Plate.—Our runners will be Alexis, Hallelujah, and Sultanita, and I am not at all confident that the winner is among them. HALLELUJAH is a little useful and may prove the best.

DONCASTER

The Corporation Handicap is likely to go to WEARING A CROWN, who in this class of race, should be very hard to beat.

The Scurry High-Weight Handicap may go to MERTON ABBEY, who is about the best animal trained by Pickering.

Of those in the Don Selling Plate, Grand Rock, Sky Law, and Face to Face are fancied and I like the chance of GRAND ROCK.

In the Chesterfield Plate Show Girl is a very useful filly, and one that stays well, but her weight here is a big one. First Flight does not seem to be as keen on racing as he was. HUNTING TOWER has given satisfaction in every gallop I have seen him do, and it is with confidence I select him to win.

In the Fitzwilliam Stakes I like the chance of CRAVENETTE COLT, who has been shaping like a useful horse.

When the rain stopped play at Lord's yesterday afternoon, the pitch that had been prepared for to-day's match was covered completely.

GLOUCESTERSHIRE'S CHANCE MISSED

SURREY NEARLY BEATEN

Gloucestershire were deprived of a well-earned victory over Surrey at the Oval yesterday, for when rain stopped play at 4 o'clock Surrey, with only three wickets to fall, still required to make 173 runs to avoid being beaten. It was not necessary to be a meteorological expert to know that rain must fall before 6 o'clock, and once the back of the Surrey batting had been broken it was imperative that the remaining wickets should be taken as quickly as possible.

In Surrey's first innings B. H. Lyon had persevered for a long time with Goddard and Neale, and he was successful. Yesterday he pinned his faith on Goddard and Sinfield, but was not so successful, and one could not but think that a change in the bowling, with some variation of pace, might have brought the match to an end before the rain came down. As it was, Gloucestershire had to be content with having twice retrieved a desperate position which they ultimately turned into a winning one.

When play was continued yesterday morning Gloucestershire, with four wickets to fall, were 299 runs ahead. Their remaining wickets added 32 runs in 40 minutes, Geary taking three of them for 14 runs. Apart from a splendid catch by P. G. H. Fender, which dismissed Neale, the play was undistinguished, the batsmen clearly having been instructed to get on or get out. Surrey, consequently, were left a little over five hours in which to make 323 runs to win—not an impossible task on a pitch which rain in the early morning had merely quietened. Lyon entrusted Sinfield and Barnett with the duty of taking the shine off the ball, but, as a matter of fact, Hobbs should have been caught at short slip in Barnett's first over. With the score at 14, Goddard started his long spell of bowling at the Pavilion end. Gloucestershire obtained their first, and greatest, success when Hobbs, overdoing his desire to steal singles, was run out by Dacre who had been creeping in at cover-point. Hobbs called for a run, was sent back, slipped in turning and Smith did the rest.

Sandham played Goddard with all the respect that his leg-trap demanded, but Ducat was never at his ease, and at 56 he was caught at the wicket off Neale, who had relieved Sinfield at the Vauxhall end. That virtually destroyed all chance Surrey had of winning the match, but Sandham was still in when the luncheon interval arrived with the score at 64 for two wickets. Soon after the interval Sinfield, now bowling slow off-breaks on the middle stump, with no slip and a modified leg-trap field, was put on instead of Neale, and Goddard continued with the more exaggerated leg-trap theory at the other end.

For the rest of the match both these bowlers tossed the ball well up, but the half-volley for the most part was met by a purely defensive stroke. Sinfield got the first two wickets, first Sandham and then Shepherd patting the ball quietly into mid-on's hands. Fender himself came in at the fall of the third wicket. He was twice in one over beaten by Sinfield after he had hit two balls in succession to the boundary, one to fine-leg and the next past extra cover-point. Wilson was the first victim to Goddard's leg theory, but Squires then helped his captain to waste just that amount of time which in the end cost Gloucestershire the match.

Lyon refused to change his bowling and Fender, taking an occasional 4 when it was offered him, batted until half-past three, when he was out leg-before-wicket to Goddard. Squires had already gone, but Gregory and Brooks batted on in a very awkward light, until, at 4 o'clock, heavy rain and general gloom put an end to the game.

DRAWN GAME AT LORD'S

A GOOD MATCH SPOILED BY RAIN

Rain, which began to fall at Lord's at 4 o'clock yesterday, spoiled what might have been a fine finish in the match between Middlesex and Hampshire. Middlesex gain 5 points for their lead of six runs on the first innings and, as the game was going, might well have scored their first win of the season.

Rain delayed the start in the morning for half an hour. Middlesex were 207 runs on, with seven wickets in hand, when the first ball of the day was bowled at 11.30. Canning, who had made 64, added another 21 runs, and was then leg-before to a ball which came through quickly off the pitch. Boyes was the bowler and he, from the Nursery end, was the one bowler who could, and did, make the ball break sharply and also come off the pitch with real life in it. H. J. Enthoven and G. C. Newman tried to force the pace and Enthoven was out to a good catch at the wicket trying a big off-drive. G. E. V. Crutchley was nearly out to the first and third balls he had, Boyes pitching both of these balls a good length and just beating bat and wicket with the break. Crutchley played with plenty of confidence after making his first run, and Newman hit very well all round the wicket. Newman was out to a cleverly judged catch in the outfield, and N. Haig declared then, giving Hampshire nearly four hours to make 311 runs to win.

Brown and A. L. Hosie began the Hampshire second innings as if they had every intention of going for the runs. Twenty runs were made before lunch, and after six runs had been added Brown misjudged a ball and was l.-b.-w. While W. G. Lowndes and Hosie were in one saw some delightful cricket. Both scored the greater part of their runs by cutting, both square and late. The 50 went up in less than as many minutes, and then the rate of scoring quickened and the 100 was reached in an hour and 20 minutes. Shortly afterwards Lowndes went, when he was called, for a short run on the off side. It looked a possible short run, but Haig got to the ball very quickly and hit the wicket. Lord Tennyson came in himself, so that Hampshire obviously still meant to go for the runs, but Haig bowled him a fast yorker. The one thing a player with a badly bruised hand does not want to do is to chop down hard on a yorker, and perhaps it was for this reason that Tennyson was late for, and over, the yorker that knocked his middle stump out of the ground.

LANCASHIRE'S FIFTH VICTORY

Lancashire beat Leicestershire by 180 runs yesterday at Nelson and so gained their fifth victory in the County Championship. They started the day 310 runs on with five wickets to fall in their second innings, and declared their innings closed at 264 for five wickets. Leicestershire were then dismissed in two hours and a half for 164, though the wicket was not bad. McDonald, as in the first innings, bowled well and took eight wickets in the match for 81 runs. ## GOOD FIGHT BY CAMBRIDGE

CENTURY BY G. C. GRANT

Cambridge University were beaten by Sussex by 216 runs at Fenner's yesterday, but not until nearly 4.30, and that implied a gallant attempt to recover from a hopeless position.

When they resumed their second innings Cambridge still required 430 runs to win and, as they had lost two of their best wickets overnight, the chances of pulling the match out of the fire scarcely looked good. The prospects were not brightened when, in the second over sent down yesterday, Tate bowled A. H. Fabian before a run had been scored. The total thus stood at 29, with only seven wickets to fall. E. T. Killick helped J. T. Morgan to add 15 more, but before he could settle down he was caught at the wicket off the bowling of Cook. K. S. Duleepsinhji then bowled an over to enable Tate to change ends with Cook, but, although Tate then had the wind behind him, he met with no further success. There followed instead some attractive batting by Morgan and G. C. Grant, who raised the score to 95 before Morgan was bowled round his legs in trying to hit a ball from Bowley to leg.

To this point the weather had been no worse than cloudy and threatening, and from the Cambridge point of view the absence of sun may well have eased the pitch. Just after the dismissal of Morgan, however, rain began to fall, and drove the players to the pavilion at 10 minutes to 1, when the score had reached 105. The delay proved to be short, for at 10 minutes past 2, after luncheon, Grant and H. R. W. Butterworth were continuing the struggle. For nearly half an hour all went well. The tactics of changing bowlers every few overs did not compensate for using Tate so little. Butterworth was out unluckily. He hardly stepped back in playing back to a slow ball from Bowley, and yet hit down his wicket. The score meanwhile had risen to 133.

As if to make up to Cambridge for this misfortune H. E. Carris was missed at cover-point by A. H. H. Gilligan before he had made a run. During the next hour Carris made a few good strokes on both sides of the wicket. Grant maintained a steady defence, and when the bowling became less accurate made some good hits to leg. Grant had made 68 before he gave a chance to Holmes at silly-point off the bowling of Langridge. A few minutes later Carris was out leg-before-wicket to Langridge, and as N. M. V. Rothschild did not stay long it became a question whether Grant's would reach his hundred. F. R. Brown, however, is a better player than his position in the batting order might suggest, and he and Grant might easily have delayed the end if Grant, after making his first hundred for the University, had not got out rather unluckily. Tate, who came on again after a long spell in the field, bowled a long hop which Grant pulled shoulder high to deep-leg, where Collins made a catch. Brown, who stands 6ft. 3in., but is appreciably shorter than Rought-Rought, made some powerful strokes before he was the last man out.

FIRST INNINGS POINTS FOR ESSEX

The match between Yorkshire and Essex at Dewsbury was drawn yesterday. Essex got a lead in the first innings of 14 runs. As stumps were to be drawn at 4.15 there was no prospect of a finish. Sutcliffe made his second hundred of the season; he made the first also against Essex at Leyton. Some good hitting by H. M. Morris, when Essex resumed 29 runs behind with four wickets to fall, enabled Essex to get the lead.

KENT BEATEN

GOOD BOWLING BY MITCHELL

When Kent entered on the last day of their match at Ilkeston against Derbyshire they required 387 to win with all their wickets in hand. Before 4 o'clock they were beaten by 199 runs.

At one time it seemed that the visitors might give Derbyshire some trouble, but a good spell of bowling by Mitchell, who, soon after luncheon, dismissed Ashdown, T. F. Mitchell, and Hubble in six overs for five runs, placed the result beyond doubt. Mitchell had a good share in the victory, for the spin he imparted to the ball caused constant trouble to the batsmen. He took five wickets yesterday at a cost of 10 runs apiece, and, in the whole match, took nine for 92.

The failure of the Kent batsmen came as a surprise, for the wicket was still in good condition. Woolley and Hardinge alone batted with assurance. Woolley drove powerfully and hit seven 4's in 57 which he made of 112 in 85 minutes. After the dismissal of Woolley and Hardinge the batsmen played cautiously, and Ames and Ashdown remained a long time at the wickets without getting many runs. When Mitchell began to bowl his best there was little further resistance.

EDUCATION BILL

MONEY RESOLUTION IN THE COMMONS

HOUSE OF COMMONS

FRIDAY, MAY 30

Rotherham Corporation Bill was read a third time.

The House went into Committee, Mr. YOUNG, Chairman of Committees (Newton), in the Chair, to consider the money resolution relating to the Education Bill. The resolution declared that for the purposes of the measure it was expedient to authorize the payment out of money provided by Parliament of any sums by which the grants in aid of education payable to local education authorities under section 118 of the Education Act, 1921, and the regulations made under it were increased by reason of any expenditure which the authorities might lawfully incur under the new measure.

SIR C. TREVELYAN, President of the Board of Education (Newcastle, Central), moving the resolution, said that as regarded the provision for extra accommodation, teaching staff, &c., of the new age group which would be brought into the schools by raising the school age, the total estimated annual charge was £2,500,000, of which £2,100,000, or 84 per cent., would fall on the Exchequer. He had taken for the purpose of the estimate the year 1938, as by that time the children born in the years immediately following the War, when the numbers were exceptionally high, would have passed through the schools and the numbers in the age group, 14-15, would then be more or less stabilized. Exact estimating was, however, quite impossible. They had calculated that 7,500 teachers would about represent the increase in the number of teachers due to the raising of the school age. In raising the school age they were calculating in that range, in what would be the upper classes in senior schools, on classes of not more than 40. His estimate of 2½ millions was mainly made up of salaries of the additional teachers at a cost of over £1,800,000. Other matters to be provided for were loan charges on additional buildings, maintenance of buildings, provision of books and allowances for overhead charges. The total of these was about £700,000. An amount of £2,100,000 would be borne by the Exchequer, leaving £400,000 only to be borne by rates. The very large proportion borne by taxation came first from the increased special building grant from 20 to 50 per cent. which had been arranged during the reorganization period; secondly, from the fact that so large a proportion of the increased expenses consisted of salaries of teachers, of which 60 per cent. was paid by the State; and lastly, from the effect of the capitation grant of 36s. per child in average attendance.

PROVISION FOR MAINTENANCE ALLOWANCES

As regarded the provision of maintenance allowances for children, the total cost, it seemed likely, would in the first full year, 1932-33, amount to about three millions. Owing to the temporary increase in the number of children in the schools in the next two years the cost might rise to £4,300,000 and £4,400,000. Roughly speaking, his estimate was framed on the basis of about 60 per cent. of the children of the new age group becoming eligible for maintenance allowances. The Chancellor of the Exchequer had met his request for generous treatment by allowing him to pay grant at the special rate of 60 per cent. Taking the grant on the extra provision of educational facilities, together with the maintenance allowance, it would be found that the Exchequer had calculated to bear 70 per cent. of the whole increased expenditure of the raising of the school age, which was a not ungenerous provision. It was impossible for him to make any kind of estimate respecting the clauses with regard to contributions by local authorities to voluntary schools. The more these clauses were utilized the more saving there was likely to be to local authorities and to the public exchequer, because if there was no arrangement with the voluntary schools, it was only too likely that the local authority, if it was going to be able to deal with the question of reorganization, would have to build absolutely new schools. Somerset calculated that it would have to spend £135,000, and Oxfordshire that it would have to spend £80,000 if they had to provide all the new accommodation themselves. They calculated also that if they came to a reasonable accommodation with voluntary schools, they would probably only spend half those sums or less. If these agreements were entered into they would attract the same rate of grant as the expenditure incurred by the local authorities on the Council schools. If the expenditure was incurred within the three-year period ending August 31, the grant would be paid at the special rate of 50 per cent.

Mr. BEAUMONT (Aylesbury, U.) asked the Committee to reject the financial resolution. He said that the cost of the proposals in the Bill had been very much under-estimated, and the Committee ought not to give the President of the Board of Education a blank cheque. The maintenance allowances as provided for in the Bill were simply the beginning of another line of bribing the electorate with public money.

Mr. FOOT (Bodmin, L.) said that the proposals in the Bill should be looked on as merely temporary, to meet an emergency; if in any sense they were to be taken as a settlement it would strengthen his opposition. Some provision ought to be made for transfer from a provided school to a non-provided school. He knew a town with two schools—one, formerly a Wesleyan school, was now the council school, and the other was the Church school. It was intended to make the latter the school for all children up to 11 years old, and the other was to be for all the children over 11. What protection was to be provided for the children of the council school who were now to be taken out of the council school and put into the denominational school?

Mr. EDE (South Shields, Lab.) said that the Bill would wipe out, he hoped for all time, the great mistake that the social organization of this country made. There were some citizens born to be dukes and some born to be dustmen, but the stork was such an unintelligent bird that it delivered them at the wrong addresses. (Laughter.)

LORD E. PERCY (Hastings, U.) said it was not the fact that the State and local education authorities were to be empowered for the first time to give maintenance allowances. Such allowances had been given freely by education authorities for children, not necessarily bright children, who stayed at the elementary schools after the compulsory age. But for the first time the maintenance allowance was coupled with compulsory attendance, and henceforward the child between 14 and 15 would only receive a maintenance allowance within the narrow limits laid down by the regulations of the Board of Education. The hard-and-fast nature of that system showed that it had nothing to do with education; the measure was unemployment relief and not an educational measure at all. Referring to the concordat with the Churches, he said that the more a temporary settlement of the character proposed could be made temporary in its effects as well as in duration the more it could be confined to an organization period. The arrangement should be permissive to the local authorities. In view of the fact that rural areas were largely being dealt with, the State should take the financial burden as far as possible off the local education authorities. The expedient which he had wished to adopt was that the State should be prepared to give capital grants for voluntary schools up to such amounts as the local authority required for schemes which they drew up, and that the State should assume the whole burden of those capital grants. If the burden were taken off the rates the reorganization would be greatly facilitated. As only three of the county areas had got even plans of reorganization yet, in the rural and county areas the older children would be kept in small unreorganized schools.

SIR R. NEWMAN (Exeter, Ind.) said he supported the provision for the raising of the school age, which would protect the children of those parents who did not understand the advantages of education. Our educational policy from a financial point of view had been on the principle of losing the ship for a half-penny worth of tar.

CAPTAIN BENNETT (Cardiff, Central, Lab.) supported the Bill.

SIR J. REYNOLDS (Liverpool, Exchange, U.), speaking, he said, as a representative of the Roman Catholic parents, associated himself with the presentation of the Roman Catholic case which was made yesterday by Mr. Scurr. That hon. member then made it quite clear that the terms offered in the Bill were not acceptable, and that unless they were amended in Committee the Roman Catholic members would have to vote against the third reading. He held the same view, but he trusted that something would be done in Committee to meet the case of the non-provided schools so as to avoid the necessity of voting against the Bill.

Mr. MORLEY (Southampton, Lab.) criticized the resolution as not providing sufficient money to give full effect to all the implications of the Bill. He thought it unfortunate to apply the means test in the matter of maintenance allowances for children.

Mr. WHITE (Birkenhead, E., L.) supported the financial resolution.

Mr. SOMERVILLE (Windsor, U.) said that the Berkshire Education Authority were alarmed at the financial effect of this Bill. They estimated that it would add from 8d. to 9d. to the rates, and the present was not a time to do such a thing as that. It would be more sensible to reform existing abuses than attempt to effect very considerable changes which required enormous additions of expenditure. By the system of maintenance allowances they would be taking away from the children more than they were giving to them, by surrounding them with State dependence and pauperizing them.

Mr. THURTLE (Shoreditch, Lab.) said the President of the Board of Education would be misinterpreting the feeling of the country if he were to give way further in the direction of granting money for sectarian teaching. It was not the business of the State to teach religious dogma of any kind. As to the maintenance allowances, he hoped the Minister would see whether it was not possible to concede the very strong demand in the ranks of his supporters and abolish the means test.

CAPTAIN WATERHOUSE (Leicester, S., U.) said that in 1913 we spent £25,500,000 on elementary education, educating some 6,000,000 children at a cost of £4 5s. per child per year, the equivalent of which to-day was £8 17s. To-day they were educating 5,500,000 children at a cost of £61,500,000, or £11 3s. per child per year. If they said they did not begrudge the money spent on education, could they answer affirmatively the question, "Are the children getting three times as good an education as they were getting in 1913, or anything like it?"? In the same period of 17 years the cost of secondary education had fallen from the equivalent of the 1913 value, £25 6s., to £19. The time was about as bad a one as the President of the Board of Education could have chosen to introduce legislation which would increase their educational costs by another £5,000,000.

SIR C. TREVELYAN said that practically no more children would stay in school during the term beginning about April, 1931, than were staying in now. It would not be until autumn of next year that there would probably be some 160,000 children extra in the schools. It would not be until April of the following year that they would get the full increase. Therefore, there would be a good many more months in which to prepare than perhaps the House had thought. When the increased number of children came into the schools there would be as good accommodation for them everywhere as there was for the children under 14 now, and in a great many parts of the country it would be better. He was glad to welcome the general character of the debate as it had been directed to the proposals for dealing with voluntary schools. All the speakers had shown a helpful and moderate spirit. He would not deal now with the suggestions which they had put forward for the amendment of Clause 2. It was no use supposing that very drastic alterations could be made to the clause; to do so would be to unbalance the proposals. It might be a good thing if, when he saw what the proposals for alteration were, he could discuss them with the members proposing them before they came to be debated in the House, in order to see whether some slightly different accommodation could not be come to. He was ready to do that. (Ministerial cheers.) In dealing with a Bill of this sort, where it was quite clear that the desire on all sides was to produce something which was not going to cause popular irritation or a deep sense of unfairness in any direction, the House ought, somehow or other, to find the machinery for a solution, if one was possible.

MAJOR ELLIOT (Glasgow, Kelvingrove, U.) said the Scottish local authorities were uneasy as to whether their financial resources would enable them to carry out the duties that were about to be placed upon them with the finance that would be available within the terms of the present financial resolution and the accompanying memorandum. He was anxious that the Secretary for Scotland should not unduly mortgage the resources of the local authorities in connexion with the raising of the school age, because there were other things more deserving of priority.

Mr. KEDWARD (Ashford, L.) said that a great many of them would fight this Bill line by line. He had thought that the Labour Party, at any rate, stood for a national system of education, but they were now going to give a new lease of life to the denominational schools and impose tests on teachers for the first time through education authorities.

Mr. ADAMSON, Secretary of State for Scotland (Fife, W.), said he was proposing to introduce the corresponding Bill for Scotland at as early a date as possible. There need be no anxiety as to whether Scotland would get her proper equivalent share of the Exchequer grant in respect of the raising of the school age.

Mr. SEXTON (St. Helens, Lab.) was understood to welcome the Bill whole-heartedly in principle.

SIR N. SANDEMAN (Middleton and Prestwich, U.) said he was not enamoured of the Bill, nor was Lancashire.

Mr. OLDFIELD (Essex, S.E., Lab.) supported the views expressed by Mr. Scurr in the previous day's debate on the question of Catholic schools.

The resolution was agreed to by 225 votes to 100—majority, 116.

The House stood adjourned at 10 minutes past 4 o'clock.

WELFARE OF THE DEAF

MR. BALDWIN'S APPEAL

Mr. Baldwin, speaking at the sixth annual meeting of the National Institute for the Deaf, held yesterday at the Church House, Westminster, contrasted the universal sympathy which was expressed for the blind with the almost general disregard for the disabilities of the deaf.

He said that blindness was a terrible affliction, but from the very dawn of history it had been met by those who were not blind with a consideration and kindness which must go far in the alleviation of the lot of the sufferers. Every allowance was made for them. Everybody was ready to help them across the road, to talk to them and tell them of things, and they had for their delectation all the resources of modern science in the way of music and speech. They had also the consolation of the voices of their friends, and of being able to talk with their fellow-creatures. He did not know why it should be so, but there was a complete difference of treatment by the outside world of those who were deaf and those who were blind. The lack of natural sympathy for those who were partially deaf arose entirely from want of thought and want of sympathy. He called attention to this state of things, which seemed to have prevailed at all times and in all countries, in the hope that it might lead to a little more consideration and a little more courtesy being shown to those who suffered from deafness. When he came to those who were totally deaf, he thought their case was appalling. It would be indecent for anyone, while he had a command of all his faculties, to ask which was the greater deprivation—blindness or deafness. Both were terrible. But he had often thought that there could be no more awful fate than to be completely cut off from ordinary daily intercourse with human beings, and that was what complete deafness meant. Let them, by aiding the work of the institute, open to the completely deaf, so far as possible, those deeper and permanent spiritual possessions which never failed and would last to the end of their days.

The vote of thanks to Mr. Baldwin was moved by MAJOR BONN (son of the late Mr. Leo Bonn, who founded in 1911 the National Bureau for Promoting the General Welfare of the Deaf), and seconded by SIR SQUIRE SPRIGGE.

LORD CHARNWOOD, president of the institute, said that the Minister of Health, in agreement with the Minister of Education, had decided to make an inquiry for himself, through an experienced Government official, into the conditions of the deaf and the measures necessary for the removal of such difficulties as might be found to exist. The institute had framed a scheme for a secondary school, providing for the deaf the advantages which ordinary secondary schools offered to others. There was also a hope of being able at some time to establish a centre of instruction in lip-reading for the training of teachers, as well as for the benefit of those who had lost or were losing their hearing.

BATH AND WEST SHOW

ARAB AND PONY CLASSES

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT)

TORQUAY, MAY 30

Showery weather prevailed on the third day of the Bath and West Show at Torquay. Yesterday the attendance reached the record figure of 15,944, compared with 4,927 at Swindon last year, 5,543 at Dorchester in 1928, and 6,784 at Bath in 1927. To-day the persons paying for admission up to 4 o'clock numbered 12,405.

Arabs and ponies were among the chief classes judged this afternoon, and the Prince of Wales was a winner with his chestnut colt Algol in the first class. This horse also won the silver medal offered by the Arab Horse Society for the best colt. For polo and riding mares Mrs. J. Oscar Muntz, of Foxhams, Horrabridge, South Devon, took first place with her bay Early Market, and in the class for a polo and riding pony filly, colt, or gelding foaled in 1929 Lady Hunloke won with the bay colt Wingerworth Jade. Captain C. K. Greenway exhibited the bay filly which won first prize for a polo and riding pony filly, colt, or gelding foaled in 1928, and Lady Hunloke's chestnut gelding Wingerworth Tatters was first in the class for filly, colt, or gelding foaled in 1927. The National Pony Society's silver medal for the best brood mare was carried off by Captain Greenway's Raheene, with Miss Joan Hamlyn's bay Rainbow II. as reserve. The silver medal for the best exhibit among the polo and riding pony fillies, colts, or geldings was won by Lady Hunloke, and the bronze medal for the best foal was awarded to Mrs. Muntz. In the Shetland pony classes the principal prize-winner was Mrs. Betty Cox, of Marshwood Manor, Bridport, Dorset. For Dartmoor ponies two first prizes were gained by the Little Lyndridge Stud (Mrs. Venson-Thomas), and one first prize by the Misses Calmady, Hamlyn, and Dawson, of Pearroc Vean, Buckfast.

Junket making attracted a good number of entrants and the Devon Junket Championship was won by Miss A. U. Pratt, Stafford, Colyford, Devon. For riding a hack mare or gelding, Mrs. P. Fleming, Grendon Underwood, Bucks, was first prizewinner, and in the jumping classes the three first prizes went to E. G. Dorse, Trull, Taunton; T. Glencross, Seagry, Chippenham; and F. Allenson, Penrith. In the class for driving a pair of mares or geldings H. J. Colebrook, Pulmer, Bucks, was the leader; and the class for a children's pony was won by E. House, Weston-super-Mare. For riding cobs, Major R. M. Stewart Richardson was the winner, second being Captain L. N. Masters, of the Royal Automobile Club, London. In the class for driving tandems H. J. Colebrook secured the blue ticket.

At the annual meeting of members of the society it was stated that for the first two days the society had been able to bank £3,000, which exceeded the figures at Swindon last year. Mention was made of the suggested amalgamation of the Bath and West and Royal Counties Societies. Lord Folkestone referred to the impressions in some quarters that the Bath and West Society had been responsible for the breakdown of the negotiations. He stated emphatically that their four delegates went to the utmost limits of concession, in fact beyond them, in order to obtain agreement. The question of sites was not considered by the joint conference, but with the whole of the South of England at their disposal there should not be any difficulty in finding sites. The result of the negotiations was a great disappointment, considering the immense advantages there would be in having one strong society.

The Duke of Beaufort was unanimously elected president of the society for next year. Lord Mildmay of Flete, the retiring president, stated that the Prince of Wales had greatly enjoyed his visit to the show, though buffeted by the crowds at times.

Next year's show is to be held at Bristol.

At the Cambridgeshire Agricultural Show, held at Histon on Thursday, the Peatling Silver Cup for the best animal in the Shire classes was awarded to the King, and not to Mr. G. R. C. Foster, as stated in The Times yesterday.

From The Times of 1830

TUESDAY, JUNE 1, 1830. Price 7d.

NEW SECT.—About a twelvemonth ago a volume was published entitled Peace in Believing, being the Letters and Memoirs of Isabella Campbell, a young person who died of consumption. This volume acquired great popularity. About the period of the publication, a brother and sister of the deceased were taken ill of the complaint of which she died. . . . Contrary to all expectation [Mary Campbell] some months ago began to recover, and determined to devote her life to the conversion of the heathen. It was obviously necessary to the success of her work that she should understand the heathen language. The difficulty was overcome by a new miracle, and Mary Campbell received the gift of tongues. . . . It is true, no one who has yet listened to the voice of her inspiration can understand one word that she utters when she quits her mother tongue; but their faith is not shaken in the reality of the miracle. The fame of May Campbell's inspiration, and the divine influence, was felt by others of the faithful. The shape it in general took was the miraculous cure of diseases. An inspired brother approached the bed of his sister, who had been confined to it a long time, and commanded her, in the name of the Lord Jesus, to rise and walk. Her faith was perfect; she arose and walked about her room, and slept better that night than she had done for a long time before. . . . Miss May Campbell's miraculous tongues, understood by no one, can be accounted for; but the real miracle is, that men of education—that members of the Scottish Bar, and ministers of the Scottish Church, should be found among the believers. Their number exceeds 2,000, and it is still increasing.—[Abridged from an Edinburgh paper.]

CITY OF GOLD

by

Hatta Crawford

WE are all here in London, because ourselves or our fathers believed that the streets were paved with gold; so easily was it won, they said, and so vastly stored in the houses.

For this dream we turned our backs upon the village and its church and tramped away to live beneath Bow Bells. We left the beauty and the rigour of country life for the splendour and comfort of the town. How splendid and how comfortable we are, we shall, then, never cease from wondering. That we left beauty we know: have we found splendour? That we escaped rigour, our gentle memory forgets: but have we found comfort? Above all, have we—silly Countrymen, turned sharp Cockney—have we struck gold?

Is there gold to be won in the workshops? The streets, are they paved with gold? Man of London, have you a golden home? Remember, for all these things you came: and without them you have failed.

THE THREE MESSAGES—For over a hundred years we have been proclaiming these three messages in the Home, in the Street, in the Factory.

For we do not stop short at making gas. That would be hiding our light, heat, and power under a very foolish bushel. Our function is not only to make good things, but to proclaim them; to proclaim not only them, but their uses. Here in our works and in our service departments we are perpetually stimulated to fresh ideas that offer a new function for gas.

It is the duty of the prophet to see and to tell it forth. Thus we have regarded our advertisements, each and every one, as messages to be earnestly conceived and vigorously delivered. We have tried to make them literature. We know we have something to say: we try to say it well. We have employed, in the seeing and the telling, along with the engineers and the scientists, the artists of our time. And here we were the first in all industry.

HOME—We have thought of the man and how the City lured him with its promise. What of the woman he brought with him—the wife, the mother? For her, we say boldly that but for gas it would have been a poor exchange. For even in this age of equality, her life is the home. And here the Company has wrought the most apparent if not the most wonderful of its revolutions in the City's life. Years ago, and before all others, the gas industry set itself to deliver the young wife from the profitless drudgery of housework, in which all but idealists know is lost the true work and joys of home, the companionship that the husband has hoped for, and the time to play with her children.

Politicians promise, poets dream; but the Company goes on with its solid work of giving the people happy

Gas to-day lights hundreds of miles of London streets, including the most important—Trafalgar Square, Whitehall, Regent Street, Piccadilly, Pall Mall, St. James's Street, to mention just a few, all are lighted by Gas.

The Gas Light & Coke Company is the oldest and largest gas undertaking in the world. It serves a population of over 4,000,000 in an area of 460 square miles. In 1929 the Company's consumers between them were using 2,395,566 gas appliances.

homes. As you read, new houses are going up all over London fitted with clean, economical, labour-saving equipment, and there is hardly a housing scheme that does not include the installation of gas, ready to help you in a thousand different ways. And finally under the Company's protection, you are secure in the knowledge that they are in your service.

Here is our first message to the people of London. We bring into all your houses the true gold of happiness. It is a message we shall never weary of preaching, and year by year in hundreds of thousands we win new followers.

STREETS—By night 45,000 street lamps are lit by gas in the Company's area. Wherever a lamp shines strong enough to penetrate the fog, yet soft to save the glare in the motorist's eyes, that lamp is lit by gas. Whitehall, Kingsway, and Regent Street are all gas-lit: and Pall Mall, noblest of all, has been lighted by the Company for over a century. At Watson House, itself brilliantly lit beside the River, photometric tests are in constant process and the design of lamps is thoughtfully studied.

By day, paradoxically, gas brings its greatest service to the lighting—Nature's lighting—of our streets. For Gas, the pre-eminent smokeless fuel, does not create a curtain of smoke between us and the sun's rays. Dr. J. S. Owens has calculated that seven-eighths of the sun's power is shut off by smoke from the centre of London, and five-eighths from Westminster, and that about 80 tons of soot are emitted from the London chimneys every hour. It has been estimated that if all the soot that falls upon London every year were concentrated upon Hyde Park, there would be sufficient to cover the whole to a depth of eleven inches. Instead it settles upon all we have and permeates our lungs. Already by position denied the golden sunlight of the Mediterranean peoples, we content ourselves here in London with one-eighth of a short ration. Professor Leonard Hill has shown that this screening of the ultra-violet rays in London has disastrous effects upon its population, directly causing rickets in children and tuberculosis and catarrhal diseases in all. Dust, sulphur acids, soot and microbes pollute the delicate lining membrane of the breathing tubes. The dirt from the streets covers clothes, curtains, and furniture. And then, to keep it out, we shut ourselves up with our colds and coughs: and so are deprived, along with the dirt, of air and sunshine; for the dirt has seen to the windows. Mist is converted into the famous London fog, now red, now yellow; the time of millions is wasted, their tempers lost. . . . Over a period of three years the buses lost in 27 days of fog half a million working miles: if London is delayed one hour in getting to its morning work it is said that the cost is £150,000. . . . And the death rate (from "natural causes"!) responds to the fog. For fifty miles round London vegetation languishes under our shameful pall of smoke. Tar chokes the stomata of the leaves, and acids are deposited. Public parks lose their verdure, gardens fail to flourish, allotments mock their cultivators. Above all milk and the green foods—cabbages and turnip tops—cannot be produced profitably within the accursed area, but must come from afar, losing in freshness and gaining in cost; and seldom does the townsman get the double benefit of raising his own greens. These and milk are the protective foods, and without them the people perish.

Men live long in the clean, open air and the sunshine of the fields. The psychological effect alone is powerful. As they walk they delight in the clear prospect, and stepping out breathe more deeply of its good, fresh air. Sad, that in the very streets that have attracted him, our countryman should find that there particularly he has lost, not found, gold. Gas lifts the veil and gives him back his golden sunshine. And this is our second message, the message of the Sun.

FACTORY—There is no doubt that gas is the best form of fuel known to-day for all industrial purposes. It is the fuel of the future. Nor is there any doubt that gas represents the sure hope of conserving the nation's fuel supply. Industry requires heat and power, and in England the sole source of these in any quantity remains and will remain her coal. Says André Siegfried, "King Cole is sick at heart." Certain it is our industries and ourselves live and die by coal. For industry, and thereby for the smallest factory and finally for the most indifferent citizen, the most efficient use of heat and power and the conservation of our only fuel have become inseparable and vital problems. Mines are closing now that will never open again: in all but the newest of those still working the coal that remains lies far beneath the surface. From that coal, raised each year from more and more remote depths, inch by costly inch, we have to draw the heat and power which once we could expend so lavishly and blindly, which now we must eke out to the last therm in deadly competition with our young and vigorous rivals—America, Germany, France, Japan—for the bulk of the world's coal reserve lies not only outside Great Britain but outside the British Empire. This is the most urgent message of Gas: Coal is gold.

It is sinful to burn our precious coal raw; and the cheapness of crude coal as a fuel is illusory. In cases where convenience, cleanliness, labour-saving, evenness and exactitude of temperature are the factors that count it would pay firms to use Gas—the Spirit of Coal—even if it cost ten to twenty times per heat unit the price of crude coal.

Gas is in fact used to-day in over 3,000 different trades for an average of seven processes in each trade. For instance, in the Company's own area the overhaul works of the London General Omnibus Company at Chiswick are equipped with modern furnaces and other gas appliances. All the cooking equipment in the works canteen, which includes two powerful gas boilers, is heated by gas and steam.

A large number of works in London have "All-Gas" plants in operation. One of the Company's industrial consumers has the largest varnish factory in the world. Another has the largest biscuit baking oven in the world heated by gas. Furnaces heated by gas are found in all large and small works manufacturing motor gear parts and engineering machinery.

Gas heated autoplate casting machines and other gas appliances are to be found in the printing works of "The Times," the "Daily Telegraph," the "Daily Mail," the "Daily Express," and indeed in those of most London newspapers. These are but a few of the Company's customers.

The rapid development of electricity as a lighting agent, the wonders of wireless, and the fact that budding journalists never had coal-gas flash-lamps to play with in their nurseries, has turned the public imagination to the thought of electricity as the saviour of industry. Power stations have already become powerful by repetition. Cottagers and manufacturers alike await the coming miracle.

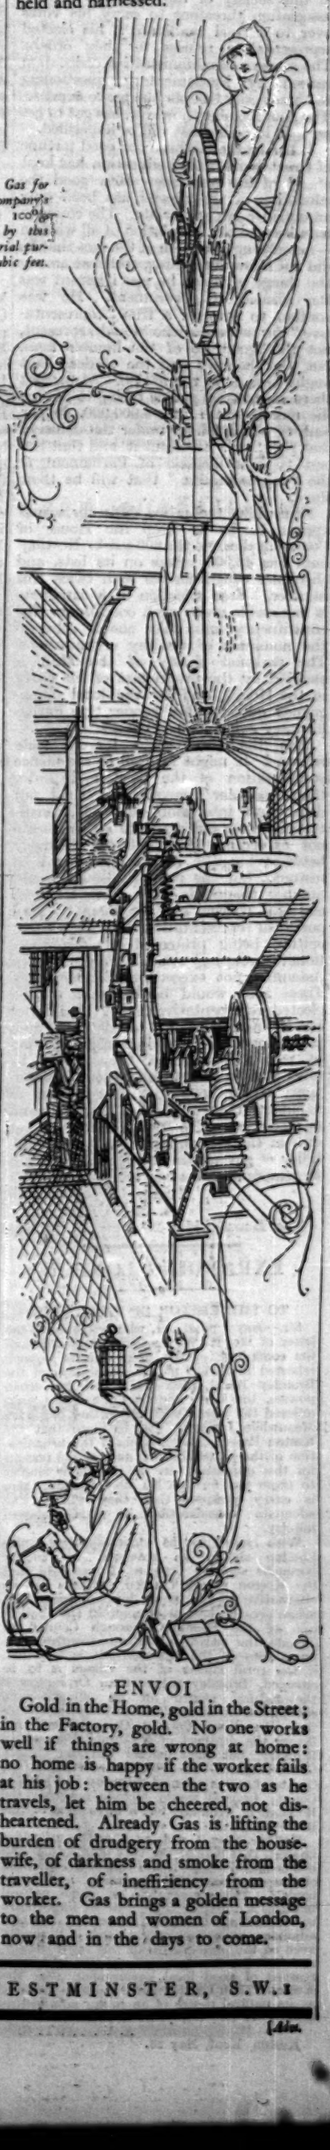
It will not come. Boundless as its possibilities may appear in the hands of Senator Marconi, electricity is severely and permanently limited in the two main purposes for which industry would require it. For here is a fundamental physical fact: a Kilowatt-hour of electrical energy will yield 3,412 British Thermal Units of Heat, or—with a motor of 100% efficiency yet to be discovered—1½ B.H.P. hours. Not all the scientists of all the ages can ever get you more than that, either for heat or power. At the Last Trump this limitation will be standing.

According to the latest figures available the average electric generating station loses 90% of the heat in the coal, the best loses 83%, the ideal of the suggested "super" stations 80%. Thus the electrical future holds a prospect to the industrialist of enjoying (if all goes well) not more than one-fifth of his coal. It sounds like the Londoner and his sunshine all over again!

Contrast the results obtained at the "good practice" gas works of to-day. Out of every 100 units of heat in the coal treated (in round figures) at once 50 are returned to the solid fuel market as coke. Already the actual winnings of the Company exceed the wildest dreams of the electricians. But more is to come: 5% is recovered as tar (which has been shown otherwise to wander deleteriously through our vegetation), 22.5% reaches the consumer as gas (again beyond the wildest dream of the electricians), and 22.5% only is expended in the process. And the process improves every year. It is possible that coal in the future will be gasified to its ultimate potentiality, yielding 75%. But the case is clear without the future. Gas is said to be the fuel of the past. It is. It is shown to be the fuel of the present and of the future. Gas is England's fuel for all time.

From the individual's point of view the figures we could give would be found equally conclusive.

Here then is the third message, the message of the Mines. To the Woman in the Home we bring daily the Word of Happiness. To the Man in the Street, the bright and genial radiance of the Sun. To the Man in his Work we bring the hope, indeed the one salvation of Heat and Power wisely held and harnessed.



ENVOI

Gold in the Home, gold in the Street; in the Factory, gold. No one works well if things are wrong at home: no home is happy if the worker fails at his job: between the two as he travels, let him be cheered, not disheartened. Already Gas is lifting the burden of drudgery from the housewife, of darkness and smoke from the traveller, of inefficiency from the worker. Gas brings a golden message to the men and women of London, now and in the days to come.

THE SIZE OF THE COMMONS

MEMBERS AND THEIR ELECTORS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—Last night between 300 and 400 members spent the night in the House of Commons sleepless and restless. It cannot be pretended that their presence there served any useful purpose. Nothing was accomplished by this waste of human life and human comfort. No word was spoken that added to the sum of human knowledge or that caused the slightest variation in the opinion of any listener. Nearly a score of times these unfortunate people ceased girding at one another in order to stroll through the division lobbies. Every one knew in advance what would be the result of the divisions. There was no necessity for the dilatory process of counting noses. All knew approximately how many and what kind of noses were there. This morning groups of electors will be complaining about absentees. Four hundred were wasting their lives while the State pays 600 to do it.

This performance is forced upon Parliament because 600 people cannot be a deliberative assembly, but may become a mob, and may be influenced by the psychology of the mob. Every business man knows that a committee exceeding five in number cannot do business. It babbles and procrastinates: its members all talk though none listen. A Parliament must be larger than a committee, and its proceedings must present the appearance of reasoned deliberation, but an assembly of 600 persons, 100 of whom do all the talking and perform the outward ritual of deliberation, is not a Parliament. The occupation of the private member is worse than useless. He votes as he is ordered, and he thinks as he is told. The sincerity and the industry with which he seeks to equip himself for the function of legislation, from which he is debarred by party discipline, is one of the finest features of British character, but his industry and his sincerity are worse than futile, since they must be primarily directed to keeping his seat and, therefore, to pleasing his constituents. To this end he asks questions. The servants of the State have to be multiplied so that Ministers may supply answers to parochial interrogation. It is no pleasure to the private member to put these questions, but the president of this society or the chairman of that association threatens to carry his votes over to a rival candidate if his elected representative refuses to obey orders. The amount of administrative dislocation caused by Parliamentary questioning costs not only trouble but grave expense. The poor member, however, has got to get on with it, or his seat will be imperilled.

It has heretofore been the good fortune of Great Britain that education has kept ahead of the franchise. How good the education of the masses has been only an outsider can appreciate. The common man learned the foundation of all wisdom—namely, appreciation of the fact that he did not know everything, and that among the things of which he was ignorant was the science of government. He was content to vote for a true "representative," for someone who would represent, not the ignorance of the humble man, but the honesty and the wisdom that might best serve the nation. At present there are not 600 people trying to govern the nation, there are 6,000,000, 40 per cent. of whom labour under the delusion that they know all about it and that the best type of member of Parliament is the "representative" that will be their slave.

Meanwhile, the prime difficulty would appear to be to keep the House of Commons down to the 600 mark. Nottingham has 45,000 voters on its lists, and there are constituencies with twice this number. Free selection of a candidate is impossible under such conditions. The constituency must take one or other of the nominees of wealthy organizations. The personal liberty of the M.P. is assailed by the proprietors of his party in the House and by the local demagogues outside. No wonder true Parliamentary existence has ceased.

Has the time come for complete reform? It might be well to commence consideration of the position, in order that "popular" government shall not degenerate into mob rule. If constituencies were cut down to an electorate not exceeding 5,000, the old intimacy between member and voters would be restored, but the persons elected would number thousands. Let these form an electoral college, and let them by proportional representation, in groups (agriculture being protected by disproportionate grouping) select a Parliamentary Assembly not exceeding 150 members. These men would be the pick of the elected representatives, they would not be so numerous as to develop mob psychology, they would occupy a position of real independence, they would be amenable to reason, and their deliberations would have just that savour of intimacy that stimulates thought and appreciation. The franchise has not yet outrun the schoolmaster, but the possibility of government by ignorance is not as remote as it used to be.

Yours,
A. M. SULLIVAN.

EXPANDING LONDON

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—May I point out, with reference to the letter of Mr. R. W. Jameson, that, although the committee of the Kent County Council reported in favour of the application of the Bromley Rural District Council for urban powers, the Kent County Council has since referred the report back for further inquiry? Meanwhile I should like to state that the Keston Parish Council opposed the urbanization of the Rural District, and, as the reasons for this opposition are on the whole similar to those put forward by Mr. Jameson, there is every prospect that they will receive adequate consideration at this deferred inquiry.

With regard to the suggestion that outer London should be governed by county boroughs such as Croydon, I may add that the Keston Parish Council supports (as an alternative to the parish forming part of an urban area centred at Orpington) the application of the Bromley Borough Council to include the parish of Keston within the boundaries of the borough. It is felt that, if the rural status of the village is to be changed, Bromley rather than Orpington is the natural centre for an efficient and economical urban service. It is quite possible that the Kent County Council may not favour the prospect of a County Borough of Bromley, but then neither can the County Council ignore the possible revival of the Greater London scheme, whereby the London County Council would include not only the Borough of Bromley, but a large slice of this Rural District.

Further, may I add, as a matter of wider interest, that here at the very gates of London is a beautiful tract of rural England, consisting of unspoilt woodlands, commons, and farmlands? The preservation of these natural beauties is a matter of the greatest importance to expanding London. From its position adjoining two commons, Keston is naturally keen on the preservation of this rural beauty, and it is for this reason, in addition to other reasons of good local government, that the Keston Parish Council looks towards Bromley as its natural centre of an urban administration. I am, Sir, yours faithfully,

A. W. CARTER.

Keston, Kent, May 28.

LORD DAVIDSON

GENEROSITY TO OPPONENTS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—So far none of your correspondents has spoken of Lord Davidson from the standpoint from which I as a layman was privileged to know him. When he was appointed Archbishop of Canterbury I shared the distrust then common among the High Church party. "He doth ravish the poor when he getteth him into his net"—a remark of my friend and teacher Dr. Liddon, after a controversy with Dr. Davidson in which Liddon came off second best, had sunk into my mind.

The first step, in what afterwards became a close intimacy, came from Lambeth at the time of the Royal Commission on Disorders in the Church. I received a message through the late Mr. John Talbot that the Archbishop would be grateful if I would appear before the Commission and give evidence on the side hitherto unrepresented; this I accordingly did. Up to that time, and indeed even afterwards, I was constantly in opposition to the Archbishop, as back numbers of The Times would show, for from habits of thought and early training we (if I may compare little with great) seemed to be poles apart. After a committee in which the Archbishop had taken immense pains to carry his point, and in which I had been the successful leader in opposition, I apologized to him as we came away; the unexpected and singular generosity of his reply was the beginning of a friendship which continued to the end. On two subjects in particular I was privileged to work with him; on one I cannot recall an instance in which my suggestions were rejected; it was not so with the other, but while he remained at Lambeth he never failed to put me on every committee dealing with that subject in order that my view might be represented.

If I may sum up. I have already spoken of his generosity, as others have of his humility. When he felt he could trust anybody to be straight with him he trusted to the very end. He himself, with all his extraordinary adroitness, never took the least unfair advantage of an opponent, and when he said he would do a thing he did it. He was absolutely without prejudices. He would ask advice on every kind of subject—"What do you think of so and so?"—and one gave it knowing that he had asked the same question of a dozen persons of different opinions and was storing that able mind with material from all sides before coming to his conclusion.

Lastly, when he ascended the throne of St. Augustine, the see of Canterbury was hardly known outside the Anglican orbit even by name. He left it, as the present Archbishop knows, perhaps with some misgivings, with a reputation and with responsibilities, especially in the Christian East, second only to the Papacy, with the added glory of an entirely disinterested friendship.

I am, &c.,
ATHELSTAN RILEY.

THE GREVILLE DIARIES

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—The notice in your issue of May 28 concerning the transcript of the Greville Diaries, which has lately been presented to the Bodleian Library by Mr. Gabriel Wells, might possibly give a misleading impression of the nature of the MS. in question. It is in fact a complete copy, in the handwriting of Henry Reeve, of Greville's diary, with the exception of some passages which were deleted by Greville himself or were written by him in cipher—passages that are to be found only in the British Museum MS. The portions of the text which Reeve decided to omit from his edition are indicated on his copy in pencil. This MS. was used by Mr. P. W. Wilson for the two volumes of selections which he brought out in 1927.

Perhaps I may add that the edition I am myself preparing will be based entirely on the original MS. in the British Museum, and will thus contain matter included neither in Reeve's edition nor in Mr. Wilson's volumes.

Yours faithfully,
LYTTON STRACHEY.

NAVAL REDUCTIONS

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—Mr. Robert W. Dana, writing on behalf of naval architects, argues well, from his point of view, against the non-expenditure (he will not have it called "saving") of 270,000,000, about nine-tenths of which, he says, would go in wages (?), while naval architects would be deprived of a great deal of work. He is convinced of the folly of neglecting to carry out the original programme of so many ships of war in view of the inevitability before long of an urgent and rapid increase in our fleets. He lays this down as a fact which admits of no dispute.

Here is a fresh manifestation of the entire disbelief in any tangible result from all the international treaties and pacts and conferences which during the last few years have absorbed the energies and engaged the wholehearted sympathy of representative statesmen, and have been approved and ratified by their respective Governments. The upholders of a Big Navy evidently look upon it all as bunkum, "don't believe a word of it." But it is rather sad!

I am, Sir, yours obediently,
RONALD HEPBURN.

Rock, Wadebridge, Cornwall.

A PORTRAIT OF MR. GLADSTONE

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—Lady Weigall has very kindly presented to the General Lying-In Hospital Extension Fund (of which I am the chairman) a portrait in oils of the late Mr. W. E. Gladstone by Henry Weigall. The portrait can be inspected at the hospital, York-road, Lambeth, S.E.1, during office hours, and offers to purchase will be gladly received and considered by the Committee.

Our Nurses' Home and Out-Patients Department are being rebuilt, but the work of the hospital continues without interruption. Our annual report for 1929 shows that 2,115 mothers were treated in the hospital or in their own homes, and no maternal deaths took place among this number. There were 37,138 out patients' attendances (ante-natal and dental clinics, infant welfare centre, &c.), and 115 midwives were trained. These figures prove that our charity, which was founded in June, 1765, is a blessing to the poor in London's most congested boroughs; and our one regret is that owing to lack of accommodation we are compelled to refuse admission to 500 expectant mothers every year.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
MARGARET BIRKENHEAD.

UNEMPLOYMENT

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—Although approaching mid-summer, the unemployment figures show an increase of over 27,000 during the last week, the sum total of which now nearly numbers 1¼ millions; at the same time this question is continually being misused for purposes of political capital.

Surely, if any post-War problem was a matter of national danger, it is that of unemployment, and it should be possible to tackle it in a non-party and national spirit by calling together the best brains in this country to endeavour to work out a means of mitigating the misery thereby caused to so many of our fellow-countrymen. Let us all get together as in 1914.

Faithfully yours,
H. SPENCER-COOPER, Captain,
Royal Navy (Retired).

Doyley Manor, Hurstbourne Tarrant, Hants, May 24.

Points from Letters

TRADE IN THE EMPIRE

Last autumn Mr. Ben Tillett, M.P., as president of the Trades Union Congress, delivered a very stirring appeal to those over whom he was presiding that they should face the problem of the development of inter-Imperial trade from a point of view new to them, and those who read his stirring appeal came quite naturally to the conclusion that Mr. Tillett was contemplating the use of preferential tariffs as one of the methods of Empire trade consolidation. Yet I observe that on Wednesday of this week Mr. Tillett presided at the opening of the two-day Conference on Free Trade, and, accordingly, I find it a little difficult to understand how Mr. Tillett shou'd speak with two such discordant voices on the same issue. Perhaps he would be good enough to inform the world what the words he used at Belfast really mean.—SIR BASIL PETO, M.P., House of Commons, S.W.1.

GOTTERDAMMERUNG

Mr. C. Sully assumes that the mistranslation "Twilight of the Gods" for Ragnarök dates from 1768. It is far older, and has come down to us from no less a person than Snorri Sturlason (d. 1241), himself an Icelander, and the highest authority that we possess on Northern mythology. He must have confused the words rök (fate, catastrophe, from rekja, to unwind) with rökr (twilight). The error continued until it was exposed by Müllenhof in about 1850, just about the time when Wagner's text was completed. Unfortunately Mr. Bernard Shaw in the book quoted by Mr. Sully, is guilty of a much more serious error than this one. In "The Perfect Warnerite," he revives the notion that Brünhilde in the great oath scene of the second Act is guilty of perjury.—Mr. G. AINSLIE HIGHT, Oxford.

BOOKS FOR DISTRESSED MINERS

The colliery at Senghenydd, Glamorgan, was the scene of the most terrible explosion in the history of the British coalfield, and two years ago it closed down altogether owing to trade depression, leaving the village derelict, for there is no other industry. I have been asked by the secretary of the Workmen's Library to appeal for sympathy and practical help. It is nearly two years since a book was purchased, and those on the shelves have been read over and over again, and are now all in a very dilapidated state. If any of your readers have books lying idle which they have read, they will be doing a kindly act by sending them to this distressed area. The parcels may be addressed to Mr. James Harris, librarian, Workmen's Library, Senghenydd, Glam.; Mr. John Davies, secretary, 92, Caerphilly-road, Senghenydd, Glam.; or to me.—Mr. DAVID T. LEWIS, Merthyr Express, Tydfil House, Nelson, Cardiff.

TAXICAB RANKS IN THE CITY

I suggest that more of the taxicab ranks in London should be on the telephone. According to the London Telephone Directory, there is only one "authorized cab rank" in the whole E.C. district which is so connected. This means that if anyone in the City wants a taxicab without going and fetching it—as, for instance, in pouring rain, or when one has a lot of luggage, or is in a hurry—it is necessary to telephone either to the stand near the Temple or to the one near Shoreditch Church; each of these is about a mile distant from the centre of the City.—CAPTAIN JOHN STEVENSON, Sopham Court, Otford, Sevenoaks, Kent.

A WALK IN THE WOODS

The sheen of the bluebells is waning fast and primroses and cowslips will be difficult to find at Whitsuntide, though stitchwort, wild genarium, wild parsley, and blue-eyed speedwell adorn the banks with an exuberance seldom equalled in past springs. There is a richness of growth in both fields and meadows, and farmers never remember so promising a season. Partridges on their nests had last year to be sheltered and concealed by bushes, but now it is hard for the gamekeepers to locate them, so dense is the undergrowth. The woods are ringing with the songs of birds. Dominant, and the most beautiful perhaps, is that of the blackbird. Heard at a distance it seems like a message of greeting resonant of the sweetest memories. The russet tones of the woods are fast giving way to the richer colours of the beech, oak, and ash, soon now to be at their zenith.—Mr. GEORGE KNIGHT, Overton, Hants.

THE TURKISH ARMISTICE

Your opening note to a Correspondent's article recently published in The Times stated that the Turkish Armistice was signed on board the flagship of Admiral of the Fleet the Hon. Sir S. A. Gough-Calthorpe (who at the time was Vice-Admiral, British Commander-in-Chief, Mediterranean, with his flag in H.M.S. Foresight). Later in the article your Correspondent remarks that the "final act" took place on board H.M.S. Lord Nelson. In actual fact the Treaty of Armistice was drawn up and signed by Admiral Calthorpe and the Turkish delegates on board H.M.S. Agamemnon, a "private" ship of the British Aegean Squadron in which the Turks were being accommodated. Your Correspondent also states that H.M.S. Liverpool was the ship sent to bring General Townshend from Mitylene to Mudros on his release from Turkish captivity, and that she arrived "late at night." The ship actually employed on this duty was H.M.S. Forester, and this vessel, with the General on board, returned to Mudros in broad daylight at about 2.30 p.m., October 20, 1918. —Mr. O. FALLS, Birr, King's County, Ireland.

THE AGE OF SAIL

With further regard to sailing-ship passages in the eighties, may I say that my first voyage, was also in the Sobraon, from Plymouth to Melbourne in 75 days, without land being sighted?—Mr. C. L. RUDDOCK, Great Yarmouth.

WAR BOOKS

May I correct one misapprehension in your very generous review of my "War Books," as this might have unhappy consequences for me? It is by no means the fact that books omitted are "condemned by the editor's silence." I set myself to write notes upon about 750 of the most representative War books I could find, and did so; but this is not to say that some which are included are not in every respect inferior to some which are omitted. The subject is far too big for omniscience. I have just discovered that I have left out a regimental history which is one of the best of its kind and the author of which is a personal friend of mine.—CAPTAIN CYRIL FALLS.

HOUSES OF INTEREST

Your correspondents of the Royal Archaeological Institute do not appear to be aware of a provision in the Housing (No. 2) Bill at present before Parliament. Section (3) of Clause 22 reads as follows:—"A local authority in preparing any proposals for the provision of houses shall . . . take into account and, so far as possible, preserve existing works of architectural, historic or artistic interest." As all such schemes have to receive the sanction of the Ministry of Health, it should be possible if this Bill becomes law to obtain protection for such buildings by making representations to the Ministry.—DR. CHARLES H. GREENWOOD, Ripon.

THE SPEED LIMIT

Before it is too late may a plea for another consideration be added to the case for pedestrians advocated by Sir Charles Owens—namely, that of the great majority of motorists who do not desire or intend to travel at high speeds? There cannot be the least doubt that the higher the speed the greater the disaster in the event of accident, with risk thereof proportionately increased, and it is certain that if a limit be abolished in the Road Traffic Bill many moderate motorists, as well as pedestrians, will be sacrificed to the Moloch of speed.—Mr. F. E. PEARCE EDWARDS, Harrogate.

ELECTRICITY AND GAS

I read with enjoyment your article on May 23 on "Cruelty to Tax Collectors," but I must put in a mi d protest against your comparison of the "flickering gas jet" with the bowl of best electric light. The Lewisham Borough Council have recently fitted up, as an experiment, one mile of electric and one mile of gas lighting on the Hastings road, and, after the expression of opinion by leading motorists, have decided in favour of gas for lighting certain of their roads. Gas does not let its customers down suddenly at critical moments as electricity has been known to do.—Mr. B. W. ELLIS, Winter Hill House, Cookham Dean, Berks.

SEA BIRDS AND OIL

The destruction of sea birds by waste oil, distressing as it is to witness, is of little consequence compared with a far greater danger. The fry of almost all fish depend for their livelihood on the countless microscopic life in the water, on or near the surface. That oil in any form is destructive to this minute form of life has been conclusively proved by the clearance of mosquitoes, with the resultant fevers in the Panama Isthmus; and if the practice of discharging waste oil is allowed to continue a gradual decline in the supply of fish round our coast is bound to occur.—Mr. GEOFFREY ELLIS, Salcombe, Devon.

WIRELESS LICENCES

To prevent the evasion of tax on portable wireless sets, the onus should be placed on the seller to see that the buyer has a licence before he delivers the set. Failing that he should notify the Post Office.—Mrs. FREDERICK SALINGER, Niawing, South Park, Gerrards Cross.

NATIONAL MARK BEEF

MR. BUXTON AND THE BOYCOTT

AGRICULTURISTS' SUPPORT OF MINISTRY

A meeting of the Council of Agriculture for England was held at the Middlesex Guildhall, Westminster, yesterday. Mr. Denton Woodhead was unanimously elected chairman for the ensuing year, and Lord Strachie, the retiring chairman, was thanked for his services.

Mr. NOEL BUXTON, Minister of Agriculture, addressing the meeting, referred to the proposed boycott of the National Mark beef scheme by Birmingham meat wholesalers, to which reference was made in The Times yesterday. A serious situation, he said, had arisen in the last few days. The wholesale meat salesmen of Birmingham had decided to boycott the National Mark scheme in the corporation's meat market. It was a question for as forcible action as the Ministry could take. They were making it literally impossible for retail traders to secure graded beef, except at very much inconvenience. If the decision were adhered to there was no alternative but to limit grading and marking to beef in the slaughterhouses of the industrial co-operative societies and private traders. The Ministry felt most strongly that the boycott must be resisted because it was an organized step which would have the effect of depriving the producers of high-class beef of a very proper reward—the reputation that was due to them—and it was also a blow struck against the butcher who had welcomed the scheme as giving a guarantee of high-class beef. Though it sounded harsh, it was a step that would be welcomed by a certain section. It would be welcomed by any trader who wanted the continuance of a sytem which enabled a dishonest man to offer for sale inferior beef under the guise of "best English." He could not believe that the best wholesalers really endorsed this boycott, but there were influences at work which had brought it about. He decided, therefore, to ask those retail butchers and the cooperative societies who had given loyal support to the scheme to join in defeating this manoeuvre. All present were agreed that the National Mark stood for truth and fair play for the producer and consumer. It was a movement that ought to have the widest possible support. The Ministry proposed to do everything in their power to defeat the boycott.

The CHAIRMAN assured Mr. Buxton that the council would support the Ministry in trying to break the boycott.

NEW NAMES FOR MILK GRADES

The Standing Committee in a report on the grading of milk suggested that the grade names should be altered as follows:—"Certified" to be called "Extra Special"; "Grade A (T.T.)" to become "Special"; "Grade A" to become "Standard"; and "Grade A (Pasteurized)" to be called "Standard Pasteurized."

Dr. ADDISON, Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Agriculture, said the time was ripe for an improved and simpler nomenclature and he welcomed the suggestion of the committee, whose report would be considered by the Ministry without delay.

It was stated in the course of discussion that there was no place in England which had such a high quality of milk as London, and tribute was paid to the companies and cooperative societies which were responsible for milk distribution in London.

With regard to the law relating to the sale of milk, the Standing Committee suggested that milk should be taken out of the Sale of Food and Drugs Act and dealt with in a separate measure.

Dr. ADDISON said the Ministry of Agriculture concurred with the view of the committee that the present law was unfair and sometimes operated hardly on a seller who had not, deliberately at all events, committed an offence. It was a very thorny question and all he could say was that his Department would take the matter up with the Ministry of Health.

Attention was directed to the serious position of the potato industry, and a member declared that the Government was fiddling while agriculture was being ruined. It was suggested that if a guaranteed price for wheat were given to the farmer, other difficulties would be solved.

Reports were received on the marketing of dressed poultry and on the disinfection of poultry crates and pens.

Dr. ADDISON pointed out that the Ministry of Agriculture proposed to draft legislation with regard to the disinfection of market pens and crates, the prohibition or restriction of the movement of fowls in infected areas, and the control of the importation of poultry from countries where disease existed.

A resolution was passed asking the Ministry of Agriculture to impress on the Royal Veterinary College and other veterinary institutions the importance of discovering more than is now known of the diagnosis of the disease called "Johnne's disease," which is a seriously increasing cattle complaint.

WINDJAMMERS' RACE FROM AUSTRALIA

FINNISH SHIP'S PASSAGE IN 93 DAYS

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT)

FALMOUTH, MAY 30

The ocean race for windjammers from Australia to Falmouth has become more interesting, for the Finnish four-masted barquentine Mozart has completed the passage from Melbourne in 93 days, as against 105 taken by the Pommern, 110 by the Herzogin Cecile, and 115 by the Favel. The Mozart, however, has come home in ballast, and it is a question for the experts to decide whether in the circumstances she enjoyed an advantage. Captain Paul Karlsson, the skipper, who is only 28 years of age, expressed the opinion that the Mozart had a slight advantage in being in ballast, but not very much. He stated that the Mozart completed the outward run to Melbourne in just over 90 days, and then she carried a cargo. Her time on the homeward passage last year was 119 days.

The vessel left Melbourne on February 25 in ballast because of the scarcity of freight. She had a capital breeze in the South Atlantic, in fact on many occasions there was too much wind and several gales necessitated shortening of sail. Cape Horn was reached in 33 days, to the Pommern's 40, but the task of rounding the Horn was one of the most exciting and difficult Captain Karlsson had ever had, the ship being almost under bare poles. After crossing the Equator the weather improved, but the wind became light and progress was somewhat slow.

During the voyage Captain Karlsson sighted a four-masted ship which he believes was the Beatrice, which left Melbourne on the same day as the Mozart and is bound direct to London with a cargo of timber.

Captain Karlsson does not believe that the races between windjammers are over. He is of the opinion that freights will improve, and that there will be plenty of grain for ships to bring home from Australia.

CONVICTIONS CONFIRMED AT LONDON SESSIONS

The appeal of FREDERICK THOMASSON, chief accountant in a Manchester bank, against a conviction at Westminster Police Court and a sentence of eight weeks imprisonment in the second division for importuning at Victoria Station, was dismissed with costs at London Sessions yesterday.

Sir ROBERT WALLACE, K.C., chairman, dismissing an appeal by MAURICE KING against a sentence of six weeks' imprisonment for stealing a gramophone and other articles, passed on him at Bow-street Police Court, said that a statement made by a police-officer led the Court to conclude that that was not the appellant's first offence, but only the first time he had been found out. The three weeks that King had already spent in prison would be taken into account and he would now have only three weeks to serve.

ROBERT BROWN, appealed against a conviction at Marylebone Police Court and a sentence of six months' imprisonment with hard labour for inflicting grievous bodily harm on Henry Walter Freeman. The Court confirmed the conviction, but, having regard to Brown's good character and the circumstances which led up to the assault, he was bound over to come up for judgment if called upon, and has to pay the costs of the appeal.

Damage estimated at £10,000 was caused by fire which broke out at Milford Haven Docks about 4.30 a.m. yesterday. It was three hours before the flames were got under control. The outbreak started in a boiler-room factory.

ELEPHANT-SEAL AT THE ZOO

EVENING OPENING OF THE GARDENS

A young elephant-seal, a most welcome gift from Mr. A. G. Bennett, of Port Stanley, Falkland Islands, has arrived safely in the Gardens and is now on view in a pond which has been made for it on the south side of the Lion House. At present it is about 8ft. long and eats 40lb. of fresh sea fish a day, herrings being the favourite food. If visitors obey the warning and do not supply it with unsuitable food, it may reach a gigantic size. An adult male may be 20ft. long and 15ft. in girth; its fat will yield over 200 gallons of oil. The last elephant-seal in the possession of the Society developed an unwise fondness for buns, and died from a surfeit of improper food.

Elephant-seals are true seals, with a large bearded muzzle which in adult males bears a flexible short trunk inflatable at will. They have no external ears, and the hind flippers are rudimentary paddling organs, usually kept folded alongside the short tail. They are much more aquatic that the Eared seals, such as sea-lions and sea-bears, and move awkwardly on land, dragging along on their abdomens. They have the habit of rearing themselves erect from the ground, apparently insufficiently balanced on their slender hindquarters, and in this attitude will beg for food. The eyes are large, the intelligence is considerable, and the animals are very easily tamed. The length of time, often over five minutes, that they will remain completely submerged, with only an occasional bubble of expired air being visible, is very striking.

The sea-lions in the large pond have bred again, and the cub is now beginning to appear with its mother.

Arrangements are being completed for the experimental opening of the Gardens until 11 at night on Thursdays in June, July, and August. A rota of keepers for the extra duties has been made, and the wiring for the electric illumination of the Gardens has been installed. The band of the 65th (8th London) Field Brigade, Royal Artillery, has been engaged. The refreshment rooms will remain open and dinners at 4s. 6d. a head or à la carte will be served in the Fellows' and the public rooms. A "high tea" at 2s. 6d. a head will also be provided in the public rooms. The whole of the South Garden and the Small Mammal House and Insect House in the Middle Garden will be open, the houses being lighted up wherever necessary, and no extra charge will be made for the Aquarium after 8.30 p.m. Access will be by the North Gate in the Albert-road and by the Main Gate in the Outer Circle.

Questions have been raised as to whether the animals will not suffer from the longer exposure to visitors. This, naturally, will have to be watched, as the only time when the Gardens were open in the evening was at the Centenary Party last year. None of them seemed to suffer then, and, in fact, during summer, most of the animals are awake until long after sunset.

BUILDING CONGRESS ENDED

NEED OF RATIONALIZATION

Resolutions on rationalization, credit facilities, and scientific research, among other subjects, were submitted at the closing session of the International Congress of Building and Public Works Contractors, at the Central Hall, Westminster, yesterday. Mr. G. M. Burt again presided.

The resolution dealing with rationalization urged all countries, and especially those affiliated to the International Federation, to study methods of rationalization, and all architects to apply these principles in order to enable and facilitate their application by all others concerned. The permanent office of the International Federation was invited to communicate to all the affiliated organizations the information submitted to the congress, so that the most appropriate methods might be applied in each country. It was pointed out that rationalization would result in good quality and lower prices for the consumer; higher and steadier remuneration for the producers; and better service, greater purchasing power, and a higher standard of life generally for the community.

The resolution was carried.

A resolution was adopted recommending that the respective federations of building and public works contractors should carry on appropriate and continuous propaganda for improving their standing, and in particular recommended individual members of the federations to avail themselves of the lien facilities accorded to the contractor by law in certain countries.

Another resolution dealt with the construction of working-class houses. It was recommended that any action taken by the States or local governing bodies should not be such as to prevent or discourage private enterprise from providing as many dwelling-houses as possible, or to place private enterprise at a disadvantage compared with agencies supported in any way by public funds. The statutory provisions restricting rentals, providing subsidies, and otherwise preventing a free play of economic laws should gradually be repealed.

ALDERMAN M. E. MITCHELL (Manchester) opposed the suggestion that statutory provisions restricting rentals should be repealed, and moved an amendment that that portion of the resolution should be deleted.

SIGNOR CALZA BINI (Italy) said that in Italy, a much poorer country than Great Britain, they had done away with rent restriction.

M. FONTANE (France) said that the French delegation absolutely insisted that the clause should be retained, and the chairman said that the executive must also ask for its retention.

The resolution was carried.

ALLEGED CONSPIRACY TO DEFRAUD

VIGILANCE SOCIETY OFFICIALS CHARGED

WILLIAM SANSUM, 50, an ex-sergeant of the Metropolitan Police, and now secretary of the National Vigilance Society, Gray's Inn-road, and WILLIAM HUNTER HARDY, 66, a retired solicitor, of St. Clare-terrace, Bognor, were charged on remand at Bow-street Police Court yesterday, before Sir Chartres Biron, with conspiring, with others unknown, to defraud persons depositing money with the National Vigilance Society. Sir Wilfred Sugden defended Sansum.

Mr. R. M. Howe, for the Director of Public Prosecutions, said that Sansum was the secretary and Hardy, an undischarged bankrupt, solicitor to the society. The charge related to the obtaining of £100 from Mr. David Henry Dennis, a machine slinger, of Florence-street, Islington. The money was paid as a deposit on the lease of a house in Mecklenburgh-square, W., which Sansum had represented was for sale at £1,000. Dennis subsequently discovered that the house was not for sale, but he had been unable to get his money back.

Sir CHARTRES BIRON.—What is this society?

Mr. Howe said that, according to their pamphlet, they offered legal advice to victims of the police system and the lunacy laws. There was a legal department. The entrance fee was 1s., and contributions 6d. a month.

It was stated in evidence that the money was paid into Hardy's account at the Midland Bank, Holborn, which was now 11s. in credit.

Sir Wilfred Sugden said that Sansum did not have any of the £100.

Mr. Howe mentioned that inquiries were being made in regard to another matter.

Sir CHARTRES BIRON asked what evidence there was against Sansum, and if there was anything to show that he was not "taken in" by Hardy.

Mr. Howe replied that Sansum introduced the whole business to Hardy, and was connected with the matter all the way through.

Sir CHARTRES BIRON said that there might be matters requiring an explanation from Sansum, and granted a further remand. Bail in £50 was allowed for Sansum.

OLD BAILEY ACQUITTALS

At the Central Criminal Court on Wednesday, before Judge Gregory, HARRY MISELBUSKY, 44, job buyer (on bail), who was committed for trial from the Clerkenwell Police Court on a charge in regard to obtaining credit, was found Not Guilty, and he was discharged. Mr. G. B. McClure appeared for the prosecution; Mr. Borregaard defended.

HARRY OFFLAND, 28, salesman, and HYMAN SECUNDA, 28, street trader (both on bail), committed for trial from the Lambeth Police Court, were both found Not Guilty on the charge of stealing and receiving a quantity of artificial silk and other articles, and they were discharged. Mr. McClure prosecuted; Mr. Du Cann appeared for the defence.

THE SALE ROOM

TWO COLLECTIONS OF PICTURES

Two collections of ancient and modern pictures and drawings formed Christie's sale yesterday, the combined total amounting to £13,809. The larger portion of the sale, 125 lots, comprised the collection of family and other portraits of various generations, and other pictures from Springkell, Dumfriesshire, the property of the late Sir Jabez Edward Johnson-Ferguson.

Three of the Johnson-Ferguson portraits by P. A. de Laszlo appear to have been bought by the family at 32 guineas, 95 guineas, and 105 guineas each. Other modern family portraits did not do so well. A very large picture by Sir E. Landseer, "Taking a Buck: A Stag at Bay, with Gillie and Dogs," 69in. by 85in., exhibited at the Royal Academy in 1825, which fetched 1,950 guineas in 1888 and has passed through two other sales since then, yesterday was knocked down for 26 guineas. Better prices were scored for the drawings and old pictures. Of the former, there were J. G. Cotman, Mount St. Catherine, Rouen, 1823—360 guineas (Walker); Birket Foster, Young Anglers—125 guineas (Ellis and Smith); J. M. W. Turner, The Refectory, Kirkstall Abbey, 1800—135 guineas (Pearson); and F. Wheatley, a farm pool, a peasant girl, and two boys and child—100 guineas (Morton). Among the pictures were:—George Vincent, Loch Etive, with an angler and cow in the foreground, signed with initials and dated 1824—230 guineas (Gory); Sir W. Beechey, portrait of Everard Horne, F.R.S. (1756-1832), engraved for the first volume of his "Lectures on Comparative Anatomy," 1814—220 guineas (Barbizon House); J. van de Cuppelle, men-o'-war and sailing boats becalmed on the Dort—260 guineas (Asscher); M. Marieschi, a view near Venice, with buildings, boats, and figures—320 guineas (Beddington); J. van Os, fruit and goldfinch, and flowers and a bird's nest, a pair, signed—570 guineas (W. Sabin)—sold separately in the Dudley sale in 1892, these two together then fetched 310 guineas; Sir Henry Raeburn, portrait of Dr. Benjamin Bell (1749-1806), 420 guineas (Frost and Reed); an interior, catalogued as by P. van Slingelandt, but understood to be by Gerard Dou—200 guineas (Larsen); and Bartolome Vermejo, St. Michael subduing Satan, on panel, 16in. by 11in.—340 guineas (Beelesi).

Forty-four lots of pictures and drawings which formed part of the collection of the late Sir Carl Meyer, were now sold by order of the executors of the late Adele Lady Meyer. Lord Moynihan bought three lots of Phil May drawings at four guineas per lot. Two fine examples of Jan van Huysum, flowers in a terra-cotta vase, signed—fetched 1,900 guineas (Leggatt), and one of fruit and flowers, signed and dated 1730—600 guineas (Thornton); A. Canaletto, the courtyard of the Doge's Palace, Venice—500 guineas (Asscher); Tilly Kettle, portrait of Mrs. Drewe of Grange, Honiton, dated 1754—160 guineas (Goldman); Sir J. Reynolds, portrait of Miss Mary Palmer (Marchioness of Thomond)—380 guineas (P. Sabin); G. Morland, "Mutual Confidence or the Sentimental Friends," from the Haskett Smith collection—580 guineas (Tooth and Son).

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

Puttick and Simpson's sale on Thursday of violins, violas, and other musical instruments totalled £3,640. A violoncello by G. Grancino fetched £190 (Rogers); a violin by Antonio Gragnani, 1758, bearing label—£135 (Baines); another by N. Amati, 1667, bearing label—£125 (Thorpe); another by J. B. Vuillaume, Paris—£105 (Moller); another by J. F. Pressenda—£88 (J. Chanot); and a violoncello by J. B. Vuillaume, Paris, 1873—£90 (Moller).

A VALUABLE STAMP

The tenth known copy of the rare 4d. West Australian stamp, with inverted centre, sold yesterday at Plumridge's auction rooms for £550. The buyer was an American philatelist.

LORD MELCHETT AND EMPIRE UNITY

OPPOSITION TO REFERENDUM

LORD MELCHETT, speaking yesterday as the guest of the Overseas League, at a luncheon at the Criterion Restaurant, criticized the referendum. "My view is you had better deal with your problems now," he said. "I am no believer in a referendum—not the slightest. I believe it is an entirely un-English way of dealing with your problems."

Referring to Empire unity, he said there were people who always declared it was a wonderful thing, but were quite sure the Dominions would not do anything. They were like a young man who was going to propose to his young lady, but before doing so said, "She is sure to reject me." People with such a negative complex were never likely to achieve Empire unity or be successful with a young lady. (Laughter and cheers.)

The message they were constantly receiving was that the Dominions were ready, but they wanted to know when Great Britain was going to shake off the shackles of worn-out, obsolete theories which were unsuited to the present day. They wanted to know when we were going to remember that the world was not today what it was in the days of Cobden and Bright. This country was the dumping-ground for every other country in the world. The bankrupt stock from all over the world was being dumped on the shores of Great Britain. Our policies must be shaped, not only with peace in our minds, but with the possibilities of war at the back of our heads.

SHIPBUILDING ON THE CLYDE

THIRTY-FIVE VESSELS LAUNCHED IN MAY

So far as productivity is concerned May will be regarded as a good month in the Clyde shipyards. Thirty-five vessels were launched, aggregating 54,694 tons, the highest total reached during any month this year.

Among these vessels were seven racing yachts totalling 70 tons and several other vessels of a like size. This brings the total output by the Clyde yards for five months under review to 97 vessels, aggregating 201,893 tons, a figure which stands in good comparison with previous years.

Two more vessels were launched on Tyne yesterday, making six for the week. Messrs. Hawthorn Leslie and Co., Hebburn, launched H.M. torpedoboat destroyer Blanche, one of eight vessels ordered under the 1928 programme and the first vessel of her class to be launched. She has an overall length of 323ft., a displacement of 1,330 tons, geared turbine engines of 34,000 h.p., and is armed with 4.7 guns and smaller machine guns. The crew's quarters include bath rooms. The Blanche is the sixty-fifth war vessel built by Hawthorn Leslie and Co., who during the past 15 months have handed over to the Admiralty ten war vessels.

The other vessel launched yesterday was an oil tanker, John P. Pedersen, of 9,000 tons, which is being built by Messrs. Swan Hunter, Ltd., Wallsend, for Messrs. Helmer Stanbo and Co., Oslo.

ROMAN REMAINS AT YORK

DISCOVERY OF A WALL

Another piece of Roman York has been disclosed by workmen engaged on the demolition of some old houses in St. Sampson's-square. It is a length of about 20ft. of wall in an excellent state of preservation. Measuring 3ft. 2in. in width and having both the inner and outer surfaces dressed, it is an excellent example of Roman masonry of the later period. It lies well within the legionary fortress some distance back from the line of the outer wall of the fortress, and was probably part of a barracks or some administrative building.

A SUCCESSFUL APPEAL

GEORGE BENNETT, licensee of the Harrow publichouse, Stoney-street, Borough Market, S.E., appealed at London Sessions yesterday against a conviction at Tower Bridge Police Court and a fine of £15, with five guineas costs, for supplying intoxicating liquor during other than permitted hours. Bennett explained that the people found on his premises were personal friends of his who had attended a meeting of a Lodge of Druids, and he invited them to have a drink. No money passed. The DEPUTY CHAIRMAN, Mr. H. W. W. Wilberforce, said that the Court was inclined to think that it was a genuine transaction on the part of the landlord, and the appeal would be allowed, but without costs.

EMPIRE CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE

RECEPTION BY THE KING

The King received at Buckingham Palace yesterday the delegates who have attended the Congress of Empire Chambers of Commerce. The reception, which took place in the ball-room, was the first official ceremony the King has undertaken since his recent attack of rheumatism.

LORD IVEAGH presided at the final sitting of the congress at Guildhall in the afternoon, when Mr. I. H. HAARBURGER (South Africa), in moving the initial resolution, commended what he described as "the very fine leading article" on "Organizing Empire Trade" in The Times yesterday morning. His commendation was received by a chorus of approval from many parts of the hall. Mr. Haarburger asked that the resolutions on commercial relations within the Empire, which were passed on Tuesday and Wednesday, should not be allowed to remain mere pious expressions of opinion. He moved that the resolutions should be conveyed direct to the approaching Imperial Conference when in session, by means of a representative deputation to be chosen by the executive committee of the federation. He said that if it were possible for a sub-committee of the Imperial Conference to discuss the resolutions with a sub-committee of the federation the result might be beneficial to all parts of the Empire.

Mr. SYDNEY JACOBS (New Zealand), in seconding, stated that the time for deeds instead of words had arrived. Sir STANLEY MACHIN agreed that every effort should be made to prevent various parts of the Empire from drifting apart, and COLONEL J. H. WOODS (Canada) considered that the course suggested would be the best means of implementing their resolutions. The congress unanimously carried the resolution.

On the motion of Mr. E. HUNTER (Queensland) the congress instructed the executive committee to investigate the economic possibilities of sugar cane for producing power alcohol, beverages, yeast, dry ice, fertilizer, carbonic acid gas, fusel oil, artificial silks, and other articles. Mr. Hunter pointed out that the successful establishment of subsidiary industries of this nature would make sugar cheaper, and employ thousands of workers in every sugar-growing country in the Empire.

On the motion of COLONEL J. H. WOODS, the congress passed a series of resolutions. These drew attention to the openings for branch factories and warehouses and for the investment of capital in Empire markets; the possibilities of co-ordinating and pooling the commercial intelligence of the Consular and trade commissioner services for the benefit of the whole Empire; the value of producing an Empire map and text-book giving the economic geography of the world for use in Empire schools; the need of co-ordinating agencies devoted to the amplification of Empire economic interests in Great Britain, the Dominions, and the Colonies; supplementing the work of the Empire Marketing Board through similar publicity by Dominions and Colonies to advertise British goods in their own markets; and the study of the production and distribution of films throughout the Empire for their influence on Empire trade and commerce. A Canadian delegate expressed the hope that British producers would not neglect the advantage that the sound film offered to them over the American producer for the Canadian market.

During the closing speeches, Sir ARTHUR SHIRLEY BENN said that the people of the British Empire were slow to move, but once they did get moving towards definite economic unity nothing could stop them. Many people had been held back by the dear food bogey, but if the whole question were taken out of the hands of politicians and handed over to business men, that bogey could easily be removed. For instance, an independent authority could be set up to whom the revenue realized by any taxes on food imported into Britain could be handed with instructions that the money should be used to reduce the price of food.

THE PRINCE IN CORNWALL

DESCENT OF A TIN MINE

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT)

FALMOUTH, MAY 30

The visit of the Prince of Wales to the Helston and Falmouth district was looked forward to with great interest, but a change in his plans caused disappointment to hundreds of people. The Prince intended to play golf in the morning, and was due at Polithey mine at 3 o'clock. But rain fell and caused an alteration in his programme. Just after 11 o'clock his Royal Highness flew from Padstow to Tehidy golf links. Accompanied by Sir Lionel Halsey and Major McCormick, Secretary to the Duchy of Cornwall, he then motored to the mine, arriving three hours earlier than was anticipated.

The Polhigey mine, which is on the Princes' property, is the most modern in its equipment in Cornwall; the new shaft, which is 450ft. deep, has only been sunk about five years. The director and the manager of the London Tin Corporation were presented to the Prince, who changed into a suit of miner's clothes and went down in the skip to the 300ft. level. He was shown the modern pumping machinery, and he also saw the ponies in their stables, and expressed his pleasure at the comfortable and hygienic way they were housed. A further descent was made to where the miners were at work. His Royal Highness talked with the men and asked about the preparation of the tin. On returning to the pump room he was told that the pumps were of Cornish make and that similar pumps were being used in other mines. Afterwards the manager, on behalf of the London Tin Corporation, presented the Prince with a tankard of Cornish tin made at the company's smelting works at Bootle.

His Royal Highness left by road for Tehidy, and was given a hearty send off by the small crowd of spectators who happened to hear of his early arrival. Later hundreds of people from the surrounding district arrived to find that their Duke had already come and gone again.

The Prince then flew to Newquay, where he arrived about 2 p.m. He was greeted enthusiastically by large crowds who lined the roadside by the landing field. He had luncheon with Mr. and Mrs. J. Cardell, the tenants of Tretherras farm, and later drove back to Padstow, and returned to London by air.

SEQUEL TO A THEATRICAL TOUR

CHARGE OF STEALING £518

JOHN CHARLES WHARTON, of Aeroville, Booth-road, N.W., until recently secretary to Messrs. Tom Walls and Reginald Highley, Limited, of the Aldwych and Fortune Theatres, was at Bow-street Police Court yesterday committed for trial on a summons accusing him of stealing £518 belonging to his employers. Bail in £50 was allowed.

It was alleged that Wharton had used money partly to finance a touring theatrical production, Fools in Paradise, which was a financial failure. He had since offered to make restitution. Other sums were said to be involved.

Mr. Tom Walls, the actor, said that Wharton told him he had been "let down" by other persons interested in the touring company.

Mr. Stanley Wade, manager to the prosecuting company, was asked by Mr. H. J. Ricketts, defending: "Is it a fact that from last September onwards there was an almost unheard of 'slump' in the theatrical business?" "Yes, I should say there was," he replied.

Mr. Ricketts said that Wharton had no intention whatever of stealing the money.

LONDON SESSIONS ACQUITTALS

At the London Sessions on Thursday FREDERICK JAMES HOARE, 37, a motor engineer, committed from the Marylebone Police Court, was found Not Guilty of being drunk while in charge of a motor-car, and he was discharged.

ELLEN MARVIN, 60, married, committed from the North London Police Court, was found Not Guilty of receiving a quantity of cigarettes knowing them to have been stolen, and she was discharged.

LEVER HOUSE SALE

BRIDEWELL FREEHOLDS

The provisional sale, for £250,000, of Lever House, was announced in The Times yesterday. The premises, formerly known as De Keyser's Royal Hotel and Watergate House, are subject to leases, expiring in 1973 and 2019, at rents amounting to a total of £9,167 11s. 6d The vendors are the Governors of Bridewell Hospital.

The sale is incidental to the proposed rebuilding of the large block facing the City end of Blackfriars Bridge, and it recalls the history of the hospital, which was endowed with the revenues of the Savoy, and fitted up in 1555, by means of funds levied from the City companies. The site of Bridewell is said to have been a residence of Saxon and Norman kings, and before that to have been held by the Romans. Henry I. partly rebuilt the Palace, and Henry VIII. rebuilt and used it. A view of Bridewell in 1666 shows that it extended to the Thames at the point where the Fleet Ditch flowed contiguous to the property now sold.

Some of the incidents of its use as a prison were shown in a drawing by Hogarth in 1733. It continued as a prison, and, to some extent, for purposes hardly dissimilar at that period—namely, "a receptacle for vagrants and a temporary lodging for paupers on their way to their respective parishes" until about 100 years ago. The Inspectors of Prisons denounced Bridewell: "It does not correct, deter, nor reform." In 1829 "it was decided that from the revenue of the Bridwell Hospital (£12,000) reformatory schools should be built."

The prison was pulled down in 1863, and the hospital began to enter on a career of public usefulness. The ancient charity is now devoted to educational purposes, and maintains King Edward's School at Witley, and is hoping to increase the scope of its activities. The Governors include the Aldermen and certain Common Councillors of the City.

MR. SNOWDEN IN A LAND DISPUTE

NEW FENCE NEAR HIS SURREY HOUSE

Mr. Philip Snowden is concerned in a dispute regarding certain land adjoining his Tilford (Surrey) estate.

Mr. Snowden lives at Eden Lodge, Tilford, and in a letter to the Farnham Rural District Council yesterday he stated that at the top of his property was a piece of common land unenclosed. Bordering his property and that of his neighbour, Captain Rooke, was a cart track which ran round the common. An old lady had laid a claim to the common. Some years ago she wanted to sell him the land, and when he instructed his solicitors in the matter they found that she had not the ghost of a title to it.

Within the last few days she had begun to fence the common. On Saturday the man she had employed put up a fence very close to his and Captain Rooke's boundaries, thus closing the right of access for tradesmen. They had it cut down at once, and then the lady proceeded to re-erect it a few feet higher up. He understood that other access to the road on the common had been fenced. The cottagers bordering the common had cut down parts and were now waiting for it to be completed, when they intended to pull it all down.

Mr. Snowden asked the council to look into the matter and take what steps were necessary to prevent the enclosing of the common.

The clerk (Mr. E. F. Crundwell) said that the land was not common land at all. It was originally laid down for building purposes by a company in the sixties. That company had been wound up, but he did not know whether it had been intended that the land should be left unenclosed or whether it was a piece which had been sold and which the owner had not taken the trouble to have fenced in. There was no public right-of-way involved. He understood there were several pieces of land in the vicinity which were in the same category.

The council adopted a suggestion to zone the land as recreation ground under the Town Planning Act.

AMERICAN MEMORIAL DAY

CEREMONIES AND SERVICE IN LONDON

Yesterday was Memorial Day to Americans throughout the world. Many who are resident in London or are visitors here joined in the wreath-laying ceremonies at Westminster, while others attended a memorial service at Brookwood Cemetery, held in cooperation with the British Legion and the Canadian Government.

Colonel Simmons, on behalf of the Brooklyn Chapter of the Reserve Officers' Association of the United States, and Mr. Jesse Silverman, for the American Legion, laid wreaths at the Cenotaph. The American Ambassador attended, accompanied by Captain W. W. Galbraith (Naval Attaché), Colonel J. R. Thomas (Military Attaché), and Mr. W. Mangum and Mr. L. W. Weddell, of the American Overseas Memorial Day Association. One wreath was inscribed: "To our British comrades."

The annual memorial service was held afterwards at St. Margaret's, Westminster. Canon Carnegie officiated, the American Ambassador read the lesson, and the Rev. W. H. Garth, of St. Martin's Church, Islip, New York, preached the sermon. He said that America had two national days of note—the Fourth of July, when her people celebrated the anniversary of the birth of their nation, and Memorial Day, a day of remembrance for the men who made the supreme sacrifice in the Great War. Throughout America folks would be gathering in the cemeteries, large and small, to associate themselves in thought and in spirit with those who died that liberty and justice might live.

The American Ambassador afterwards laid a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Warrior in Westminster Abbey, and was present later when a wreath was laid at the base of the Lincoln statue by Mr. C. L. E. Wright, aged 83, of East Dulwich, the only one of six survivors of the London branch of the American Civil War veterans who was able to venture out of doors yesterday.

ELIZABETHAN HOUSE AT PLYMOUTH

Lady Astor, M.P., opened the restored Elizabethan house at 32, New-street, Plymouth, yesterday morning. The preservation of the house has been the first task of the Old Plymouth Society, and its joint presidents, Lord Astor and Sir Philip Pilditch, were present at the ceremony. Mr. A. S. Parker, who had supervised the restoration of the house, presented Lady Astor with the key with which to open the oak door. Sir Philip Pilditch presented the deeds of conveyance to the Mayor of Plymouth, who handed the house formally into the keeping of the Museum and Art Gallery Committee of Plymouth City Council. Short speeches were also made by the American Consul-General in London (Mr. Robert Halstead) and Lord Astor.

THE "DOOR OF UNITY"

Yesterday afternoon in the churchyard of St. Andrew's, Plymouth, Mr. Albert Halstead, American Consul-General in London, unveiled the "Door of Unity" leading from the churchyard to the old Prysten House. The memorial to two American naval officers buried in the churchyard in 1815 was also unveiled, and wreaths were laid on it by representatives of the National Society of United States Daughters of 1812, who were responsible for its erection. Before this ceremony the Bishop of Exeter gave an address at a service in the church, which was attended by the Mayor and Corporation.

THE COLLEGE OF NURSING ENDOWMENT FUND

PURSES RECEIVED BY THE QUEEN

The Queen, patron of the College of Nursing, received more than 130 purses for the endowment fund of the college, Henrietta-street, Cavendish-square, yesterday afternoon. It is hoped to complete a fund of £100,000 this year, in order to carry on the college and to maintain the building. The purses came from hospitals and branches of the college all over the country, and the first, collected by Dames of the British Empire, was presented to the Queen by Dame Madge Kendal.

Miss Cox-Davies, president of the College, announced that the sum received during the afternoon was £22,701, which, added to the amount previously raised, £72,819, made a total of £95,520. To this had to be added £100 which had been handed in by the South London Hospital just after the Queen arrived.

After the ceremony the Queen walked through the adjacent Cowdray Club for professional women, and inspected the rooms.

THE DIGNITY OF PROMPTITUDE

By CALLISTHENES

There used to be an impression that it was undignified to deal promptly with correspondence. The idea, like so much else that was unprofitable in the past, lingers on in Whitehall. Down there they appear to think it unseemly to answer a letter by return, and the ordinary correspondent waits two, three or four days for an acknowledgment and perhaps two, three, or four weeks for an answer.

But you find the same musty notion in second-rate businesses. The idea of answering a letter within an hour of receiving it fills them with the vague uneasiness of the pompous gentleman who is asked to "hurry along."

But this is, of course, all nonsense. There is no dignity in delay. The real dignity is in promptitude.

There is no dignity in being slow-witted, and it is the slow-witted man who takes long to answer. There is no dignity in bad organisation, and it is the badly organised business that cannot deal promptly with its correspondence. The local politician may arrive late for his meeting, but punctuality is the courtesy of Kings.

In this House we do not believe in delay of any kind. "He gives twice who gives quickly" applies to service as to everything else. Our organisation is built to answer letters the day upon which they are received. There must be occasional necessary exceptions, but if ever they become numerous we would overhaul our organisation.

To answer letters quickly is only a matter of courtesy and organisation, two things in which this House tries to excel. It is preposterous for any office to assume that the average letter takes two or three days to answer. Sometimes the excuse is that the head of the department is away. Our reply to that is deputies must be given and must exercise real responsibility. Sometimes the excuse is that the matter requires "consideration." This is usually affectation or laziness. To exercise judgment, to make a decision, are expressions of energy which the unenergetic are often glad to postpone—and the postponement is called "consideration."

With all foolish conventions and futile affectations, with all desire to ponder what needs no pondering, a young, progressive business such as we are still proud to be has no sympathy. We have our eyes on realities. We hold that what is worth doing at all is worth doing promptly, that the business of the clear brain, will to serve, and enthusiasm to excel does not wait three days to answer letters, but answers them forthwith, as it likes to have them answered.

SYMPHONIC SOUND

THE NEW INSTRUMENTATION

Teachers of composition used to tell their pupils that the quality of a score could be tested by the possibility of reducing it to terms of two hands at a keyboard. If, divested of all the attractions of orchestral tone, it still appeared to have vitality, then it might be accounted a good piece of music. The growth of musical technique has caused that dictum to go the way of other educational formulas, and if we were to reject to-day everything which becomes unintelligible nonsense when so reduced we should keep very little modern orchestral music.

It was Hector Berlioz, a hundred years or so ago, who first began to show through his works that the orchestra could have a vocabulary and syntax of its own, and that its music was not merely any music appropriately coloured, but a special kind of music made possible by the nature and capacities of the instruments collaborating in its performance. To dissociate such music from its instrumentation is not to strip it of extraneous decoration, but to deny it some part of its raison d'être. Instrumental timbre, in fact, became with him an element in musical form.

The point is well discussed by Professor Egon Wellesz in the second part of his valuable work, "Die Neue Instrumentation," where he develops the analogy between the musician's art and that of the painter, and claims for the former the possession of a "Klangsinn" comparable to the "Farbensinn" of the latter. The English language, which is less rich in artistic terminology than the German, has had to borrow for music the word "colour," and in doing so has applied the analogy more as though it came from the home decorator's craft than from the art of the studio. Professor Wellesz declares that there have been painters in all times who were temperamentally inclined to regard their art primarily as design and to use colour as a means of contrast, while others approached it through colour, letting the design emerge as result of the colour scheme. So, he says, with music, especially of the present time, one can perceive the parallel existence of the two formative tendencies, and since his subject is instrumentation, he proceeds to emphasize the importance of the composer employing the right kind of thematic material for presentation by means of the orchestral medium. The older kind of teacher more often dwelt on the desirability of finding the right instrument for the chosen theme. Professor Wellesz points out that what is often called "bad scoring" in Schumann's orchestral works is not due so much to a defect in the distribution of his ideas among instruments as to the fact that Schumann's ideas are not themselves primarily orchestral. Many of them belong by right to the piano.

The symphony by Mr. Arnold Bax which Mr. Goossens produced at Queen's Hall last week showed decisively, and throughout its course, the merit which is the opposite of Schumann's defect. Its beauties are not to be dismissed merely with the remark that the symphony is exceedingly well scored. That remark, indeed, is scarcely a compliment. It calls to mind the house decorator making good all woodwork with two coats of paint. The point of such music as that of Mr. Bax's symphonies, and more especially it seems of No. 2, is that it is primarily the product of his "Klangsinn," an essay in orchestral tone, and that the themes themselves, their developments, contrasts, and combinations, are right for their places in the orchestral colour scheme. Taken out of that scheme they might appear rather insignificant, but that is not to be considered a fault in them; it might be even claimed as their virtue, since each contributes to the total impression while no one of them concentrates attention on itself. The able writer of the programme note apologized for being unable, without the aid of music type, to make the course of the symphony clear. But it seems possible that thematic analysis of music of this type may have the effect of setting the listener on the wrong track, by leading him to mistake the incidents for the essentials. The themes are there and are clear enough; their development proceeds for the most part along the accepted lines of symphonic design, but it is not in the themes or their development that the main beauty or interest lies, but in the tonal result.

This attitude of the composer, here attributed to Mr. Bax merely on the strength of the impression left in the mind of a single hearer after a single hearing of his symphony, is a prevalent one in modern music, but still seems to the older generation of musicians to lead to topsy-turvydom. We who have grown up among the symphonic classics from Haydn to Brahms think of great music in general, and of the symphonic form in particular, as justifying itself through its thematic contours. We are apt to be contemptuous of "mere colour" as an appeal to the senses without the intervention of the intelligence. There have even been those who found it easier to forgive Schumann for scoring badly than Wagner for scoring well. But it is necessary to remember that the "Klangsinn" could only become a part of the musician's mental outfit when the technical means for its expansion had been made available to him. The orchestra as we know it is still a new invention. The "Klangsinn" of a composer such as Beethoven or Schubert stands in about the same relation to that of a modern composer as the road sense of a stage coach driver of their time bears to that desirable faculty in the motorist of to-day. The acquisition of the technical means of expression has led to an immensely heightened perception of the subtleties of sound. It is in that direction principally that the musical art can be said to have advanced in the last generation or two, and the advance is of such a kind as to make possible to the musician for the first time in history an approach to his art comparable with that of the painter who finds his inspiration first in a colour scheme.

Those of us who have given our admiration almost exclusively to musical draughtsmanship as exhibited in the classics of symphony and sonata must be ready to revise, or at any rate to widen, our aesthetic standpoint to include works which approach the form from the opposite side. For a time the resources of orchestral tone were chiefly lavished on illustrative effects of the kind which belong to the romantic "tone poem." The theory of "poetic music" which Liszt promulgated was exploded by the method of reductio ad absurdum in Richard Strauss's "Domestic Symphony," itself a masterpiece in the handling of tone values. Since then composers have looked askance at "programme music" and bent their minds increasingly towards the application of their enriched "Klangsinn" to self-existent or "absolute" music.

Conductor—JOHN BARBIROLLI

Mme. Margherita Sheridan, we were told, took the part of Madam Butterfly at "very short notice" last night. The intimation could not be taken as intending an apology for her experienced singing, but as an excuse for any want of cohesion which might be perceptible in the performance of an opera which centres entirely on the name part. Certain things were very well done, and none better than the ensemble between Madam Butterfly and her female relations at their first entry. In this very effective number the several parts were more than usually clear, and Mme. Sheridan's unforced tones stood out easily, yet were well blended with the choral voices. Here, and in certain other places, too, Mr. Barbirolli, who was conducting at Covent Garden for the first time this season, got exactly the right relation between voices and instrumens.

But, whether it was due to the short notice or to some deeper cause, the performance as a whole never raised the temperature to any very high level. Mme. Sheridan's singing and acting hardly convey the impression of a mercurial temperament in which the extremes of gaiety and despair lie close together. Signor Minghetti, a pleasant-voiced tenor, did not make us feel that his Pinkerton was for one moment really carried away by his emotions, even in the love duet of a summer night with which the first act closes. Mr. Dennis Noble sang adequately as the Consul, and did achieve one moment of earnestness when he tried to warn Butterfly and ended by cursing Pinkerton. No Consul could do more. Mme. Beltacchi, as Suzuki, made the most of her few opportunities, and it may well have been the "short notice" which prevented the flower duet from gaining that impetus and swing which should make it the one bright spot in the dreariness of the latter part of the drama. Mr. Octave Dua repeated his clever study of the marriage broker, and except for certain climaxes where the orchestra overpowered the voices momentarily Mr. Barbirolli held his players well in hand.

NATIONAL PORTRAIT GALLERY

EXHIBITION OF RECENT ACQUISITIONS

An exhibition has been opened at the National Portrait Gallery of important new additions to the collection, the place of honour being held by a Goya painting in oils of the great Duke of Wellington, which the Duke of Leeds has generously deposited on loan. Wellington appears to have sat to the Spanish artist in 1812 after the victory of Salamanca, and a version of this portrait is in the collection of the present Duke of Wellington, while a red chalk study by Goya is in the British Museum collection. The English commander is presented as a youngish man of rather startled appearance wearing a uniform of a brilliant crimson. The artist disposes gently of his sitter's nose by showing it as seen full face, but it is more remarkable to find the head as a whole represented as round instead of long, with a decidedly Spanish cast of expression. The surface of the painting is in many places thick and highly raised, showing clear traces of the artist's hurried painting over of unsatisfactory details of head and costume.

The painting occupies the centre of one of the upper saloons of the Gallery, and it is introduced nearer the door by a succession of the Generals in the Peninsular War selected from portraits already in the national collection. The remainder of the room is filled by paintings and drawings entirely new to the Gallery.

The earliest is a small portrait of Henry VI. as a young man, wearing a collar of S-es and clad in black against a scarlet ground. This is clearly an English painting of about 1500, copied from an earlier contemporary portrait. Sir Thomas Chaloner (1521-65), the Diplomat and Clerk to the Privy Council, is painted by an unknown English artist in the finer and more pellucid style of the second half of this century, while a vigorous portrait in armour from the studio of Rubens displays the celebrated collector Thomas Howard, second Earl of Arundel and Surrey, as a bearded man in armour, with a bold wart on his cheek. The portrait is only half-length, but a similar study at full length is known in a collection at Boston. John Wesley, the founder of Methodism, is benignly represented in a study after Romney, which has now been bequeathed to the Museum by Miss Mary Stringer Rowe.

An idealized roundel drawing of Rupert Brooke, made posthumously from photographs and descriptions by Mr. J. Havard Thomas for the sculptured relief in Rugby School Chapel, has been presented jointly by Professor Lascelles Abercrombie, Mr. Walter De La Mare, Mr. Wilfrid Gibson, and Mr. Edward Marsh. A rather slight bronze relief of R. L. Stevenson, by St. Gaudens, has been given by Lady Gosse and her family in memory of Sir Edmund Gosse, and a bronze cast from a bust modelled in Honolulu has been presented by Mrs. How.

The portrait of Sir J. W. Alcock, the pioneer of Transatlantic flight, painted by Mr. Ambrose McEvoy and presented by Messrs. Rolls-Royce, has been hung in the National Portrait Gallery for the first time, after a long loan to Manchester.

CHAIRMAN OF BRITISH LEGION

COLONEL J. BROWN NOMINATED

Colonel John Brown will be the new chairman of the British Legion. He has been nominated unopposed, and his election will take place at the Legion's annual conference at Cardiff at Whitsuntide. Colonel Brown is succeeding Lieutenant-Colonel G. R. Crosfield, and his place as vice-chairman will be taken by Major J. B. Brunel Cohen, M.P.

Colonel Brown, who is 50, practises as an architect at Northampton. In 1901 he joined the 1st V.B., Northamptonshire Regiment, which afterwards became the 4th (T.A.) Battalion of the regiment. He took part in the Suvla Bay landing in August, 1915, and later served in Palestine until he was invalided in 1918. From 1924 to 1928 he commanded the 162nd (East Midland) Infantry Brigade (T.A.). He was made D.S.O. in 1918, C.B.E. in 1923, and C.B. in 1926.

ART EXHIBITIONS

MR. W. G. DE GLEHN, A.R.A.

Taking them as a whole the paintings and drawings by Mr. W. G. de Glehn, A.R.A., at Barbizon House, 9, Henrietta-street, Cavendish-square, observe the limitations within which he is a very pleasing painter. He is not a constructor, though he can observe balance, but he draws the figure gracefully, he has an appreciation of surface and atmospheric qualities, and he is very deft in execution. To put it in a sentence he is a better decorator than engineer. As a rule, too, his colour is pleasing, depending upon nicety of tone rather than choiceness of combination, and a scheme of biscuit and blue may almost be called his patent. In some of the landscapes here, in both oil and water-colour, the colour strikes one as being rather too positive for the design to hold, and it is in effects like "Chelsea Reach," on a misty afternoon, that Mr. de Glehn gives most pleasure. His paintings of the nude, such as "Study for Sleep," in which the flesh tints are set against blue-shadowed white, and "The Bather," enriched with amber drapery, have an attractive sensuous quality, warm and at the same time blithe and innocent. Mr. de Glehn's full-scale portraits are apt to be rather shallow and flimsy, but "Mrs. Geoffrey Dawson and Belinda," though the character in the heads is understated, is a success. The way in which the rose of the coat is carried into the pink of the child's hat ribbon, the movement being completed by the linked hands—so that you get a wreath that is half in colour and half in form—is a very pretty compositional device. Besides "Chelsea Reach," "Morning—St. Tropez" and "Summer by the Sea," in oil, and "Harvest by the Sea—Cornwall (II.)" "Le Pavillon de Musique—Versailles" and "Venice—Sunrise" are among the best of the landscapes, and there are some graceful drawings of the figure.

REMBRANDT ETCHINGS

At this time of day it is not easy to say anything fresh about Rembrandt's etchings, but the present exhibition of 76 proofs at the galleries of the Fine Art Society, 148, New Bond-street, can be recommended as a good opportunity to study his range and variety in the medium. There has never been another artist who so completely explored, and justified, the possibilities of etching as a distinct form of engraving. Most other etchers occasionally leave you with the feeling that the thing might have been done—and perhaps preferably—another way; say in aquatint or mezzotint; but with Rembrandt, in his deepest tone effects—like that of the touching "Adoration of the Shepherds"—the bitten or drypointed line is made to seem essential. This, of course, is to say nothing of his range of emotion, with ordinary humanity as the instrument of the most exalted feelings, or of his genius as a composer. The prize of this collection is undoubtedly the splendid impression of "The Three Crosses," as rich as if it had been printed yesterday from a newly-finished plate. Other proofs of special excellence are "The Great Jewish Bride," "Jan Lutma," "Dr. Faustus in his Study," "Landscape with a Cottage and Hay Barn," "The Death of the Virgin," and "The Fourth Oriental Head."

PASTORAL WATER-COLOURS

Among the minor art exhibitions of the year there is none pleasanter than that of "Pastoral Water-Colours" at Walker's Galleries, 118, New Bond-street, which has just opened for the thirteenth time. Properly to appreciate such an exhibition it is necessary to abandon a strictly pictorial standard—though some of the works will bear its application—and to adopt one in which the sentiment and associations of the scene represented are allowed full sway. There are 67 drawings by 26 artists, and, if memory can be trusted, the list includes names of higher reputation than have been seen here formerly—a proof that the idea of the exhibition is artistically attractive. Though there is a fair proportion of definitely pastoral subjects, the word "pastoral" is sensibly broadened to include various types of landscape effect, flower studies, and at least one full-scale figure subject—"A Little Village Maid," munching an apple, by Mr. A. S. Hartrick. The exhibition is, in short, a tribute in water-colour to "England's green and pleasant land."

Quite early in the exhibition Mr. S. J. Lamorna Birch strikes the high romantic note with "Mount's Bay and St. Michael's Mount from Gulval," a view once seen never forgotten. He is followed by Mrs. L. Blatherwick at her most emotional in flower studies—"In a Water Garden," iris and dragon-fly, and "Autumn," a lingering sunflower, already spider's-webbed. Then comes Miss Katharine Cameron, more gaily, with "Pastoral Bandits," that is to say, ocas, and "Thistledown." So the tale, with its many variations, is continued, and among the drawings which rise above the average in artistic qualities are "High Pasture," by Mr. J. R. K. Duff, "Castle Acre Priory—West Front," by Mr. Oliver Hall, "A Farm at Eynsford," by Mr. Martin Hardie, "From the Malverns—looking north-west towards Clee," by Mr. A. M. Hind, "Showery Morning—New House," by Sir Charles J. Holmes, "The Rick," by Mr. Henry Payne, and "The Canal at Heybridge Basin, Essex," by Mr. William T. Wood.

Linked with this exhibition in spirit, and supporting the activities of the Royal Society of Arts in subject, is that of water-colours of rural England, by Mr. W. W. Collins. Here the subject matter is, primarily, old cottages, with a careful notation of their characteristic construction in different parts of the country—as it may be of brick, stone, half-timber, or cob, with thatch, tiles, or stone "slats" as roofing materials. The foreword to the catalogue tells a doleful tale of what has happened to some of the cottages since the drawings were made. Mr. Collins, though he is occasionally over-strong in colour, has a good style for his pious purpose; firm in delineation and compact in his designs. "The Post Office, Stoke, Dorset," "An Old Warwickshire Cottage," "East Lulworth, Dorset," "Old Cottages—Beaulieu, Hampshire," and "An Old Farmhouse—Corhampton, Hampshire" are particularly good drawings. This is an application of talent that deserves encouragement.

BUILDING CONGRESS DINNER

LORD BURNHAM AND NEW DELHI

A dinner of delegates to the International Congress of Building and Public Works was held at the Connaught Rooms last night. Mr. G. M. Burt presided.

Mr. CLYNES (Home Secretary), proposing the toast of "The Federation," said that men should love their own countries and have a desire to live for them, but they should not be called upon to die for them. He believed that any Government would join in genuine admiration of the great work being done in the building trade, particularly of the safety measures taken on behalf of the workmen. International prosperity of trade and business very largely went hand in hand with international good will and confidence.

The PRESIDENT replied.

LORD BURNHAM, proposing the toast of "The Delegates," referred to the rebuilding of London which was going on and said that he had recently returned from Delhi, where there was still proceeding the most gigantic of modern constructional enterprises, now partly fulfilled, but still only the beginning of a new capital city, rising amid the ruins of seven others in the surrounding country. He did not believe that even America had offered such opportunities as had been given to the distinguished British architects, Sir Edwin Lutyens and Sir Edward Baker, in the last 20 years in India. The best modern building he knew was the new Town Hall of Stockholm, but he was not sure that Liverpool Cathedral would not rival its beauty and proportions.

Mr. JOHN M. GRIES (U.S.A.), M. ALBERTO CALZA BINI (Italy), and M. DOUANE (France) responded.

The toast of "The National Federation of Building Trades Employers and the Federation of Civil Engineering Contractors of Great Britain" was proposed by M. F. VAN OPHEM, and SIR EDWIN ABBEY and Mr. GERALD G. LYNDE replied.

STATE LABOUR OF BULGARIA

VALUE OF THE TRUDOVAKS

(FROM OUR BALKANS CORRESPONDENT)

The countries which were defeated in the Great War and were compelled by the terms of peace to reduce their armies and abolish compulsory military service took this condition very hardly. They found the raising of a volunteer army, so familiar an idea to ourselves, an expensive business compared with conscription, and those countries which were mainly agricultural experienced great difficulty in obtaining suitable recruits for the pay offered. The discipline and training, both physical and mental, which military service imparts, was badly missed, and from Germany in particular came the complaint that without his two years' service in the army a young man's education was incomplete.

Each country has in course of time adapted itself after its own fashion to the new conditions. The simplest and most effectual substitute for military service has been found in Bulgaria, where instead of serving in the army every young man was made liable at the age of 20 to serve for eight months in a labour-company. When he is called up he is given about a week's drill and instruction to accustom him to the idea of military discipline, and is then set to work on any task which the State requires done. Most of the work is general "navvying." From 50 per cent. to 60 per cent. of the trudovaks, as the labour conscripts are called, are employed on the roads and another 10 per cent. on the railways and in the ports; there are also forestry and building companies, and the workers for a State brickyard, State boot and clothes factories, as well as State stud-farms and nurseries, are furnished from the same source. Among the casual work included in the record of the labour-companies for the year 1928-29 is the building of a children's sanatorium and a geographical institute, levelling of aerodromes, and excavation on sites of archaeological interest. This gives some idea of the variety of uses to which the trudovaks can be put.

EMERGENCY RESERVE

The law provides for an annual contingent of 50,000, but in practice not more than 18,000-20,000 are usually called up, and these are not retained in ordinary circumstances for more than the six fine-weather months during which they can be conveniently accommodated under canvas or in light huts and shelters. Exemption from service can be obtained by a payment of about £13 10s. to £48, according to the circumstances of the recruit's family. The remainder of the contingent provides a reserve of labour on which the Government can draw in case of emergency. Such an emergency occurred during the earthquakes in Southern Bulgaria two years ago. Some thousands of men were then called up and set to work clearing the débris, repairing roads, and building huts for the homeless. After his 20th year every able-bodied man remains in theory on the reserve of the trudovaks and is liable to be called up for work 10 days in the year. Actually the Government delegates its right to the reserve labour to the authorities of the communes in which the men live, and it rests with the mayor to make use of it as he thinks fit to get work of local utility done.

The system is practically a revival of the old French corvée. It enables the Government to get a great deal of regular work done at very little cost. All the road-making and repairing in the country is done by the trudovaks, and one cannot motor very far in Bulgaria in the summer without coming upon a batch of them in their grey blouses and peaked caps shovelling road-metal or repairing a damaged culvert. It also enables the Government in a great many cases to dispense with the service of a contractor for public works. For instance, some 2,000 trudovaks are employed at present on the construction of a dyke along the bank of the Danube, by means of which a large area of land is to be reclaimed for cultivation. As it has developed the service has gradually become a source of considerable profit to the State.

A PAYING PROPOSITION

It receives 160,000,000 levas (£240,000) from the Budget for running expenses, but for the financial year 1928-9 it was reckoned that it had covered expenses and brought in revenue to the extent of 145,883,447 levas, about half of which was furnished by the sums paid by recruits for exemption. As time goes on there is no reason why the profits should not be considerably enlarged. It provides a source of revenue which any Minister of Finance might envy, and it is not surprising that several inquiries have been made into the working of the system from countries such as Germany and Hungary, where compulsory service has been dropped.

Apart from its purely utilitarian value the system fulfils an educational purpose which is not to be despised. It gives the young peasant a sense of his relation to the State, and of the duties and responsibilities which this relation implies. It opens his mind to some extent by taking him away from his own village, and by associating him in common work with numbers of other men from other parts of the country. It gives him almost the same prestige as military service used to in the old days; a young man who has done his service as a trudovak is held in the eyes of the village to be a more eligible candidate for marriage than one who has not.

Bulgaria's neighbours at first suspected the trudovaks of being a camouflaged system of military training, but these suspicions have been allayed by the very pacific employment to which the recruits are put when they are called up. Although it must be admitted that the system gives the Government a means of easily mobilizing the manhood of the nation, nobody can pretend that the trudovak army would be very dangerous without military training or equipment.

THE ARMY AND POLITICS

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT)

SOFIA, MAY 30

It appears that since the Cabinet was reconstructed a fortnight ago important reforms have been made with a view to purging the Army of political elements. Some higher officers belonging to opposing factions have been placed on the retired list. The bureau of Military Police at the Ministry of War, which had been called a political Cheka and supposed to have been concerned in many doubtful schemes, has been abolished and the officers who composed it have received various commands in the provinces. It is also reported that the former Minister of War, General Volkoff, who represents Bulgaria as Minister in Rome, but is still on the active list, will join the reserve in the near future in accordance with an official decision. All these measures are very welcome in the country and will have the effect of protecting the Army from the political influences which had begun to develop.

BALTIC MARITIME CONFERENCE

RATIONALIZATION OF SHIPPING

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT)

COPENHAGEN, MAY 30

The 25th annual general meeting of the Baltic and International Maritime Conference was opened by the Crown Prince to-day in the large hall of the Folketing in Christiansborg Castle. All the members attended, and among those present were Lord Kirkley, and Mr. Johan Hansen, former presidents.

The Crown Prince, in his opening address, expressed his interest in the work of the Conference and his pleasure that Copenhagen had been chosen as the place of meeting. A congratulatory message was read from the King and Mr. W. A. Souter (Newcastle-on-Tyne), the president, made a short speech in reply. The Crown Prince then unveiled a banner to be used at future meetings of the Conference, the gift of the president and Mrs. Souter. The meeting was resumed in the afternoon, and this evening the official dinner was held, representatives of the Government and of shipping circles being the guests.

Mr. Souter, in his presidential address, said that at the present time shipping was under a cloud. He had never known a depression of such intensity as that under which they were now suffering. This was to be attributed to the great increase in tonnage afloat and the inelasticity of business since the War, with the further cause of over-production in raw materials coupled with inadequate exchange facilities. They must therefore look to international bankers for some alleviation of their difficulties. A practicable beginning, however, could be made by the elimination of old and inefficient tonnage, and it would be desirable that the building of new ships should stop until the world's demand for carrying space overtook the supply of tonnage. Such action was best taken on an international basis. Rationalization in the shipbuilding industry had already gone some way in Germany, and a well-thought-out scheme had now been launched in Great Britain. The conference welcomed further international action towards the removal of trade barriers and towards uniformity in sea law.

⁂ Comment on Mr. Souter's address will be found in our City pages.

On the occasion of this year's jubilee meeting Börsen, of Copenhagen, has published a special supplement in English giving the history and an account of the present activities of the conference.

INTER-PARLIAMENTARY CONFERENCE

PRINCE TOKUGAWA'S VISIT

(FROM OUR TOKYO CORRESPONDENT)

Prince Iyesato Tokugawa, President of the House of Peers and head of the family which for more than 2½ centuries ruled Japan as Shoguns under the Emperor, has accepted the post of chief delegate of the Japanese delegation to the International Parliamentary Conference which opens in London on July 26.

Prince Tokugawa intends to sail from Yokohama on June 12 in the Empress of Russia, travelling by way of Canada and the United States. He will be accompanied by Mr. Yasuji Seko, another official member of the delegation. Following the Parliamentary Conference, Prince Tokugawa will attend the general meeting of the International Red Cross, and then make a study of post-War conditions on the Continent.

His decision comes as something of a surprise, since Prince Tokugawa is noted for his inclination to stay at home. He is no stranger to England, however, as he was there as a student from 1877 to 1882. He revisited England in 1908, and his third trip abroad was as a delegate to the Washington Conference in 1921-22. His eldest son, who is now the first Japanese Minister to Canada, has twice served at the Japanese Embassy in London and was educated at an English University.

Three members of the Japanese delegation to the Parliamentary Conference have already left for Europe—Marquis Taitei Tokugawa, Count Sanji Kuroki, and Count Tadamasa Sakai. The other delegates are:—Viscount Kyoshiro Inouye, Baron Fujitaro Ohtori, Baron Chusaburo Shiba, Mr. Yasuji Seko, Mr. Aikichi Tanakadate, Mr. Bunji Mano, and Mr. Fukuichi Morita.

LAND SETTLEMENT IN BRITISH GUIANA

GOVERNMENT EXPERIMENT

(FROM OUR JAMAICA CORRESPONDENT)

A land settlement scheme for cultivators of moderate means has been launched by the Government of British Guiana.

Every house and every plot of land on the plantation which was brought under the scheme has been taken up; 85 cottages, each large enough for five people to live in, have been built on the property. The movement was started by the Colonization Committee in order that the district should produce rice and crops other than sugar. Each family has been provided with a preliminary allotment of three acres of land. Tenants will be able to obtain additional lands once they produce results on the existing holdings. The number of applicants far exceeded the holdings. The settlers are East Indians. At the opening ceremony on May 8 the acting Governor, Mr. C. D. Douglas-Jones, intimated that the object of the scheme was to ascertain the cost of settling people on the land and the possibility of doing so with success. The cost would be the same whether the people were settlers or colonists, except that in the latter case the additional cost of the passage to the Colony would be added. This cost would most likely be borne by the Colony. It was hoped in course of time to organize a credit society on the basis of cooperation, and also a cooperative rice milling plant. Those who had settled on the holdings would then be able to purchase the cottages and plots, and additional lands, if they made good.

INDIAN BROADCASTING BOARD

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

SIMLA, MAY 29

The Government of India has completed its selection of personnel for the new Indian Broadcasting Board. It may be recalled that in March the Government bought the assets of the Indian Broadcasting Corporation from the liquidator, and that it then handed over the concern to the Posts and Telegraphs Department to be run on the old lines until a new Board could be constituted to take charge.

The Board will have as chairman the member of the Viceroy's Council concerned, and its other members will be two non-official members of the Legislative Assembly, two other non-officials and two officials. Of the officials, one will be a financial adviser, and the other will probably be selected for his administrative experience. It is expected that the names of the members of the Board will be announced within a few days.

A WINGED VICTORY IN THASOS

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT)

ATHENS, MAY 30

The French School of Archaeology announces the discovery during its excavations in Thasos of a statue of the Winged Victory. This lacks its head and right hand, and holds a laurel branch in its left.

The Department of Archaeology has decided to repair the ancient theatre at Epidaurus and is considering the repair of that at Delphi in order to facilitate the production of classical plays in both places.

ANGLO-AMERICAN RELATIONS

MR. HEARST'S VIEWS

The Southam group of newspapers in Canada will publish to-day a statement made to their Washington Correspondent by Mr. William Randolph Hearst on the subject of Anglo-American relations.

I have long entertained the hope (said Mr. Hearst) that a cooperative agreement could be worked out in a practical way between the English-speaking peoples of the world. I think, however, that such an agreement can only be made possible on a basis of absolute equality of representation and influence between the British Empire and the United States of America. It can only be made lasting and effective through a full appreciation of the desirability of such an agreement on the part of both nations. At the present moment I am not very hopeful that any such understanding will ever be arrived at. The politicians of both nations are so busy making capital for themselves on all occasions that they seem to forget the greater importance of an achievement which would benefit not only their respective nations but the human race throughout the world.

For instance, the present Naval Treaty negotiated at London will probably do more to prevent a genuine agreement between English-speaking peoples than anything that has occurred in recent years. I am not going to say that the unfortunate character of the proposed Naval Treaty is due entirely to the manoeuvres of English statesmen to gain some trivial advantage. It is due primarily to the sad lack of comprehension on the part of American statesmen of the kind of agreement that should be cultivated between the English-speaking peoples.

To my mind entrance into the League of Nations would be a suicidal policy for the United States while an agreement with the British Empire would be a natural policy. In the League of Nations the United States would be a minority member in a combination the majority of whose members would be entirely out of harmony and sympathy with the policies and principles of our nation, while in an agreement with the British Empire the United States would be on an equal basis with a nation which is in the main in sympathy and harmony with our policies and principles. The only naval treaty that is needed between the United States and the British Empire is one that would allow England to build as big a navy as she pleases and one that would allow the United States to build exactly the kind of navy that she needs, with only one restriction—that it should be maintained at sufficient force to make the combined navies absolutely adequate for the defence of the two parties to the agreement. I do not think there should be any offensive agreement between the two nations, but merely a defensive one. To my mind the attitude of the statesmen of the United States with regard to agreements with other nations is not only fundamentally unsound but diametrically wrong, their plan being, first, to take inharmonious and unassimilable elements into the combination and, secondly, to make the combination as weak and negligible as possible instead of as strong and influential as possible. Any League of Nations or so-called Security Pact has been and is in no sense a peace pact, but is on the contrary a war pact designed and declared as a combination to "secure" foreign nations in forceful possession of the spoils of war. The United States of America does not want to be involved in these habitual European wars.

Another mistake that I think the politicians of the United States are making, and one that will interfere with the cooperative understanding between the English-speaking nations of the world, is their sky-high tariff policy. It does not necessarily follow that because a reasonable tariff is a good thing an unreasonable tariff is a good thing. The present sky-high tariff policy of the United States will undoubtedly react to the disadvantage of that nation commercially, industrially, and financially, and will tend to make friendly relations with all other countries more difficult. I am not at all opposed to the general tariff policy of the United States. I am a strong advocate of a reasonable tariff and have in times past been out of touch with my own Democratic Party because of my having held staunchly to pro-tariff views. If I were an Englishman to-day I would be in favour of the policy advocated by Lord Beaverbrook and would sincerely believe in and earnestly strive to bring about a tariff wall for the British Empire as a whole and free trade between the component parts of the British Empire.

If this policy were in operation throughout the Empire I would advocate reciprocity agreements between the United States and the British Empire and would believe that this policy of reciprocity would tend to advance and cement the cooperative agreement between the two great nations.

As to the attitude of the Anglo-American combination towards other nations, I should say that the attitude should be and would be one of very friendly association combined with a very firm but friendly refusal to be drawn into any of their quarrels and conflicts. If the Anglo-American combination led to combinations among other nations, that I am sure would merely advance the progress of the world. I believe in combination, but let us begin by combining that which can naturally and advantageously be combined.

NEW COMMONWEALTH BANK BILL

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

CANBERRA, MAY 30

A Commonwealth Bank Bill, complementary to the Reserve Bank Bill at present before the House of Representatives, has been circulated. Its purpose is to constitute the Commonwealth Bank as a trading bank to be controlled by a governing manager and a deputy manager, both appointed by the Government, with the advice of chief officials, all of whom the governing manager is to appoint. The Melbourne Argus regards this as opening the door as widely as possible to political control. The bank's capital will be £20,000,000, including the reserve fund of the Commonwealth Savings Bank, whose operations the trading bank will take over.

OVERSEA FACTORIES FOR AUSTRALIA

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

CANBERRA, MAY 30

In the House of Representatives to-day Mr. Forde, Acting Minister of Customs, stated that oversea manufacturers who were intending to begin production within Australia in consequence of the new tariff included:—from the United States, Julius Kayser and Co. (holeproof hosiery), Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, Heinz Company; from Great Britain, Godfrey Phillips, Limited, Gilbey, Limited; Swedish Match Company; Philips Lamps (for the manufacture of radio receivers and parts); Bosch Aktien-Gesellschaft. In addition the Australian General Electric Company is taking up the manufacture of filament lamps.

BANK ROBBERY IN BUDAPEST

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT)

BUDAPEST, MAY 30

This morning a well-dressed man, wearing a mask and carrying a revolver, entered a room of the Hungarian Discount and Exchange Bank, where two officials were counting and placing in envelopes the monthly salaries of the employees. He forced the officials into an adjoining room, in which he locked them. Then he picked up the envelopes and made his escape through the window and by way of the back yard, leaving no clue. The amount stolen is 161,000 pengas, equivalent to about £6,000.

An application has been made by the CZECHOSLOVAK Government to the League of Nations for an extension of the time allowed for the ratification of the Convention on the abolition of import and export restrictions and prohibitions, which expires on May 31, as it is expected that the objections raised by the Czechoslovak agricultural interests and the motor-car industry will soon be overcome.

BRITISH MAYORS IN PARIS

RECEPTION BY THE MUNICIPALITY

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

PARIS, MAY 30

The Lord Mayor of London and the municipal delegations from the United Kingdom who are now on an official visit to Paris were entertained by the municipality at the Hôtel de Ville this evening. M. d'Andigné, the president of the Municipal Council, attended by its members and those of the General Council of the Seine, received the guests at the head of the grand staircase. The Lord Mayors and Mayors, wearing their full robes and insignia, were then conducted to the Salle des Fêtes, where the president of the Municipal Council and the Prefect of the Seine read brief addresses of welcome. The Lord Mayor of London replied on behalf of the British delegations, expressing their gratitude for the hospitality they had received from the city of Paris.

In the afternoon the municipal delegations met the British colony at a garden party at the British Embassy, and this morning they visited the British Institute and the Sorbonne. M. Maurain, vice-president of the council of the University of Paris, welcomed the delegations, and there was a brief ceremony in the great amphitheatre of the University. The party then visited the chapel and the tomb of Richelieu.

This evening's reception provided a fitting conclusion to a most successful visit, which has been greatly appreciated alike by hosts and guests. To-morrow the Lord Mayors and Mayors, with the exception of the Lord Mayor of London, will leave Paris to visit the cities of their adoption in the devastated areas.

FRENCH BANKNOTE CASE

ARTIST'S RIGHTS UPHELD

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

PARIS, MAY 29

Ever since the issue of a new 50-franc note two years ago strong criticisms have been made against the design it carries and the quality of its printing. These criticisms have now been reinforced by the full weight of judicial condemnation, as the Courts, at the request of the dead artist's heirs, have ordered the Bank of France to delete the artist's name, Luc-Olivier Merson, from all future issues, under a penalty of 10 francs for the issue of every note bearing the name.

The lawsuit was begun by the heirs, who contended that the artist's original design, made and accepted in 1910, had been altered out of recognition and entirely ruined as a work of art, and demanded the deletion of his signature. For the Bank of France it was argued that a banknote was not a work of art and that in any case the artist lost all rights in the design from the moment of its sale. In its judgment the Court held that the note as issued certainly justified the complaints made against it; that the original design must certainly be considered a work of art, seeing that the Bank of France had gone to the trouble of commissioning a well-known artist, paying him 3,000 francs (£120 before the War), and that therefore the Bank ought to have respected the fundamental rights of literary and artistic creators. The Court also awarded the nominal sum of one franc damages asked by the heirs.

THE MALTESE DISPUTE

FATHER CARTA'S VISIT TO ROME

MALTA, May 30.—Father Carta left last night to attend the Chapter of the Franciscan Order in Rome. The belief is general that he will not return to Malta. —Reuter.

⁂ It was in 1928 that Father Carta, who had been appointed temporary Commissary in Malta by the Minister-General of the Conventional Friars Minor (Franciscans), directed a Maltese Friar, Father Micallef, to proceed to the Convent of the Order in Messina as a disciplinary measure. The Government of Malta, thinking that Father Micallef was being punished not for ecclesiastical indiscipline, but on account of his political views, declined to grant an emigration permit in his case, whereupon Father Carta countermanded his order for the Friar's departure. After the matter had been taken up by the Opposition Father Carta again ordered his subordinate to leave, but again withdrew the order, and subsequently the Vatican dealt with Father Micallef in a different way and sent Mgr. Pascal Robinson, Titular Archbishop of Tyana, as Apostolic Visitor to the Island.

RUSSIAN CROP PROSPECTS

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

RIGA, MAY 30

The Soviet Government has published a review of crop prospects based on information available up to May 20.

It says that winter crops in Ukraine and North Caucasus are somewhat better than the average, in parts of the Urals and the Crimea and in the Provinces around Moscow they are below the average, and in other districts they are up to the average. Up to the present the rainfall has been sufficient in Ukraine, the South Urals and several of the Northern Provinces, but elsewhere insufficient. In south-east European Russia the crops had been affected by the drought, but recent rains had improved the outlook.

The report deals only with the conditions of the crops sown, and gives no details of the extent of land under cultivation, which appears to be much below that contemplated in the Soviet plans, concerning which authoritative and approximate figures are difficult to obtain.

UNREST IN SPAIN

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

MADRID, MAY 30

Several noteworthy incidents have occurred in different parts of Spain during the past week. At Alicante and Almansa religious processions were attacked by bands of roughs, and the police had to restore order. At San Sebastian a demonstration in favour of reopening the gambling saloons at the Casino, closed down under the Dictatorship, degenerated into a riot in which lampposts were wrecked, tramcar windows smashed, and the seats in public gardens torn up. At Bilbao several strikes have occurred or are threatening, while at Madrid an attempt was made to assassinate the secretary of the Monarchist Students' Association, who received a knife wound in the chest. Shots were also fired, apparently without provocation, at a group of workmen.

ALL QUIET AT RANGOON

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT)

RANGOON, MAY 30

All was quiet in Rangoon to-day. Business has been resumed, and a Conciliation Board is adjusting the differences between Burman and Indian labour employed on shipping. About 50 ships are in harbour awaiting a final settlement, but meanwhile are using their own crews for loading and unloading.

The latest hospital returns show 91 dead and 788 injured. The injured comprise five Europeans and Anglo-Indians, 71 Burmese, 26 Moslems, 13 Chinese, and 673 Hindus. Of the total injured only 42 are gunshot cases.

BRITISH POLICY IN PALESTINE

JEWISH DISAPPOINTMENT

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT)

JERUSALEM, MAY 30

The White Paper announcing the British Government's substantial acceptance of all the findings and recommendations of the Shaw Commission has provoked bitter comments among the local Jews, who up to the last moment had cherished the hope that the Government would not accept them at their face value. In Jewish eyes, the findings showed excessive simplicity in admitting the Arab version of the ultimate and immediate causes of the outbreaks in August, 1929, a version which the Jews consider to have been largely fictitious. They had hoped that the Home Government would have manifested a deeper penetration, whereas it has, in their opinion, displayed a crescendo of activity in crushing Jewish hopes and discrediting Jewish activity, after benefiting from Jewish sacrifices and generosity in the building up of derelict Palestine.

For the first time during the last 10 years there is extremely acid criticism among every element of the Jewish community, directed against both the intelligence and sincerity of Great Britain and also what is held to be her weakness in capitulating to Arab hooliganism, while ignoring the bad effects of offending Jewish friendship throughout the world.

The Palestine Executive of the Zionist Agency has published a letter which it sent a month ago to the Government of Palestine on the subject of the Shaw Commission's acceptance of the view that immigration certificates had been put at the sole disposal of the Jewish Labour Federation. The Executive denies this, and in its letter explains the procedure which leaves the selection of immigrants with the Zionist offices in Europe and centres of Jewish emigration. Immigrants, it claims, are chosen solely on the basis of requirements, as notified to the Palestine Executive, and quite regardless of the political affiliations of the men selected. The Executive complains that the Shaw Commission accepted as well-founded a charge to the contrary solely on the evidence in camera of Mr. Hyamson, the Chief Immigration Officer, thus making it impossible for the Zionist Executive to produce evidence in support of its contention.

LONG-DISTANCE TELEPHONY

BERLIN TO AEROPLANE OVER LOS ANGELES

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

BERLIN, MAY 30

At 11 o'clock last night, Berlin time, a wireless telephonic conversation was conducted over a distance of some 7,500 miles between Berlin and an aeroplane flying over Los Angeles. The aeroplane carried as passengers Mr. Millikin, an American aeronautical expert, and Professor von Karman, of the Aachen Technical College, who carried on a long conversation through the Hearst transmitting station at San Francisco with Dr. Milch, a director of the Deutsche Luft-hansa, who used an ordinary telephone apparatus in Berlin. The transmission was so clear that Dr. Milch, who unconsciously raised his voice for this long-distance experiment, had to be asked by the aeroplane passengers over Los Angeles not to shout so loudly. Every word, they explained, was quite clear if he spoke normally.

THE DISSOLUTION IN CANADA

SESSION WOUND UP

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

OTTAWA, MAY 30

Yesterday, just before the House of Commons adjourned for dinner, Mr. Mackenzie King, the Prime Minister, made an appeal for a special effort to be made to wind up business to-day. He pointed out that if this were not accomplished it would be impossible to hold the General Election before August 11, and, while he hoped his Government would be returned to power, there was the possibility of a stalemate with no party possessing a decisive majority. In that event the new Parliament would have to assemble at once to decide what Government should rule, but by law it could not be summoned for 40 days after the polling. Then further time would be occupied in discussions and he felt that if the elections were not held on July 28 and their result was indecisive there could be no representation of Canada at the Imperial Conference until its proceedings were well under way. He said that the Government had no intention of forcing a dissolution until business should have been wound up in an orderly manner, and that the decision about the date of the election really lay with the Opposition groups.

As a result of this appeal the Prime Minister obtained assurances from the other leaders that they would cooperate with the Government in finishing business to-day, and the House of Commons sat till 1 a.m. this morning. In the afternoon it gave unanimous approval to the Sockeye Salmon Treaty, in which changes making it satisfactory to the Conservative Party have been introduced, and in the evening it rapidly passed estimates amounting to $90,000,000 (£18,000,000).

Unless unforeseen developments arise the stage is now set for a Dissolution on Saturday and a General Election on July 28.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

The Chamber reassembles on Tuesday, but as a mass of important legislation remains over from the last session, the Government's programme is not expected to contain any surprises. The principal items are the Government's Bill for improving the national equipment, the Colonial exploitation loans and the ratification of the Petrol Agreement. It is expected that an occasion will be found for discussing the Naval Conference.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

SIMLA, MAY 30

The Secretary of State's assurance in the House of Commons on Monday that the Government intended to govern and would not permit the Congress to carry out its new Allahabad programme of non-payment of taxes, boycott of public servants, and intensive picketing of cloth and liquor shops, was followed to-night by stern action by the Viceroy, who promulgated two Ordinances.

One deals with the situation in which a person who withholds land revenue is penalized, while the person who incites him escapes. The new Ordinance makes the instigation not to pay or to defer payment of land revenue or of any tax, cess, or dues payable to the Government or to any local authority, or of rent of agricultural land, a cognizable non-bailable offence, punishable with six months' imprisonment and/or a fine. Literature and pictures containing such incitement are made seizable.

The Viceroy, in a note issued with the Ordinance, says he trusts that, in taking measures to check at the outset a movement intended to disorganize the administration, and which must, if successful, damage the whole economic structure of society, he will have the support of all who desire to resist a plain threat to orderly progress and stable government. He reminds the public that at a meeting of the Working Committee of the All-India Congress recently at Allahabad a resolution was passed to the effect that the time had arrived for the inauguration of a no-tax campaign. He continues:—

Previous to the passing of this resolution a movement for the refusal of payment of land revenue had been started in certain districts of Gujarat, in Bombay Presidency, and attempts had been made in several other Provinces to persuade revenue and taxpayers to withhold payment of their liabilities. The decision [of the Congress Committee] above referred to contemplates a wide extension of the civil disobedience movement in the shape of an appeal to the masses, which must, if successful, involve grave reactions upon the administration and stability of the State.

DANGEROUS CONSEQUENCES

The taxes against which the movement is at present aimed are, the Viceroy continues, the sources of provincial revenue, and their non-payment would deprive the local Governments of a considerable part of the resources on which they depend for the efficient conduct of the reserved and transferred departments. Were the programme of the Congress to meet with any appreciable measure of success, its first result would be to deprive the people of the advantage of the beneficent activities in which the local Governments are now engaged. It is clear, however, that no Government can tolerate the non-payment of its dues and that the local Governments, confronted with a challenge of this nature, must exercise to the full the powers of realization with which they are by law invested. The consequences will inevitably be suffering and distress to those who respond to the incitements of the Congress. Thus, both in the interests of the State and of the persons whom it is the design of the Congress to lead astray, it is necessary to stop in its initial stages a movement so fraught with dangerous consequences.

While the law gives powers to proceed against persons who refuse to discharge their public liabilities, it does not include provisions by which effective action can be taken against those who, for political purposes, mislead and instigate others to their undoing. Having regard to these considerations, and to the necessity of firm and prompt action against a movement the object of which is to bring administration to a standstill, I have deemed it necessary to promulgate an Ordinance by which the local Governments may, as the necessity is established, be invested with powers to deal effectively with persons who instigate others to withhold the payment of certain lawful dues. I have thought it proper to include within the purview of the Ordinance certain liabilities—for instance, rent of agricultural land—which, although not included in the dues which form the present announced object of attack by the Congress, have been mentioned by them from time to time as coming within the scope of the civil disobedience movement, and would, indeed, in many parts of the country form the inevitable object of attack if any movement were initiated to withhold payment of revenue to the Government.

The powers taken under the Ordinance will not be used by local Governments to modify their land revenue policy or to attenuate in any way the concessions by way of suspensions, remissions, or otherwise, which it is their practice to grant. Nor will the Ordinance be used indirectly to give assistance to landlords in the normal process of realization of rent, or to facilitate the enhancement of rent. It will be confined strictly to its declared purpose—namely, to prevent the instigation in pursuance of a political movement to refuse the payments lawfully due.

This Ordinance is applicable to all India, but the provision for its operation is that the Governor-General in Council may empower any local Government to take action under it.

SECOND ORDINANCE

The other Ordinance deals with picketing and with the boycott of public servants.

From the beginning of the civil disobedience movement [the Viceroy says] it has been part of the programme of the Congress to use various methods of picketing in order to make their will prevail. At a recent meeting of the Working Committee of the All-India Congress Committee, held at Allahabad, resolutions were passed which urged the adoption of such methods on more intensive lines. Information received by my Government makes it plain that activities of this kind are now being pursued in various places in such a manner as gravely to interfere with the liberty of individuals in many directions.

The most common object for which picketing and other kinds of molestation and intimidation are being employed is for the purpose of preventing the sale of foreign goods or liquor. It is no part of the duty of my Government, and certainly it is not their desire, to take steps against any legitimate movements directed to these ends. They are anxious to see the promotion of indigenous Indian industries, and it is perfectly legitimate for any person, in the advocacy of this object, to urge the use of Indian goods to the utmost extent of which the Indian industry is capable. Nor have I anything but respect for those who preach the cause of temperance, but what is not legitimate is for those who desire these ends, proper as they are in themselves, to pursue them by means amounting, in effect, to the intimidation of individuals, and to the endeavour to force their views on others, not by argument, but by coercive effect and fear. When resort is had to such methods it becomes necessary for the Government to protect the natural freedom of action of those who may wish to sell and those who may wish to buy.

Unscrupulous efforts are also being made by the organizers of the civil disobedience movement to bring pressure to bear upon Government servants to resign their posts, or to fail in their duty. The methods employed include not only various forms of molestation and intimidation, but also definite attempts to use the weapon of boycott against Government servants. Thus, it is found that in different parts of the country not only are the residences of Government servants picketed and they themselves and their relatives subjected to threats of injury to life or property, but organized attempts are made to refuse them necessary supplies, the use of transport, and the tenancy of houses. These methods have reached their maximum intensity in Gujarat, but they are also being practised in other parts of the country.

In normal circumstances, when intimidation is a comparatively rare offence, the ordinary law suffices, but when, as now, intimidation in its various forms is carefully organized and constitutes an important part of the programme of a movement designed to paralyse Government and coerce the public, it is necessary to see that powers be adequate to deal rapidly and effectively with the menace to public liberty.

I have, accordingly, thought it essential to promulgate this Ordinance, which is designed to protect the public in general against molestation and intimidation, and to check the boycott of public servants. These powers will not be used to impede or interfere with the legitimate promotion of an economic movement which has for its object the furtherance of indigenous enterprise, nor will they be exercised in regard to any genuine labour dispute unconnected with political objects. The Ordinance is directed only against certain illegitimate activities which are being organized by the leaders of the civil disobedience movement. It will be withdrawn as soon as those activities cease. The Ordinance, moreover, has been so drafted as to be applied only where powers are actually required; it will not be applied to any Province in which the local Government has not satisfied my Government that the activities of the civil disobedience movement have rendered its application necessary within the Province.

The powers to deal with molestation or with the boycott of Government servants will come into force only in those areas in which the local Government considers that the situation necessitates their application. But where the situation so demands, I have no doubt that it is my duty to empower the local Government to give protection to those who merely desire to carry on their lawful business and pursuits without let or hindrance, and to safeguard public servants, so far as they may, against attempts to deprive them, by means of the boycott, of the ordinary requirements of daily life.

Both Ordinances apply immediately in the Bombay Presidency.

 The Working Committee of the All-India Congress met at Allahabad in the early days of May and passed 23 resolutions. It decided on the boycott of liquor shops and of foreign cloth, not only in regard to future purchases, but also existing stocks; on the initiation of a campaign for non-payment of land revenue and taxes in certain Provinces and areas, and for breaches of the Forest Laws; and on the boycott of British banking, insurance, shipping, and other institutions. In The Times of May 26 our Simla Correspondent gave an account of the mass tyranny by which the Congress was giving effect to the Allahabad decisions. In one case shopkeepers were warned that if they sold foreign goods their shops would be looted, and in another case cloth was actually stolen from a shop and burnt.

INTENSIVE CONGRESS CAMPAIGN

COERCION AND BOYCOTT

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

BOMBAY, MAY 30

Reports from several parts of Gujarat show that for some time Congress workers have been concentrating their energies on an intensive propaganda for the non-payment of taxes and for securing the resignation of village officials. Public meetings have been convened for this purpose, and agitators have been resorting to intimidation, coercion, and social boycott. The campaign does not appear to have been anything like so successful as the Congress publicity organizations would have the public believe. In Kaira District, where the Congress activities have been more intense than elsewhere, and where the results cannot, therefore, be regarded as symptomatic of the general state of disaffection elsewhere in Gujarat, it is stated by Congress officials that over 1,800 village headmen, accountants, and messengers have resigned. The official records, however, show that the actual number is much less. It is noteworthy that the campaign has practically failed to influence the talatis [accountants], and even the Congress literature confirms this, which from the Government's point of view is most significant. The resignations of patels [headmen] and messengers have not seriously affected the collection of revenue, which had made substantial progress before the movement began. One reason for the disparity between the official and the Congress statistics is that many of the so-called resignations are not genuine, and that many others were withdrawn shortly after they had been tendered.

AN INDIAN INITIATIVE

Bombay is at present full of rumours about the course of discussions between Sir Frederick Sykes, the Governor, and Mr. Husseinbhoy Lalji, president of the Indian Merchants' Chamber, which have been taking place at Mahableshwar [where the Governor is in residence] during the past two or three days. Mr. Lalji went there to discuss the possibility of bringing to an end the present situation, laying stress on the harm which is being done to business interests, and on the growing estrangement between the Indian and English communities. No official report has been issued, and perhaps the most that can be said is that the continuance of the conversations encourages the hope that they will prove fruitful.

Another raid on the Dharasana salt depôt this morning was repulsed by the police, who charged with sticks. About 10 Congress volunteers were injured. The police lately have been arresting batches of volunteers arriving at Dharasana, returning them by train to their place of origin, and releasing them there. Preparations are being made for a mass attack on the Wadala salt depôt on Sunday.

The boycott is taking an unexpected turn. The committee of the Hindu Gymkhana Club has received a requisition signed by over 100 members for a meeting, at which it is proposed to move a resolution that Hindus should not take part in the coming quadrangular cricket tournament and matches against the visiting M.C.C. team. Since it was formed some years ago, the Hindu Gymkhana has been conducted on the customary sporting lines, but it appears that a youthful section of Gujarati members is now seeking officially to boycott the European community even in sport. The quadrangular matches, which always attract great interest in Western India, will be played at Poona in September. It is reported that the sponsors of the resolution will propose the sending of women volunteers to picket the Poona cricket ground if any Hindu takes part.

KARACHI SALT RAIDERS FOR DHARASANA

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT)

KARACHI, MAY 30

A first batch of 20 Satyagraha volunteers entrained for the Dharasana salt depôt this morning in charge of Professor H. D. Mariwalla. At a mass meeting last night the volunteers were garlanded and taken in procession through the city. A crowd of several hundred persons was present on the station platform this morning, and shouted revolutionary cries as the train left.

PIRATE OUTRAGE AT SHANGHAI

PAY LAUNCH SEIZED

BRITISH ENGINEERS WOUNDED

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT)

SHANGHAI, MAY 30

In the lower part of Shanghai harbour this morning pirates attacked a Whangpoo Conservancy launch and shot and seriously wounded two foreigners, killed one Chinese and wounded four others, two of them badly—all employees of the Conservancy.

As usual on the 30th of the month, the launch was making the rounds of the dredgers and other Conservancy vessels in the harbour in order to pay the workmen. For this purpose it was carrying a large stock of dollars, as was evidently known to the pirates. The Conservancy launch had reached the first dredger when a second launch, which had followed it from the jetty, drew alongside, and its crew of seven Chinese suddenly opened fire with automatic pistols on the Conservancy boat. T. T. Sun, one of the Conservancy engineers, was killed instantly. Messrs. J. G. Irvine and J. R. Harder, also engineers, fell badly wounded, and the ruffians continued to shoot at them as they lay on the deck. Mr. Harder is not expected to recover, and Mr. Irvine's chance is slight. Four Chinese were also wounded.

The pirates, deserting their own launch, locked the Chinese crew in the cabin of the Conservancy launch, which they took to a distant part of the Chinese City Bund, where they quietly decamped with all the money amounting to $22,000 [£2,200].

The increasing boldness of the armed robber fraternity was further illustrated last Tuesday evening, when in broad daylight in the Avenue Foch, an important road dividing the International and French Settlements, the assistant manager of a leading Chinese bank was carried off by kidnappers, who killed his bodyguard and wounded his chauffeur. These crimes are undoubtedly connected with the breakdown of authority consequent on the present ruinous civil wars.

The harbour waters of Shanghai are controlled by the Chinese Government and not by the Shanghai Municipal Council.

SHANGHAI, May 30.—Mr. J. G. Irvine, who was wounded in the attack by pirates this morning, is a dredging engineer of Renfrew. He received five wounds in the abdomen and shoulder and was rendered unconscious. Mr. Jack Harder, the other foreigner wounded, is an Australian who has been long resident in Shanghai.—Reuter.

MISS JOHNSON TO REST

DOCTOR'S ORDERS

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT)

BRISBANE, MAY 30

Miss Johnson attended several functions to-day, but her doctor ordered the cancellation of the University Women's luncheon and other engagements in her honour in order to secure her sufficient rest in preparation for her southern trip. She is not ill, but must rest in order to avoid overtaxing her strength.

Addressing the Women's Christian Temperance Conference, Miss Johnson said that when she was lost at sea on her way out she prayed for guidance—as she had every day of her journey. Just when she thought everything was lost, a double rainbow appeared around her machine, and she saw an opening in the clouds.

Miss Johnson gave a happy feminine touch to her speech at the Lady Mayoress's reception. She said:—

I am just as feminine as anyone here. It is lovely to wear beautiful clothes again. I feel like Cinderella, and wonder if I shall awake and find black people around me. I keep pinching myself to see if it is all true.

WOOL TEXTILE DISPUTE

ATTITUDE OF OPERATIVES' EXECUTIVE

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT)

BRADFORD, MAY 30

The position of the wool textile wages dispute, the stoppage in connexion with which is practically confined to the Bradford and Huddersfield districts, is likely to be determined more clearly on Monday when the operatives' executive meets. Four unions, covering the majority of the workers who still remain out, are balloting on the question of the acceptance of the terms posted at the mills, and most of these would have cast their votes before the announcement was made that the executive are willing to make agreements providing for the full acceptance of the terms in nine months after the resumption of work, lesser interim reductions to operate.

The employers' secretary, Mr. Ernest J. Martin, definitely states that the proposal will not be accepted. Inasmuch as the operatives' executive has full power to deal with the dispute, it may be assumed that it will decide on its policy when the results of the ballot are received on Monday. As on previous occasions, it is likely that the chief opponents of any settlement involving acceptance of the employers' terms, even on the deferred plan, will be what are called the craft unions. These are not taking part in the ballot, although their executive committees are represented on the general executive committee. The latter will meet on Monday in the knowledge that there is no hope of settlement on the lines of their latest proposal, which was drawn up after a few Huddersfield and Bradford firms had made suggestions for settlements. The operatives' executive committee is evidently doing its best to cope with a difficult situation from the point of view of taking concerted action by all the unions, but the signs at the moment are more in the direction of acceptance of the employers' terms, with or without an agreement by the executive, than has previously been the case.

THE INVALIDS

Sir Percy FitzPatrick is reported in a Reuter telegram from Cape Town to be critically ill on board the liner Windsor Castle, which is due to arrive at the Cape on Monday.

The condition of the Bishop of Crediton, who is seriously ill at Vale Ridge, Instow (Devon), was reported yesterday to be unchanged.

Sir Joseph Ward, lately Prime Minister of New Zealand, was reported to be slightly weaker yesterday afternoon.

Sir Frederick Eckstein, whose condition has been causing anxiety, was last night stated to be maintaining his recent slight improvement.

LONDON NAVAL TREATY

U.S. "WAR SCARE" ATMOSPHERE

THE SENATE INQUIRY

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

WASHINGTON, MAY 30

The Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate will meet behind closed doors on Monday and will consider such communications between Great Britain, Japan, and the United States on the subject of naval limitation—the Press calls them "secret documents"—as the Secretary of State in his discretion has transmitted. It is interesting and important to learn that the Chairman of the Committee, Senator Borah, now feels that the recent public hearings have created a "war scare" atmosphere and that the non-ratification of the London Treaty could not fail prejudicially to affect Japanese and American relations.

This is unquestionably true, and its truth is even apparent to some of the admirals who have helped to create this dangerous atmosphere. They are perturbed by criticism in the Press, and the fact that Senator Johnson (California) has now taken upon himself publicly the responsibility for calling them and eliciting their testimony does not console them. Senator Johnson describes the adverse newspaper comment as brutal, unjustified, and outrageous, and has nothing but praise for the professional sailors who have assisted him in his endeavour to show that the Treaty is perilously advantageous to Japan. They were not volunteers but were summoned to speak "as witnesses testify in court," he remarks, but he says nothing of the privilege, which responsible officers might reasonably have asked and have been accorded, of answering certain questions in private.

Senator Johnson will be the most violent of the Treaty's opponents, and will, of course, declare that he has the Navy behind him. It seems that he can also count on the support of the Navy League, an organization of some 5,000 members. The president of the league, Mr. William Howard Gardiner, made a speech on the wireless yesterday and borrowed an idea from Admiral Mark Bristol, the chairman of the General Board, who regrets that the enormous financial superiority of the United States will not be allowed to have full play. "When we realize," said Mr. Gardiner, "that without a disproportionate burden we could spend on the American Navy over three times what the British spend on theirs and over ten times what the Japanese could afford, we see what it means when it is said that from their point of view one of their purposes in naval reduction is to reduce the American Navy to a level on which they can afford to compete with us."

MR. HOOVER'S HOPE

The President of the Navy League desires that the question of ratification shall be deferred to the December session of Congress, and to play for time is, in fact, the major purpose of the opposition. President Hoover still cherishes the hope that action may be had before the adjournment of Congress, which would relieve him of the necessity of calling the Senate in special session, but the impatience of the House of Representatives to get away makes this all but impossible. Accordingly, there are now suggestions that it might be difficult to get a quorum of the Senate, or that, after a week or two of debate, that body might be persuaded to adjourn without a vote on the Treaty. Behind these suggestions, of course, is the knowledge that there are not enough voices in the Senate to defeat the Treaty if a roll-call is taken.

Incidentally, Senator Swanson (Virginia) has a reservation in course of being drafted which would make it clear that, if Great Britain or Japan should take advantage of the "escalator" clause the United States should be unrestricted as to the type of vessel it might simultaneously build. Thus if Great Britain should be forced to lay down additional tonnage in light cruisers or destroyers, this country might construct an equal total in 8in. gun cruisers, a suggestion made some time ago by the ingenious Mr. Fred Britten, Chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives. Senator Swanson, I understand, would be satisfied if an assurance to this effect could be secured in writing from the British and Japanese Governments, and has asked the Secretary of State to communicate with London and Tokyo to this effect.

THE MELUN BULLFIGHT

OVER-ZEALOUS POLICE

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

PARIS, MAY 30

The Minister of the Interior and the Prefect of the Department of the Seine et Marne have prohibited any further "bullfights" at Melun. The display there yesterday was harmless enough so far as the bulls and bull-fighters were concerned, but was marked by extraordinary violence on the part of the police, both mounted and on foot, who charged about the arena and handled harmless people who had ventured to protest against the display as though they had been dangerous criminals. Men and women were knocked about, handcuffed, and dragged out of the arena, and many had to be treated in hospital. The bull was merely teased by the bull-fighters, but, though his horns were padded, a horse was badly hurt.

TELEPHONE SERVICE TO ESTONIA

The Postmaster-General announces the establishment, from June 2, of a public telephone service between this country and Estonia. Communication will be limited at the outset to calls between subscribers in the London Telephone Area and subscribers in Tallinn (Reval).

The charges for a unit call (three minutes' duration) from London to Tallinn (Reval) are:—8 a.m. to 7 p.m., 22s. 3d.; 7 p.m. to 8 a.m., 13s. 6d. Subscription calls at half the day charges may be obtained between 7 p.m. and 8 a.m.

THE GLADSTONE PAPERS

The publication of the series of articles based on the Gladstone papers preserved at Hawarden, which Mr. H. N. Gladstone is handing over to the British Museum, will be resumed on Monday.

GOLF

R. T. Jones, of Atlanta, Georgia, and R. H. Wethered will meet in the final round of the Amateur Golf Championship over the Old Course at St. Andrews this afternoon. Jones beat G. Voigt in the semi-final round yesterday afternoon, and Wethered beat W. L. Hartley. Our Golf Correspondent's report and the results will be found on page 6.

EDUCATION BILL

COST OF THE NEW PROPOSALS

FUTURE OF VOLUNTARY SCHOOLS

WESTMINSTER, FRIDAY

The House of Commons faced to-day the cost of the compulsory raising of the school leaving age, together with the proposed maintenance grants to parents, and approved by a majority of 116 the financial resolution on which the Education Bill is founded.

SIR CHARLES TREVELYAN admitted that his estimate of the expenditure was at best tentative. He placed the annual charge for extra accommodation and enlarged teaching staffs at £2,500,000, of which 84 per cent. would be borne by the Exchequer. This figure was based on the year 1938, when the exceptionally high number of children born immediately after the War would have passed through the 14-15 age group, and conditions would be more or less stabilized. The increase in the number of teachers due to the new age group was estimated at 7,500. Maintenance allowances would probably cost about £3,000,000 in 1932-33, the first full year during which these would be payable, but there was a possibility of an increase to £4,400,000 in the following two years, this being based on the supposition that 60 per cent. of the children in the new age group would be eligible for this assistance. Taking all the expenditure mentioned, the Exchequer, it was calculated, would bear 70 per cent., a proportion which was not ungenerous. Difficult as the framing of these estimates had been, difficulty rose to impossibility when an attempt was made to arrive at the cost of the contributions by local authorities to voluntary schools.

UNIONIST CRITICISM

LORD EUSTACE PERCY again expressed his objection to maintenance allowances, coupled with compulsory attendance, which would be restricted by the narrow limits laid down by regulations of the Board of Education. This rigid system, wholly different from the elastic system which now permitted local authorities to give allowances in selected cases, stamped the whole measure as unemployment relief and set it outside the sphere of education. Speaking of the voluntary schools, especially those in rural areas, he advocated a scheme of capital grants paid by the State, which would lift the whole burden off the rates.

The debate afterwards became general, and members warned the Government that efforts would be made in Committee to amend the provisions relating to Church schools. SIR CHARLES TREVELYAN, while repeating the warning that drastic alterations, threatening the balanced adjustment of the concordat, could not be agreed to, said that, after amendments had been tabled, he would consider the possibility of an accommodation being reached.

WEEK-END WEATHER

UNSETTLED OUTLOOK

(FROM OUR WEATHER CORRESPONDENT)

Rain spread quickly from the Continent across Southern England yesterday owing to the northward movement of a depression over France. Thunderstorms broke out in Kent, yielding nearly an inch of rain at Lympne and over half an inch at Folkestone. The bad weather did not extend far to the north because there was more east than south in the wind.

At Cromer nearly 12 hours of sunshine were recorded up to 6 p.m., and almost equally good records were reported from many places in eastern England and also from Scotland. Last night the French depression was centred over Brittany and the western part of the Channel, and was still moving northwards.

The weather during the week-end is expected to be rather unsettled over most of England, except possibly in the North, with some sunny periods. Further local thunderstorms are not unlikely. In Scotland little change is expected.

REMARKABLE SAPPHIRE FOUND

A RECORD STONE

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT)

RANGOON, MAY 30

A correspondent writes:—

Writing from memory, I think this is the largest sapphire of which there is any record. I remember seeing specimens weighing from 100 to 150 carats, of course after cutting, and I believe one weighing 165 carats changed hands a few years ago. There are two in the Natural History Museum, New York, presented by Mr. Pierpont Morgan, one of which is said to be the largest in the world, and the other the most beautiful. I do not know the weight of the New York specimen, but I should imagine the stone now found is much heavier.

It will be interesting to see how it fares in the hands of the lapidary to whom it may be entrusted for cutting, and how little or how much it may be necessary to reduce it. Even if the presence of flaws renders it necessary to cut it into several portions, as was done with the Cullinan diamond, it may be possible to produce one portion weighing about 300 carats at the finish. But this cutting will present a problem, bearing in mind the tendency of the sapphire to have all its colour in one part of the stone.

EDINBURGH UNIVERSITY

SIR JAMES BARRIE ELECTED CHANCELLOR

Sir James Barrie was yesterday declared elected Chancellor of Edinburgh University, in succession to the late Lord Balfour.

The counting of the votes was completed yesterday, the result being:—

| | |
|---|---|
| Sir James Barrie .. .. | 4,582 |
| Lord Linlithgow .. .. | 2,642 |
| Majority .. .. | 1,940 |

About 50 per cent. polled. There were at first three candidates, Lord Macmillan being the third. On the first vote 102 voted for Sir James Barrie, 86 for Lord Linlithgow, and 27 for Lord Macmillan. The name of Lord Macmillan was then eliminated, and a second vote resulted in 120 voting for Sir James Barrie and 101 for Lord Linlithgow. A postal poll was then held.

Sir James graduated at Edinburgh University. He was Rector of St. Andrews University from 1919 to 1922.

FLAG RETIREMENT

The Admiralty announced yesterday that Rear-Admiral W. de M. Egerton, D.S.O., has been placed on the Retired List, at his own request, to date June 1.

HOSPITAL SUNDAY

The Acting Lord Mayor and the Sheriffs of the City of London will go in State to the Morning Service at Westminster Abbey and the Afternoon Service at St. Paul's Cathedral to-morrow, when collections will be made in the churches and chapels of the Metropolis in aid of the Hospital Sunday Fund.

PRESS OF THE EMPIRE

SPECIAL NUMBER TO-DAY

The Times presents to its readers to-day, as part of the ordinary issue of the paper, a Special Number on the Empire Press. An attractive feature is a double-page map showing the British submarine cable, radio, and air communications of the Empire.

The purpose of the Number is to serve as a guide to the Imperial Press Conference which opens in London next week, and it contains the programme of the conference and biographies and portraits of the visiting delegates and of the organizing committee. The history of the preceding conferences is told, and some account is given of the work and aims of the Empire Press Union, the permanent organization which periodically brings the leading journalists of the Empire together.

The general reader will find in the Number much to interest him in special contributions which reveal the methods by which the great newspapers of the Empire collect the news of the world and distribute it to their readers. Among the subjects discussed are the transmission of news by telegraph, cable, telephone, and wireless; broadcasting in the Empire; the reception of news at sea by wireless telegraphy and wireless telephony; the distribution of newspapers by post, by the great distributing agencies, by railways, by aeroplane, and by ships at sea; and the development of newspapers as advertising media. Other articles deal with the foundation of newspapers in the colonizing days of our Oversea Dominions, and with some remarkable achievements of foreign and special correspondents in the business of newsgetting.

RIOT IN FRENCH INDO-CHINA

POLICE ATTACKED BY MOB

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

PARIS, MAY 30

According to a message from Saigon, a serious riot broke out yesterday at Chomoi, Cochin-China, during which the police had to open fire, killing at least three men and wounding many others.

It appears that for some time past agitators have been urging the peasants to refuse payment of taxes. A small party of police from Sadec, under the chef de sûreté, set out in motor-cars early yesterday morning for Chomoi to arrest the ringleaders. On their arrival at the village they were met by a large crowd carrying red banners with various slogans against the payment of taxes. The mob at first obeyed the order to disperse, but after the arrival of another mob 1,000 strong they attacked the police with bamboo staves, cutlasses, and stones. The police opened fire and cleared the road for their retreat, later returning with reinforcements and picking up three dead and two wounded left behind by the mob in its flight.

Later 15 men were arrested; they were found to be in possession of revolutionary tracts bearing the hammer and sickle device. The inhabitants of the district have hitherto been quiet and law-abiding, and the existing police force was therefore small. Reinforcements are being drafted into the area and the authorities have announced their intention of putting down violence with the greatest energy.

EUROPEAN AIR MAILS

AN INCLUSIVE CHARGE

The Postmaster-General announces that on and from June 2 the inclusive charge for air letters, &c., to any European country to which an air service is advertised will be as follows:—

| | |
|---|---|
| First ounce .. .. .. | 4d. |
| Each subsequent ounce .. .. | 3d. |

These charges will include both ordinary postage and air fee.

The countries to which the uniform charges are applicable are:—

Austria, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Holland, Hungary, Italy, Norway, Poland, Russia, Sweden, and Switzerland.

A special notice embodying the new rates will be sent to all those who regularly receive copies of the Air Mail leaflet, and copies of it can be obtained free of charge at any post office.

 The new rates represent a general reduction. According to the Post Office Guide the present rates, in addition to the ordinary postage of 2½d. for the first ounce and 1½d. for each subsequent ounce, are 2d. an ounce for the nearer European countries, 3d. an ounce for Austria, Czechoslovakia, Poland, and the Scandinavian countries, and 4d. an ounce for Greece.

SOVIET PROPAGANDA AMONG NEGROES

"SUCCESS IN SOUTH AFRICA"

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

RIGA, MAY 30

Comrade Heller, who has lately been playing a prominent part in the Profintern [Red Trade Union International], has announced that although the British Labour Government had forbidden the holding of a world negro conference in London, the Profintern would not abandon the idea, and the conference would be held "at another place."

Since last spring, Heller declared, "tremendous success had been achieved in rousing the blacks in South Africa," and good work was being done also among the 2,000,000 negro toilers in the United States engaged in agriculture and industry.

CONSUMERS' COUNCIL BILL

POSSIBLE LIBERAL SUPPORT

The Standing Committee of the House of Commons which is to consider the Consumers' Council Bill will meet for the first time on Tuesday morning. The Government are now aware of the line which is likely to be followed by the Liberal members on the Committee. They take the view that the main objects of the Bill are excellent, but they consider that it should be made perfectly clear that the machinery proposed is intended to deal only with trade monopolies and combines. They fear that, as the Bill is at present drawn, it might be possible to conduct an inquisition into the business of small traders. They do not believe that this is really the intention of the Government, and they will ask for assurances on the point. It is assumed that if the Government will put forward amendments to clarify the position the Liberals will cooperate in getting the Bill through Committee.

The Scottish Law Officers are considering the possibility of drafting a Bill to deal with the subject of "irregular marriages" in Scotland. Representations have been made by both religious and legal bodies as to the desirability of bringing the Scottish law into line with that of England by establishing a standard form of civil ceremony, and this would incidentally involve the abolition of the Gretna Green marriage.

The Prime Minister will spend the Whitsuntide recess at Lossiemouth, and hopes to travel by air on Friday. There was a certain amount of amusement at Westminster yesterday over a telegram which he had received from Winnipeg, which read:—

Imperial Veterans Re-establishment Association, Winnipeg, congratulate you on your splendid victory.—JAMES GRANT, President.

No explanation was forthcoming as to the "victory" to which the telegram referred, and members were left in doubt as to whether it referred to the departure of Sir Oswald Mosley from the Ministry; the majority of 29 on the unemployment debate; the result of the Central Nottingham by-election; or was intended as a belated tribute to the London Naval Treaty.

When the adjournment motion is taken in the House of Commons on Friday there will be a full dress debate on Russian propaganda and the resumption of relations with the Soviet Government. It will be opened by Commander Oliver Locker-Lampson, and Sir Austen Chamberlain will also speak.

The Liberal peers and members of the House of Commons are to entertain Mr. Lloyd George at dinner on Tuesday evening, when a presentation will be made to him to mark his 40 years' association with the work of Parliament.

ALLEGED PUBLIC FRAUDS IN CHICAGO

LEADING CITIZENS ARRESTED

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT)

NEW YORK, MAY 30

Ten prominent Chicago politicians were indicted yesterday, charged with conspiracy to defraud the citizens of sums amounting to $5,000,000 (£1,000,000). All are trustees or officers of an independent administrative body known as the "Sanitary District," which is in charge of various development works in the city.

The alleged frauds aresaid to have been carried out by the customary means of dishonest contracts with private firms, "padded" pay rolls, and similar devices, with such success that two of the men are said to have deposited in the course of 18 months $1,250,000 (£250,000) and $500,000 (£100,000) respectively, none of which had been reported in their income-tax returns.

THE PRESS AND THE EMPIRE

In an almanac of our own times the present year will surely be given a special note recording its significance for the British Empire. In 1930, it may be said, the peoples of the Empire began a new period of incisive thinking about their partnership and started seriously to inquire how they might multiply its concrete forms and increase its productive power. And it may be added that the year was also without precedent for the number and variety of representative Empire gatherings, partly coincident with, but still more the consequence of, this newly defined purpose in Imperial life. One conference follows another, and all are preparing the way for the Conference of Governments which will, in the common hope, find executive measures to interpret and apply the great impulse of public opinion so well tested and registered by its unofficial forerunners. To-day another welcome is preparing, and none will be more genuine than that which the country offers to the representatives of Empire newspapers who hold their fourth Conference and celebrate the twenty-first birthday of their common organization, the Empire Press Union, from to-morrow throughout the month of June. Whatever the achievement of this Imperial year, its chief instrument, whether in what goes before or in what must come after the Conference of Governments, must and will be the Press. It is for the leaders of trade and industry, the administrators and the statesmen in all the Empire countries, to correlate their plans and to draft a practicable programme ; but only the Press can provide for that reciprocity of opinion and action which is, in the last analysis, the Commonwealth itself.

The Special Number published as part of our issue to-day will fulfil its purpose if it gives some impression of this work and this function of the newspaper in the Empire, and of the incredibly elaborate, accurate, and sensitive organization—the nerve-system, as it were, in the anatomy of the modern State—through which all the impulses of events and ideas are gathered and distributed. An imaginative study of the special map of Empire communications which is a conspicuous feature of the Number will discover some of the reasons why it is possible to think and speak with more confidence than ever of an Oceanic Commonwealth. It will disclose how, "out of many moderate "varieties and brotherly dissimilitudes that are "not vastly disproportional," a common civilization is enabled to maintain itself against every handicap of discontinuity. A whole series of articles fills in the details and supplies the historical perspective necessarily lacking to the map itself. Various writers, skilled for their task, describe the means—some new, some old, and all in process of continual improvement—by which news is collected, distributed, and presented. And, since a description of the mechanism of newspaper life would still leave life itself unaccounted for, it is supplemented in its turn by a sketch of the enterprise which gave the little communities of early settlers oversea their first newspapers and by a reminder of some characteristic exploits by famous correspondents, who allowed no physical difficulty or danger to prevent either their extraction of news or its transmission by the speediest means that ingenuity and courage could contrive.

The various features of this background group themselves naturally round the central organization of the Empire Press and the Conference which it has summoned. The enterprise and inventions which have established an Empire Press have made its Union possible and even necessary. Considering for how long newspapers have enjoyed the facilities of the telegraph and the submarine cable, and how close an interchange they have encouraged, it is almost surprising that the Union was not founded more than 21 years ago. If an institution which could bring together the newspapers of the Empire had not existed by this time, it would certainly have been necessary to invent it, partly for the sake of the newspapers themselves, but still more for the sake of the Empire. In this respect the history of the Union and the Conference is instructive. They began with a good deal of emphasis upon their purpose of promoting newspaper interests, a natural and lawful occasion for combination. But that was quickly submerged in the larger aim, and it is not too much to say that the Empire Press has established its common institutions in order to fit the Press itself the better for its function in and duty to the Commonwealth. What began partly as a trade organization has become a forum in which men in intimate and responsible touch with public opinion may meet to exchange ideas and experience, to consider and to press upon their Governments measures to secure the cheaper and swifter circulation of Empire news within the Empire, and to collect from the centres in which successively they meet, and from each other, first-hand intelligence of all that affects the common good. It is a most fortunate event that this year and this country should have been chosen for the present Conference. Never, certainly, in the economic history of the Empire have there been times which threw a heavier responsibility upon its journalists or offered larger opportunities to those who by constructive comment and elucidation can share the tasks of statesmanship ; and nowhere, perhaps, at this moment is there a better vantage-point for a view of Imperial interests than Britain, heavily but indomitably engaged in both hemispheres and at home. This country's part in the constitutional growth of the Empire has mainly been one of encouragement and assent. In the new era of economic articulation it will share with its equals the duty of initiative and contrivance. Britain has a new part to play. The time and the place chosen thus happen to be peculiarly informative, and what they have to tell will probably not be lost upon keen and practised observers of the public mind. If so, the Conference too will leave its impress on the changing times, for none doubts either its will or its power in all that may advance the well-being of its component nations.

Ten Years of Mandates

The working of the mandatory system during the ten years of its existence was reviewed on Thursday by LORD LUGARD, who is of course the Englishman best qualified to give an expert opinion upon it, and who early next month will again be attending a meeting of the Mandates Commission in Geneva. His verdict was definitely favourable. Though he had at first been sceptical, experience has taught him, he said, that the system had been effective for its immediate purpose, and had also had a beneficial influence upon Colonial policy in general. This view will be endorsed by impartial observers who have followed its working closely, and more especially in regard to the "B" and "C" class mandates in Africa. It is natural that the "A" class mandates—Palestine, Syria, and Iraq—should be those that attract the widest attention, for, being the most advanced of the mandated territories, they are the nearest to complete independence, and their government involves difficulties and problems of common interest to instructed opinion all over the world. The attainment of full sovereignty by Iraq has indeed been officially foreshadowed already. Strictly speaking the Arab kingdom is not a mandated territory at all, but an ally of Great Britain, who has by treaty undertaken to see that the obligations of a mandatory are observed there ; and in that way its affairs still come under the supervision of the League Council through the medium of the Mandates Commission.

In the more backward territories, relinquished by Germany after the War, the mandatory system is undoubtedly having the most beneficial effects. By it the principle of exploitation in the sole interests of the possessing Power has been definitely superseded by that of trusteeship, which it is the pride of the British Empire to have created and upheld in its Colonial administration, and which in these post-War days has received international sanction. The mandatory has the absolute right to raise revenues or troops, to make laws and enforce them, and to appoint all the necessary officials ; but the difference from annexation, even in the "C" class mandates, is explicit, inasmuch as the mandatory is obliged to render an annual account of its stewardship. It has definitely assumed obligations to the League as well as to the indigenous population ; and the supervision of the Mandates Commission constitutes a fundamental distinction from the pre-War custom, in similar cases, of mere downright annexation. The Mandates Commission has of course no executive authority. It derives its influence nominally from the Council, to which it is responsible, but really, and most of all, from such support as it may receive from public opinion. Regret is sometimes expressed that most of its sessions are held in private ; but consideration and discussion of the various reports gain thereby in frankness, and full minutes of the proceedings are always subsequently published and made available to all. Moreover the Commission can, and does, receive petitions and complaints direct from the local populations, which are forwarded to the mandatory concerned for comment before being examined. This annual examination does thus invite a popular verdict upon the manner in which a public trust has been fulfilled ; publicity is here, as in so many other of the League's activities, the most potent deterrent to malpractices. The Mandates Commission has itself before now reacted to public criticism, notably on an occasion when its inquisitiveness seemed to be more officious than useful ; but its right to general supervision of the work of the mandatory States, its power to focus the opinion of the civilized world, and the moderation and courage with which it has on the whole exercised its sometimes delicate functions, have given it a notably useful place among post-War institutions.

Radium and the Hospitals

At the annual meeting of King Edward's Hospital Fund for London the PRINCE OF WALES announced that the Fund is now the owner of ten grammes of radium. This supply stands apart from that in the custody of the National Radium Trust, but happily an understanding has been reached between the two bodies. The King's Fund will lend radium to hospitals and institutions in London, while the National Radium Commission will lend it outside of London. Further, the two bodies will work in consultation whenever desirable, and it has been agreed that the scientific records of each shall be in the same form. The importance of this last provision cannot be exaggerated because the future of treatment by radium depends on the acquisition of a body of knowledge about its effects on tissue both normal and malignant and about the ways in which it ought to be used. Great differences in the responses of tumours have been observed, and many of these are of a most puzzling character. In some instances the tumour melts away ; in others it shows a high degree of resistance. Again, the primary tumour may behave differently under treatment by radium from its metastases. Exact information about these differences can only be obtained if some guiding principle directs the minds and methods of physicians, surgeons, and radiologists. More important still, controlled observation is necessary if the reasons underlying the differences are to be elucidated. There can be little room for doubt that an important step forward will have been taken when this knowledge is won.

The PRINCE OF WALES, in discussing the supply of radium, paid a warm tribute to the voluntary spirit which has been so largely instrumental in securing it. "Our people," he said, "value the voluntary hospitals to the tune of "£2,700,000 a year in voluntary gifts in London "alone." This generous enthusiasm is the guarantee that the evolution of the hospital system, which is now in progress, will not result in any loss of efficiency or in any restriction of usefulness. The King's Fund has already helped the hospitals to create a representative body for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the Local Government Act relating to them. The new body is called the London Voluntary Hospitals Committee. Its function is to cooperate with the London County Council in securing that the hospital service in London, composed in part of the voluntary hospitals and in part of what used to be called the Poor Law infirmaries, shall be the best which can be attained. In this field, as in the field of radium therapy, cooperation between voluntary institutions and official bodies is likely to yield results in every way better than any which could have been obtained by official bodies working alone.

A Public-Spirited Gesture

According to the announcement made yesterday by our Parliamentary Correspondent, the Parliamentary Committee of the London County Council have come to a momentous conclusion with regard to the Charing Cross Bridge scheme. It is understood, he wrote, that at their meeting on Thursday the Committee decided to report to the Council in due course that in their view no further action should be taken on the Bill this Session, but that the whole question should be thoroughly examined by the appropriate officials and committees of the Council to see whether the project can be brought forward again, possibly in a revised form, next Session. At present, as MR. MORRISON has explained, the Council can, if they think fit, ask that a motion for the recommittal of the Bill should be brought before the House, in which case they have his assurance that the Government, while leaving the matter to a free vote, would advise members to support the motion.

The suggestion of the Committee is that they should waive the right thus placed in their hands. The adoption, or rejection, of this advice must depend, of course, on a vote of the full Council, though it seems unlikely that it would have been tendered unless the Committee had reason to believe that it would be considered acceptable. In any case it is certain that, if the Council do decide to act upon it, they will deserve and receive the thanks of a very large section of the community, and especially of all those who have thought it their duty to oppose the Bill in its present form. Only one thing more could possibly be asked of them, and that is that if they resolve to follow the course recommended by their Committee—the thorough exploration of the whole question—they should take the further step of considering the desirability of inviting selected representatives of all the interests concerned to enter into consultation with their own officials. The gesture of the Council's Parliamentary Committee is in keeping with the dignity and public-spirited service of the great body which they represent. It points the way to the only possible means by which the problem can be settled on a satisfactory basis—the friendly cooperation of all the best minds that London can bring to bear on its solution.

Sports for Seaside Towns

The watering-places of Great Britain frequently complain that motor-cars are hitting them very hard. Gone are the good Victorian times when families were families and came in full strength and stayed a fortnight. To-day the glum faces of landladies peering through the curtained panes see little beyond motorists. Instead of the welcome ring at the bell they hear only the ungentlemanly hoot of automobiles seeking once again the London road. The asphalt for the promenade, the strong groins that divide the beach, the notice-boards pointing out unsuspected dangers or explaining what good behaviour at the seaside should be—all have to be paid for by the residents and all are enjoyed by people who come by car, bringing their food in bags and bottles, and depart without leaving any pennies behind them, except those which the more reckless and profuse have adventured in the automatic slots. Bags and bottles they may leave, but seaside towns, however carefully they collect them, cannot support themselves on either, nor on tins. Suggestions have been invited how to make motorists pay. The obvious device of toll-gates has been rejected because watering-places are in keen competition with one another, and a town with a toll would only lose the few benefits that motorists confer, of which the chief is the appearance of populousness and lively enjoyment which they give to otherwise bare seafronts. The plan of hiring boys to puncture tires and empty petrol cans is attractive to some minds, but not to the type of mind that secures election to a Municipal Council in these islands. If city walls were built or rebuilt it might be feasible to close the exits suddenly towards nightfall ; but so many motorists are not above sleeping in their cars, and in any case an angry motorist is a formidable fellow whose knock few landladies would care to answer late at night. Kindness and not force must be used. Something must be provided besides the sea of a character so fascinating that time will slip past and the motorists will find not only that it is very late but that they want to settle in a place which offers such delights.

Of the entertainments that might be devised the cheapest and liveliest would seem to be races, since all men, but particularly motorists, enjoy them. If hints are needed they are found in plenty across the Atlantic. Perhaps the pursuit of wild geese by aeroplanes, a new sport in Manitoba, is ill-suited to most English watering-places ; but the humblest resort can profit by the race which has just been run from Texas to New York, one competitor riding a bull and the other competitor driving a goat and a jackass and conceding thirty days' start. That is on the heroic scale suited to a large continent still in its early vigour. But there is no reason why, just because other towns have secured the bulk of the horseracing, our seaside resorts should not let their imaginations sweep beyond donkeys and goat carriages, and increase their attractions by bold and varied experiments in testing the athletic capacities of other animals. Roman gladiatorial contests derived much of their interest from the clash of different weapons, net and fork against sword and shield, and the Corporation that displays most ingenuity in arranging its cats and pigs, and perhaps more exotic beasts, in entertaining rivalry, will not only attract the motorists but keep them for many days, till their last shilling has vanished in foolish but irresistible bets and they need the loan of a tin of petrol to prevent their becoming a lasting charge upon the enterprising town.

RATING OF PLAYING FIELDS

MR. GREENWOOD'S ACTION

CRICKET CLUBS' GRIEVANCE

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—As the humble individual who initiated the preliminary movement on behalf of this cricket association—subsequently, by instructions of my council, the matter was handed over to the National Playing Fields Association—may I say a few words on the deplorable action of the Minister of Health in killing the Playing Fields (Exemption from Rating) Bill, and his unfortunate speech as reported in Parliamentary debates ?

It was only after receiving evidence from our affiliated clubs of the crushing increase of local rates consequent upon the quinquennial valuations that it was felt essential that, on behalf of amateur cricket and sport, my council must take some action to safeguard the future existence of so many of their clubs. Hundreds of resolutions in favour of the Bill and protesting strongly against the iniquitous increases of local ratings on their grounds were forwarded to the Prime Minister, the Minister of Health, and other members of Parliament.

Thousands of these amateur sports clubs, taking not a single penny in "gate" money, live solely on the subscription revenue paid by their members, which in individual amount must necessarily be limited. You cannot accept more members than are able to get playing service on the private sports ground ; otherwise numerous members would receive no playing facilities at all, and they would not pay a subscription for non-service.

In recent years rentals have appreciably advanced, though many good landlords who are keen sportsmen have refused to take anything like the fullest advantage of the full economic value of their land. Subscriptions have been raised until they can be raised no further, and everything is more costly nowadays to the struggling cricket and amateur sports club possessed of a private ground. Unless, then, there is some substantial relief from this crushing local rating, there can only be one course to follow—namely, the dissolution of thousands of amateur sports clubs throughout the country. Thus tens of thousands of working men, boys, women, and girls will be deprived of their legitimate recreational facilities which now form an integral part of their happiness and lives.

Let me give just two concrete illustrations out of hundreds of cases brought to my attention by clubs in connexion with this higher local rating. They happen to be two of our clubs affiliated. A is a club recently reassessed from £37 per annum to £745 per annum. B is a club reassessed from £98 per annum to £600 per annum. These two clubs have not one single penny of revenue coming in from any other source than their necessarily restricted memberships. What are they to do ? The only other course open is to dissolve and let these two fine "lungs" go for building.

Mr. Arthur Greenwood, the Minister of Health, suggested that this Bill was meant only for the wealthy clubs. In the first instance, as one who has had over 40 years' experience of amateur sport, I have never yet come across an amateur sports club, run strictly on the "non-gate" lines, that was wealthy or had even a decent bank balance at the close of a working season. More often than not there have been serious deficits made good by the more affluent senior members of the club. Tens of thousands of our amateur sports clubs in the country just struggle along on a bare existence ; and the members consist of the working people of the country, not wealthy citizens, as Mr. Greenwood so erroneously suggests.

The fact must be stated. As the private sports ground disappears in a district, so the local authority must be and will be called upon to replace such lost "lung" by the establishment of a fresh recreation ground. That can only mean fresh expense to the local ratepayers. The citizens of this country, men, women, boys, and girls, insistently demand reasonable sport recreational facilities. It is the primary duty of the local authority to satisfy that demand. So, Sir, every private sports ground that now exists means less demand from the local citizens for more public recreation grounds. Moreover, all public recreation grounds and village greens are derated : so why should not the private sports grounds, taking no "gate," come under similar treatment ?

I wonder whether it is within the knowledge of Mr. Arthur Greenwood, as it is within the knowledge of my council, that there remains only one private sports ground within the northern part of the County of London under the control of the L.C.C. ? Thus is London gradually losing its open playing fields still in private occupation by amateur sports clubs.

The general rank and file of the House were in favour of the Bill passing into law. It was a non-party measure and accepted by all three political sections of the House as desirable and essential ; yet thousands of working people are likely to suffer by the callous and unsympathetic attitude of the Minister of Health.

Yours truly,
E. A. C. THOMSON, Secretary.

FIRST FLORENTINE EDITION OF DANTE

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—I was amazed to read the letter of Dr. Paget Toynbee in The Times to-day. It is based on an entire misconception. So far from there being a steep falling off in the price of the 1481 edition of the "Divina Commedia," the contrary is the fact. The Carmichael copy which sold for £1,000 at Sotheby's in 1903 would fetch to-day possibly three times as much, and the Huth copy, also sold at Sotheby's in 1912, for the "record price" of £1,800, would show a rise of at least double.

Would good taste allow it, I should like to add that if Dr. Toynbee were in a position to offer a corresponding copy, I am willing to back up my statement by paying the price I maintain to be its present value.

The copy which sold for £180 at Sotheby's the other day (in the Lord Vernon sale in 1918 it realized £31) was an imperfect copy in poor condition, having only two plates instead of the full 19. And the chief value of the book lies in these illustrations done by Botticelli.

Yours faithfully,
GABRIEL WELLS.

WALKERS IN SWITZERLAND

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES

Sir,—In a letter from myself two years ago, addressed from Switzerland, generously published in The Times, I drew attention to the fact that there is in fact a great deal more walking in Switzerland than ever before in its history. These walking tours are now conceived perhaps on bolder lines than in earlier years, but of course the development of railways and the motor postal service enables the pedestrian to have a flying start.

The records of the Alpine huts give proofs of the enormously increased numbers of walkers. A large proportion of them do not engage in more serious Alpine ascents, but cross the high passes from one valley to another. Most of these folk, of all nationalities, are youngsters, and they carry ice-axes, partly because the alpenstock is not so efficient in crossing snowfields or a glacier, but also because the possession of an ice-axe produces that proper pride which promotes a desire for its more effective use.

Yours faithfully,
GRAHAM S. HUTCHISON, Lieut.-Col.

THE LATE LORD DAVIDSON

LAST TRIBUTE AT CANTERBURY

A STATELY FUNERAL SERVICE

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT)

CANTERBURY, MAY 30

Archbishop Lord Davidson of Lambeth, Primate of All England from 1903 until his retirement in 1928, was buried at Canterbury Cathedral this afternoon. His grave is in the Cloister Garth, a mellow plot of turf which just now is thickly sown with daisies between its few dim headstones. Here, after a stately service in the Choir of the Cathedral, the last leave-takings were very simply uttered, in the presence only of the clergy, the Archbishop's family, and the civic representatives of Canterbury.

The outstanding feature of the service to-day was the wide representation of the Church. The Anglican Communion throughout the world was represented. Besides the Archbishops of Canterbury and York and Bishops of English Sees, there were Bishops from many and remote parts of the world—Athabasca, North China, Lagos, Pretoria, New Guinea, and Polynesia. The whole Church paid homage to one who during his Primacy did much to link the Mother Church of Canterbury with religious work abroad. The catholicity of that work was also shown in the representation of other Churches, including the Free Churches of England, the Church of Scotland, the American Episcopal Church, and the Greek Church.

The citizens of Canterbury were reminded early this morning of the day's solemn event by the ringing of the Cathedral bell, which is heard on a change of Sovereign and the passing of an Archbishop. Its ringing preceded the Celebration of Holy Communion in the Chapel of Our Lady Undercroft in the Crypt, where the body of the late Archbishop had rested throughout the night, watched by the Cathedral clergy and others. The Celebrant was the Archbishop of Canterbury, who was assisted by the Dean and Chapter. The coffin was afterwards removed to the Presbytery in the Cathedral to await the final part of the Burial Service. There, covered with the Cathedral pall, it was placed on a bier on the upper platform leading to the steps of the High Altar. Resting against the coffin was the cross given to the late Archbishop by the last Lambeth Conference. The Sanctuary was fragrant with the perfume of flowers. Wreaths surrounded the bier at its base. Arum lilies adorned the steps leading to the High Altar and flowers had been placed on the tomb of every Archbishop buried in the Cathedral.

PROCESSION OF CLERGY

The last seat in the Nave and all the standing-room behind had been filled for some time before the clergy entered in procession from the Cloisters. Between silent rows of mourners they passed slowly to their places, as a choir in the rood screen sang softly : "I am the Resurrection and the Life, saith the Lord," and "I know that my Redeemer liveth." Before the clergy came the bedesmen with their wands and the bearer of the great Cathedral cross of silver. There were students of St. Augustine's College, the King's Scholars, the Minor Canons, the Six-Preachers, whose office is peculiar to Canterbury Cathedral, the Honorary Canons and Rural Deans, and behind all these the concourse of Bishops and the Archbishop of York. The Archbishop of Canterbury walked with the Dean, the late Archbishop's chaplains and the Canons Residentiary preceding him, and his own chaplains following.

With the exception of the places reserved for members of the procession, the seats in the Choir also were filled long before the beginning of the service. Lady Davidson and members of her family, who were the chief mourners, were in the Presbytery near the coffin, and the opposite side of the Presbytery was allotted to the late Archbishop's chaplains. The Bishop of Chichester, a former chaplain to Dr. Davidson, was an outstanding figure. Throughout the service he stood by the side of the coffin holding the cross presented to the late Archbishop by the Lambeth Conference, which had previously rested against the bier. More than 60 Bishops were present. As the Archbishop of Canterbury entered his Throne the Bishops walked through the Presbytery, forming a line on each side of the bier, and then took their places in the Sanctuary by the side of the High Altar.

The first hymn was "Bless'd are the pure in heart," which was followed by the 90th Psalm, "Lord, Thou hast been our refuge." After the lesson from the Burial Service had been read by the Dean, the congregation joined the choir in singing the hymn "Now thank we all our God," sung with the fervour that marked the congregational singing throughout the service.

ARCHBISHOP'S ADDRESS

At the end of the hymn the Archbishop of Canterbury gave a short address from his Throne.

He described the day as one not of mourning, but of praise, and continued :—"It is the desire of those who most loved our dear father and brother now departed that the uttermost thought of him should be the thankfulness and praise expressed in the hymn which we have sung together, 'Now thank we all our God.' We must indeed have sorrow, to some of us a sorrow too deep for words, that we shall not see his face again—that face so kindly and so strong—nor hear again that voice which so often spoke to us words of counsel, sympathy, and cheer, of hope and trust in God. But when we think of him as he was, and still more as he is, our sorrow is turned into joy." The Archbishop told how, the previous night, as he saw the bier standing in stillness in the Chapel of Our Lady Undercroft, he thought of Edward, the Black Prince, laying, as it might have been, his sword before the altar after returning in thankfulness from his valiant service across the sea. "Then I saw," he continued, "that it was not a sword, but a cross which was lying upon that altar, the cross of the old Archbishop—the cross which was the symbol of the rule which he once wielded in the Church, a rule so wise and strong, of the burden of his manifold care, borne with such patient fortitude, of the faith which was the very centre of his life." There was one other word, the Archbishop added, which must be spoken. It was not his only ; it came from the heart of that great assembly to her who for more than 50 years was his companion. They offered to her the homage of their deep and affectionate sympathy.

The anthem by Gounod, "Send out Thy light and Thy truth," immediately followed the address, and prayers were then said by the Bishop of Dover.

The service in the choir ended, and while the congregation sang "Jerusalem the golden," the procession was re-formed. It left the choir in the same order as before, except that the coffin was now borne behind the Primate, the late Archbishop's family following the bier, and behind them again his chaplains and the civic leaders of the Cathedral city. Seen from the Great West Door, through which it was to pass, the procession first disclosed itself as a tiny cluster of figures robed in black and white—the vanguard, as it were—at the head of the tall steps joining choir and nave. The dun columns in the nave reflected a soft, natural light from the open doorway, but in the distance, beyond and above the heads of those small figures, were lamps like golden stars. They shed a suffused glow upon the farthest heights of the choir above the rood screen. The procession seemed to trickle almost imperceptibly down the steps into the nave. When it was all in motion it stretched so far that long after the leading ranks had passed through the Great West Door there were others still minutely visible on the threshold of the choir. But for the furred and brilliant gowns of the civic representatives, it was a procession robed almost entirely in black and crisp white linen, with just a gleam of colour here and there—from a hood of crimson or scarlet or an occasional purple skull-cap—to add a subdued richness to the scene. Sprays of lilies-of-the-valley graced the pall upon the coffin.

The procession wound round the north-west corner of the Cathedral, in the sight of a crowd of men and women outside, for whom this was a first and last glimpse of the funeral service, and into the Cloister Garth. In these last few minutes rain had begun to fall, at first gently, but quickening, and turning to heavy drops when the mourners had assembled round the deep grave, with its lining of moss and purple flowers. The massive tracery of every archway of the cloisters framed two or three surpliced figures during the short committal by the Archbishop of Canterbury, who stood in the midst of a throng of mourners by the grave.

The Precentor said the words beginning: "Man that is born of woman hath but a short time to live." The rain pattered in a crackling undercurrent, and the scattering of earth upon the coffin could not be heard above it. Then, very clearly, came the Archbishop's words: "Forasmuch as it hath pleased Almighty God of His great mercy to take unto Himself the soul of our dear brother here departed. . . ." The choir sang: "I heard a voice from heaven, saying unto me, Write," the Archbishop pronounced his blessing with uplifted fingers, and after the Nunc Dimittis the mourners broke into a farewell hymn from the shelter of the cloisters.

The officiating clergy, in addition to the Archbishop of Canterbury, were the Dean (Dr. H. R. L. Sheppard), the Bishop of Dover (Dr. J. V. Macmillan), the vice-Dean (Canon Bickersteth), and the precentor (the Rev. L. E. Meredith). Among those taking part in the procession were the Archbishop of York, the Archbishop of the West Indies, the Bishops of London, Winchester, Birmingham, Ely, Gloucester, Guildford, Hereford, Lichfield, Newcastle, Portsmouth, Rochester, St. Albans, St. Edmundsbury and Ipswich, Salisbury, Sheffield, Southwark, Buckingham, Croydon, Kingston, and Southampton; the Bishops of Uganda, Lagos, New Guinea, Grafton, and Pretoria, the Bishop in North China, the Bishop on the Upper Nile, the Bishops of Kimberley, Polynesia, Gibraltar, Mauritius, Nassau, Waikato, New Guinea, and Masasi, Bishops Palmer, Knight, Eden, Gill, Bidwell, Hamilton Baynes, King, Watkin Williams, Southwell, Eyre Chatterton, the Assistant Bishop of Lagos, the Moderator of the Church of Scotland, the Bishop of Tennessee, the Archimandrite Constantinides, Bishop Nicolai, the Rev. ## MEMORIAL SERVICES

ST. PAUL'S CATHEDRAL

The opening sentences of the Burial Office were sung to Croft's setting, and the hymns were "Bless'd are the pure in heart" and "Jerusalem the golden." The Contakion of the Faithful Departed (Kieff melody) was sung by the choir at the close. The Dean said the prayers at the Altar, and the Blessing was given by the Bishop of Kensington. # Obituary

MR. FRANK COWPER

A NOTED CRUISING YACHTSMAN

Cruising yachtsmen will learn with regret of the death, on May 28, at well over 81, of Frank Cowper, at St. Cross Hospital, near Winchester, where for some years he had lived as a Brother.

"Cruising" is shown in Who's Who as Cowper's recreation; but it may almost be reckoned his life's work. For though he wrote, and illustrated, many books, it is as a seaman that his friends and admirers will remember him; as a lover of small sailing-craft, which he handled, often alone for weeks together, with the fearless caution of one to whom nothing at sea can come as a surprise.

He was born and was chiefly educated in London; and if he had not been able to find his element as an amateur, he would certainly have run away to sea. Of the various sailing-craft he owned, perhaps his favourite was Lady Harvey, a heavy 30-tonner which he made nothing of handling single-handed, feeling his way as he went, in waters little known to yachtsmen. His last book, just published, though unfortunately too late for him to read the reviews, is "The Vagaries of Lady Harvey, the Meanderings of a Freak among the Orkneys and Elsewhere." Sailing men have reason to be grateful to him, especially for the five volumes of his "Sailing Tours," and for his "Yachting and Cruising for Amateurs," which became classics. It might be said of him that he would confidently have sailed round the world alone, if he had wanted to; but he never tired of working his way round the coasts of England and Scotland and France.

After a life rich in varied experience, much roving, and freedom, Cowper found old age in the restricted peace of St. Cross little to his mind; though, even when he could not move out of his room, he had many resources of reading, writing, and friendship. But to the end his heart was at sea; so that perhaps he enjoyed as much as anything the eager attention and advice he gave to the rising generation of sailing yachtsmen, particularly those who visited him from Winchester College and Oxford University. Less than a year before his death he prepared drawings and inquired as to the cost of building a sailing-craft in which he planned, in his 82nd year, to slip away for a last cruise. When he realized that he was not likely to recover, almost unexpectedly for so gallant and restless a spirit, he accepted the end as "natural" and "as it should be."

In these days of disproportionate publicity and adulation of paltry physical feats, Cowper suffered increasingly from a sense that his own remarkable achievements had not been sufficiently recognized; and, feeling that St. Cross was somehow a symbol of his disappointment of various hopes, he could not bring himself to enjoy the grace and antiquity of those surroundings, which in a happier mood would have delighted his keen sense of beauty and history. He had in him the makings of a scholarly artist; and spent much time in drawing and designing. It will be remembered that one of his six children, Mr. Frank Cadogan Cowper, A.R.A., R.W.S., has achieved fame as a painter. In old age Frank Cowper did not lose the alert expression and steady eye of the old-style sailor; and his short beard, small stature, and hawk-like profile seemed to recall an earlier age, or perhaps a recurring type, of English seamanship.

M. TIVADAR NACHEZ

M. Tivadar Nachez, who died at Lausanne on Thursday, after a long illness, was well known in London as a solo violinist of high standing from 1899, when he settled in London, till his retirement in 1926, when he appeared for the last time with M. Thibaud in the autumn of that year.

His name is better known now for its frequent appearances on concert programmes as an editor of old classical violin music, notably the concertos of Vivaldi and Nardini. He had also to his credit a number of original compositions, many of which are violin solos based on Hungarian melodies, a string quartet published in 1923, and three violin concertos, of which the last, dedicated to his friend Thibaud, bears the opus number 42. It was played at a Bournemouth festival a few years ago, and showed fluency and effectiveness, but not any very great originality of thought. A requiem Mass and some songs, however, remove him from the category of violinist-composers who write exhibition pieces.

Nachez was born at Budapest on May 1, 1859, the son of a Hungarian soldier who distinguished himself in the revolution of 1849. His first teacher was Sabathiel, the leader of the orchestra at the Opera. At the age of 16 he won a travelling scholarship and went first to Berlin, where he studied with Joachim, and then to Paris, where he concluded his technical studies with Léonard. At Richter's invitation he played in the orchestra at the foundation of the Bayreuth Theatre. He made his first solo appearances in Germany and in England in 1881, playing here at the Crystal Palace concerts. His first appearance at a Philharmonic concert was in 1886, and at an English festival at Norwich in 1896. After he came to live in London he played regularly at London concerts, and frequently by command before Queen Victoria and King Edward VII.

CHANCELLOR ELWES

The Rev. Edward Leighton Elwes, Chancellor of Chichester Cathedral and formerly Archdeacon of Chichester, died at Glebe House, Bramshott, yesterday in his 82nd year. The son of Mr. J. M. Elwes, D.L., of Bossington House, Hants, he was born on October 8, 1848, and was educated at Eton and University College, Oxford, where he took honours in Theology. Ordained in 1872 to the curacy of Ashington, Sussex, he removed in 1873 to Norton St. Philip, Bath, and in 1875 he was appointed vice-principal of Wells Theological College and curate of Dinder. While there he married Emily Fownes, daughter of Mr. J. C. Somerville, D.L., of Dinder House. From 1879 to 1887 he was vicar of Over Stowey, and rector of Woolbeding from 1895 to 1923. He was rural dean of Midhurst from 1896 to 1909 and again from 1915 to 1921. In 1903 Bishop E. R. Wilberforce appointed him Archdeacon of Chichester, and he was examining chaplain to Bishop C. J. Ridgeway from 1908 to 1919. In 1914 he resigned the archdeaconry and was appointed by Bishop Ridgeway Chancellor of the Cathedral.

MR. H. H. VIVIAN

Mr. Henry Harvey Vivian, formerly M.P. for Birkenhead and the Totnes Division, who died yesterday at Crouch End-hill, N., was a trade unionist who was classed as a Liberal. He devoted himself to the copartnership movement, especially in housing.

Born in 1869, almost within sight of Dartmoor, Vivian learnt the trade of a carpenter, and became an active trade union organizer, serving as president of the Pimlico Society of Carpenters and Joiners. A strike and lock-out in 1890 turned his mind to cooperation, and he became secretary of the Labour Copartnership Association. Some years later he started Ealing Tenants, Limited, a pioneer society in the development of garden villages and suburbs. He was pressed to institute similar societies, and in 1907 he founded Co-partnership Tenants, Limited, which developed estates at Hampstead, Birmingham, Wolverhampton, Manchester, Letchworth, and other places. The late Lord Grey, when Governor-General of Canada, invited him to visit the Dominion, where he started a movement which produced remarkable results. In 1906 he won a seat at Birkenhead, the Unionist vote being divided, but was defeated in December, 1910. In 1923 he returned to the House as member for the Totnes Division, losing the seat, however, in 1924. In Parliament he did good service in committee on the Small Holdings, Housing and Town-Planning, and Development Bills, and also on the Royal Commission on Canals and Waterways.

The funeral will be at Golders Green on Tuesday at 11 o'clock.

Lieutenant-Commander Harry Ebenezer Kent, R.N., retired, died at Plymouth on May 23 in his 73rd year. Entering on the lower deck, he was promoted to warrant rank as gunner in October, 1884, and was commissioned as lieutenant in August, 1909. In the following year he was placed in charge of the torpedo range at Devonport, and he retired in 1912, on reaching the age limit of 55. Two years later, when the War broke out, he volunteered for service, and was appointed to the battleship Jupiter. In April, 1915, he was transferred to command the Conflance, one of the tenders to the Defiance, torpedo school, in which he served until after the Armistice.

Lord Wakefield was presented with the honorary freedom of Hythe last evening. The scroll was placed in a silver casket in the shape of a chest taken from a ship of the Spanish Armada and now in Hythe Church. Its plinth was of oak from a beam in the old belfry at Hythe.

LORD RUSSELL AND INDIA

"GENERAL ASSENT" NEEDED FOR CHANGES

The annual dinner of past and present European residents in the Bombay Presidency was held at the Hotel Victoria, Northumberland-avenue, last night, under the chairmanship of Sir Malcolm Hogg, formerly a representative of the commercial community on the India Council.

The CHAIRMAN said it was to be regretted that the Briton whose work to-day was in the Presidency was subjected to an atmosphere of suspicion, hostility, misrepresentation and opposition, which was happily unknown to those who left Bombay years ago. A tribute of admiration, respect and gratitude to the British community in the Presidency, and indeed throughout India, was due for the way in which they had responded to the call of these days, and had maintained the reputation of our race for infinite patience, unwavering courage, and devotion to duty. Deprecating the carping criticism to which the Viceroy had been subjected in certain sections of the British Press, Sir Malcolm Hogg said that Lord Irwin continued to enjoy a remarkable measure of confidence in India. There was no man in our public life to-day better fitted by his character, his qualities and his high purpose than was Lord Irwin to steer a right course and bring the ship of British policy in India into smoother waters.

EARL RUSSELL, Under-Secretary for India, said that it was not inappropriate at the present moment to recall that British rule had given India the blessings of civilization. The desire of Indians for an increasing share in their own government was laudable in itself, and one with which we in this country would find it difficult not to sympathise. But some of them might wonder whether murderous attacks upon police or destructive riots were the best method of expressing a capacity for self-government, particularly when there stood open to all shades of opinion in India the opportunity of coming to a Round Table Conference to consider in perfect freedom any suggestions that might be made by Indian representatives, in the hope that they might as a beginning arrive at some agreement among themselves. We were offering to India a very definite step in advance; but for such steps to be successful they must have the assent and good will of the population of India—and that meant not merely the Hindu, but the Mohamedan, the Sikh, and the depressed classes; for it had always been our boast that we tried to treat all people equally, and no new form of government could be stable which was not founded on general assent.

All present would join him in hoping that, in spite of the unfortunate turbulence which had disfigured some portions of India in the last few weeks, the unique opportunity now offered to India would be taken full advantage of, and that no racial animosities, no real or imagined dislike of British government, and no false pride would prevent every patriotic Indian from doing his best to make the coming Conference a lasting success. Patriotism had often taken strange forms, but the strangest form of all was that which refused to try and help your country in any way merely because you were prevented from having entirely your own way. An appeal made to Indians to help in new developments ought not to fall upon deaf ears, and ought not to be rejected before it had even been discussed. (Cheers.)

The company included:—

Lord Lloyd, Lord Lamington, the High Commissioner for India, Sir Leslie Wilson, Sir Amberson Marten and his successor-designate as Chief Justice of Bombay (Mr. J. W. Beaumont, K.C.), Sir Arthur Hirtzel, Sir Campbell Rhodes, Sir Walter Willson, Sir William Sheppard, Sir Stanley Reed, Sir Montagu Turner, Sir Charles Armstrong, Sir Robert Dunlop, Sir Thomas Birkett, Sir Reginald Mant, Sir Harry Lindsay, Sir Hugh Murray, Sir Thomas Strangman, Sir George Carmichael, Sir Arthur Froom, Sir Patrick Kelly, Sir Robert Holland, Sir Charles Fawcett, Sir John Wallinger, Major-General H. ## NEW HELMETS FOR LONDON POLICE

Within the next few days the police in the Metropolitan area will be wearing their new summer helmets. These, in addition to giving their wearers a smarter appearance, will provide greater comfort, being 1½oz. lighter than those at present in use. They will resemble the helmets now worn by the City police, but will not have the ridge running from the crown down the back. A slight bulge in front will give the new helmets a fuller appearance. The cloth covering instead of being divided up into six panels, will be in only two pieces, with a seam running from front to back. A heavier helmet of similar design will be issued for the winter.

MINISTER OF HEALTH AND DIRECT LABOUR

Mr. Arthur Greenwood, Minister of Health, has intimated to the East Ham Town Council that he cannot depart from the policy of sanctioning the acceptance of lowest tenders in awarding municipal contracts. The council had applied for a loan of £38,377 for the extension of the local isolation hospital, to be carried out by direct labour. The time to be taken was two years. On the other hand, the council had refused to accept the lowest tender, one of £35,797, the contractor having guaranteed to complete the work in nine months. The Ministry, in their letter, say that they are prepared to grant a loan if the lowest tender is accepted by the council.

NEWSPAPER AMALGAMATION IN SOUTH WALES

An official announcement was made last night that "owing to the high cost of production imposed by existing and protracted competition," the South Wales Evening Express, Cardiff, will be amalgamated with the South Wales Echo as from to-day. Both papers are owned by the Western Mail, Limited, which acquired the South Wales Daily News and its evening publication the South Wales Echo two years ago. The Evening Express was published from the offices of the Western Mail and has been in existence for over 40 years.

Mr. W. F. Caves, secretary of the Wholesale Textile Association, stated yesterday that his organization had recommended members to open their warehouses on the Saturday before Whitsun.

A presentation of a silver box suitably inscribed was made to Sir Richard Glazebrook by the president and council on behalf of the society to commemorate the twenty-first anniversary of the founding of the advisory committee for aeronautics—Sir Richard Glazebrook having been chairman of that committee since its foundation in 1909. Lieutenant-Colonel J. T. C. Moore-Brabazon was also presented with a small gift from the president and fellow-members of council inscribed "To commemorate the twenty-first anniversary of his flight on the 2nd of May, 1909—the first flight in a power-driven aeroplane piloted by a British subject in the British Isles." At the lecture which preceded the dinner the Silver Medal of the Royal Aeronautical Society was presented to Mr. F. H. Royce for his conspicuous work in the design and development of aircraft engines and, in particular, of the engine in the Supermarine "S.VI.," which was victorious in the Schneider Trophy Contest.

The following were present at dinner:—

HEAVEN

SEEING THE INVISIBLE

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT)

It is easy to reject the pictures of heaven derived from sources long anterior to Christianity and adopted, though with important modifications, by its adherents. The fact that they have so long maintained their hold on the imaginations of men, and are still treasured by not a few devout people, shows that they represent something of real moral and spiritual worth. We may no longer think of heaven as a region of glory above the skies, but that is no reason why we should conclude that heaven has no reality, or that man hereafter shall have no consciousness of life in conditions which ensure perfect happiness. We are not the less persuaded of the reality of heaven because we are content to say:—

Eye hath not seen nor ear heard,
Neither hath entered into the heart of man,
The things that God hath prepared for them that love Him.

In declaring its belief in the Ascension into heaven the Church affirms Christ's triumph and His supreme lordship in the eternal realities of the supernatural world. His entrance into heaven after His life, death, and resurrection is the crowning act by which not only was His ministry declared and proved to be the work of perfect righteousness, but He Himself attained an eternal and universal sovereignty. The Ascension reveals the nature of true kingship, showing how it is won by sacrifice and exercised in ministry to those who are subject to it. Thus it calls the Christian at once to rejoice in the victory of Christ, to a devout worship of Him who is revealed as Lord, and to a confident hope of everlasting life and a willing obedience to His commands as Lord of heaven and earth.

The triumph of the Ascended Lord is not merely for Himself. His people participate in it. They, too, will enter into the glory which He has won for them. We may find many reasons for the reserve generally observed in present-day references to heaven. Our preachers comparatively seldom speak of it, and when they do it is more frequently than not in vague, if not in apologetic, terms. In the past men have confused the symbol for the reality, but that is no reason why in recognizing their mistake we should abandon the latter. Here, no doubt, we see the results of reaction. The hope of heaven has been a constant inspiration to the highest nobility of endeavour, self-sacrificing service, and fidelity in trouble. If we refrain from trying to describe its conditions we may none the less rejoice in the hope of glory. The Lord Himself found succour in that hope, and the servant need not be afraid to welcome it in the confident fulfilment of the promise: "Where I am, there, also, shall my servant be."

Heaven is something more than the object of future hope, the bourne of happiness to be enjoyed hereafter. The Ascended Lord now directs, assists, protects and blesses His servants on earth wherever their lot may be cast. The earliest instance of the experience which justifies this faith is described in the history of St. Stephen, the first Christian martyr. Arraigned before his accusers he made his defence, and, we are told, being met with a storm of passionate hate he looked up steadfastly into heaven, and saw the Ascended Lord standing at the right hand of God. We need not press what is obviously symbolic language, but we find here a record of an experience shared by devout Christians of all ages, in the consciousness that He who is the Ascended Lord cares for His servants, and from heaven, which is His dwelling place, He encourages them with the assurances of His protection. They know that in His company defeat can never overwhelm them. It is enough if, even when all earthly help fails, like St. Paul they can say:—"The Lord stood by me."

The reader of the New Testament will recall many passages in which men are bidden not merely to reflect on the realities of heaven but to give them a place in the things of this world. Christians must lay up for themselves treasure in heaven, set their affections on things above, and cheer themselves with the thought of their fellowship with the multitudes of the redeemed who now share heaven's glory. Other-worldliness has become the term of reproach, and not without reason. Not seldom devout men have been so occupied with thoughts of heaven that they have neglected obvious duties on earth. Absorbed with the care for their own souls or the souls of their fellows they have forgotten the needs of men in this world and the claims of social duty. Our danger to-day does not lie in this direction. The modern Christian runs little risk of an excessive concern about the joys of heaven or the fears of hell, nor is he likely to be so absorbed in the care of his soul that he will neglect the claims of business or social duty. On the contrary we are so immersed in the things which are seen and temporal that we too rarely stay to consider the things that are unseen and eternal. The Ascension recalls us to this higher view of life, presenting us with the patterns of things in the heavens by which we may shape the circumstances of life according to the Will of God.

Belief in the reality of the Ascension makes the commonplace things of this world radiant with the light of heaven. In this belief Francis Thompson in the hour of his utmost poverty, a destitute on the Embankment, could thus express his confident faith:—

But (when so sad thou canst not sadder)
Cry;—and upon thy so sore loss
Shall shine the traffic of Jacob's ladder
Pitched betwixt Heaven and Charing Cross.
Yea, in the night, my Soul, my daughter,
Cry,—clinging Heaven by the hems;
And lo, Christ walking on the water
Not of Gennesareth, but Thames!

Heaven's light shines in the darkness, and the darkness cannot overcome it.

ANGLO-PERSIAN OIL DIVIDEND

JOHANNESBURG LOAN

Net profits amounting to £5,206,762 were earned last year by the Anglo-Persian Oil Company. This result is easily the best so far achieved. The previous highest figure was £4,635,000 earned in the 12 months ended March 31, 1927. The last issued report covering the nine months to December 31, 1928, showed a profit for that period of £2,833,000, equal to £3,777,000 for a full year. As will be seen from the table below, the Ordinary shareholders are to receive 20 per cent., of which 5 per cent. has already been paid as an interim dividend. This compares with a dividend at the rate of 12½ per cent. for the previous accounting period of nine months:

| | Year 1929 | Nine months to Dec. 31, 1928 | Year to March 31, 1928 |

* Subject to Excess Profits Duty.

The undistributed balance of profit has enabled a liberal sum to be added to the company's working resources. While the "carry forward" is reduced from £1,204,000 to £687,000, the appropriations to reserve amount to as much as £1,800,000. A year ago the company set aside to reserves a sum of £600,000 in respect of nine months, or at the rate of £800,000 per annum. It will thus be seen that the reserves this time receive a sum larger by £1,000,000 than the equivalent set aside previously. The difference of £567,000 between the sum brought into 1929 and that carried forward at the end of 1928 is due to the further payments that have been made in respect of the now defunct Excess Profits Duty, and it is worth noting that the company has now extinguished its liability on that account.

Causes of Increased Profit

There are doubtless several reasons for the substantial increase in the company's revenue. It is known that the management have spared no pains to obtain increased efficiency in both the technical and general administrative departments of its business, and, aided by the co-operative movement that has taken shape between the great world oil marketing organizations, the company has probably effected considerable economies in its working expenditure. Another factor which has contributed to the improved results is the greater stability of oil prices that was secured last year.

The Johannesburg Issue

It is now possible to state that arrangements for the City of Johannesburg loan, mention of which was made a few days ago, have been completed, and the prospectus will be published on Monday. The issue amounts to £1,000,000 in Five per Cent. Inscribed stock, 1950-60, and the price of issue will be 97½. Instalments will be payable as to 5 per cent. on application, 22½ per cent. on June 12, 35 per cent. on July 18, and 35 per cent. on August 22. Interest will be payable on April 1 and October 1, the first payment due on October 1 next being £1. It is eight years since Johannesburg borrowed on the London market, the issue in 1922 being for £1,000,000 in Five-and-a-Half per Cent. stock, 1937-52, which was sold at par. Two subsequent loans, each of £1,000,000, made in 1925 and 1928, were placed locally.

Lower Treasury Bill Rate

In spite of the fact that the amount of Treasury Bills offered for tender yesterday, £45,000,000, was £15,000,000 greater than the maturing bills, the demand for them was so keen that the average worked out to only £2 2s. 0.65d. per cent., compared with £2 3s. 5.74d. per cent. in the previous week. The strong demand for the bills—tenders amounted to £54,260,000, against £48,275,000 for the £35,000,000 of Treasury Bills offered last week—was, of course, due to the prospect of abundant supplies of money in the coming week owing to the disbursement of the half-yearly dividend on the Five per Cent. War Loan. This payment will, as usual, necessitate the temporary creation of credit through borrowing by the Treasury on Ways and Means advances, but inasmuch as the market has sold practically the whole of its early June maturities much of the surplus cash thus created will quickly disappear as payment is made for the large amount of Treasury Bills allotted yesterday. Further, the process will be continued in the succeeding week, for the amount of Treasury Bills offered for tender next Friday has been increased to £40,000,000, which compares with maturities for only £26,760,000 in that week. The whole of the £45,000,000 of Treasury Bills offered yesterday was allotted, tenders at £99 9s. 4d. for bills dated any working day next week except Saturday receiving about 86 per cent., above in full, and for bills dated Saturday at £99 9s. 6d. and above in full.

Rubber at a Low Level

The low price at which rubber has stood for some months past holds out the prospect of a lean year for producers. This is clearly shown by the estimate of a well-known Mincing-lane firm that with standard ribbed smoked sheet selling at 7d. a lb. the average selling price of the rubber produced is only about 6½d. a lb., and that at that price not more than about 15 per cent. of the estates can show a profit. One of the chief factors serving to depress the market for the commodity is the high level to which stocks have risen, the total London and Liverpool stocks being now in excess of 100,000 tons. These large supplies naturally make it difficult to look for firmer conditions in the market for the commodity, but there are nevertheless indications that stocks should not go on increasing at the rate witnessed in recent months. The effect of the May tapping holiday should be reflected in smaller shipments from the East during the next two months, while the course of shipments during the first three months of the year would certainly seem to show that the low price has already begun to affect shipments. For January the shipments were 52,535 tons, for February 48,947 tons, for March 47,320 tons, and for April 43,813 tons. Thus they have persistently declined during this period.

American Consumption

Another market authority has pointed out that, although American consumption for the first four months of the year showed a reduction of 31,331 tons, that for April was the largest monthly consumption for the period. Further, it is suggested that the figures of American gasoline consumption also indicate a big car mileage, and therefore the prospect of large rubber requirements. Another factor to be borne in mind is that last year's rubber shipments from the East were swollen by a part of the surplus stock stored during restriction, while the high degree of productivity of Malayan trees after years of restriction should diminish as time goes on. Perhaps the best hope for rubber producers lies in the fact that now all possibility of a return to the old pioneering prices has gone there will be a permanent stimulus to the wider use of rubber for manufacture. The balance between consumption and production which will eventually be reached will probably prove to be the result of both lessened production on the one hand and a larger consumption on the other.

Future of the Witwatersrand

Though the great prosperity enjoyed by the Witwatersrand goldmining industry for a number of years and the persistent increase in output have served to keep in the background the inevitable gradual contraction of the industry and the problem which this must present to South Africa, the comments of Mr. R. Sothern Holland on the subject should serve to bring it into greater prominence. Speaking at the general meeting of the Central Mining and Investment Corporation, he stated that on his recent visit to South Africa he had been disturbed to find what little thought or concern was being given to this problem. Mr. Holland suggested that the fact that the prosperity of the Union was founded on its goldmines had tended to become obscured by the development of manufacturing and other activities, but he added that these had grown up in order to satisfy demands created largely by the mines themselves. Therefore any contraction in the activities of the Rand must react on the economic welfare of the Union as a whole. After showing that the belief that the mining of platinum would expand so rapidly as largely to take the place of a diminishing gold industry was ill-founded, he dwelt on the beneficial effect of a reduction in costs in the goldmines in view of the immense tonnages of low grade ore available. It would have the effect of lengthening the lives of all the mines, rich or poor, and he urged that by the sacrifice on the part of the Government of some revenue to-day, by a modification of the colour-bar restrictions, and by other measures to be sought for by those in authority in collaboration with the responsible leaders of the industry, it should be possible to bring about a reduction of working costs to an extent that would ensure the incorporation of the large bodies of low-grade ore into the region of payability. Most authorities agree that the output of the Rand is probably near its maximum, and there is, therefore, good reason for a reconsideration by all the interested parties of this vital question of costs.

Analysis of Insurance Accounts

An analysis has now been issued by a firm of Liverpool stockbrokers of the results last year of 17 leading British insurance companies conducting a general business throughout the world. The total premiums, excluding those of the life departments, amounted to £106,635,047, and the net result, after allowing for unexpired risks and taxation, was an addition to the resources of £3,343,630, being 3.1 per cent. of the premium income. In the cases of eight companies these earnings included substantial profits from the life departments. There are shown the amounts to which the underwriting profits of 11 companies were drawn upon for the payment of the dividends, while in six instances the interest receipts actually exceeded the cost of the dividends. This does not mean that the dividends were independent of the underwriting experience, since interest would have been earned on the proportions of the premium incomes not expended on claims at once, including the part set aside at the end of the year to meet unexpired liability which, especially in the case of marine underwriting, extends for several years after the acceptance of the risks.

The Depression in Shipping

In his presidential address at the annual meeting of the Baltic and International Maritime Conference at Copenhagen yesterday, Mr. W. A. Souter declared that during his 34 years of experience of shipping he had never known a depression of such intensity and widespread scope as the present. In previous bad periods the conference has considered schemes for the systematized laying-up of shipping, but yesterday the president declared that no organized scheme could deal with such a volume of tonnage as that now laid up voluntarily and by force of circumstances. The idle shipping was represented by 800 vessels, of 4,500,000 tons deadweight. In addition, there is the waste of earning capacity through the large amount of idle space in ships which are being maintained in regular liner services.

Elimination of Inefficient Tonnage

Mr. Souter suggested that the soundest method of dealing with the situation would be by the elimination of old and inefficient tonnage such as that exceeding 25 years old. That step would, he contended, be in line with modern procedure adopted by other industries, and would be of great advantage to both the shipping and shipbuilding industries. He suggested that it could only be carried out on an international basis, and that it was difficult, if not impossible, for the shipping trade to tackle the problem because of the entirely disproportionate amounts of obsolete tonnage owned by the different maritime nations, and that it would seem that if there was to be any definite action it should be taken by the shipbuilding industry and on an international basis. The British shipbuilding industry has already taken in hand the question of rationalization. The scrapping of obsolete tonnage would, of course, benefit the shipbuilding industry, but the idea that shipbuilders should undertake the financial responsibility for disposing of old tonnage seems novel and curious. One of the redeeming features in the outlook for shipbuilding is that, as was pointed out yesterday, the great advance in economy of form and means of propulsion in naval architecture and marine engineering has made possible the construction of vessels which could be worked much more economically than the older types. The full benefits of replacement cannot, however, be secured so long as the old ships are sold to foreign owners, and are continued in service in competition with new vessels built at high cost.

STOCK EXCHANGE

DULL MARKETS

CABLES AND WIRELESS LOWER

The stock markets yesterday closed the Account with a dull tone. British Funds were firm and the new London County Council scrip were strong, but falls were the general rule in most other markets. Peruvian Corporation stocks were again a weak feature in the foreign market, and Japanese scrip also lost further ground. Home railway stocks fell away, and there was no recovery in South American railway securities. In the oil market Anglo-Persian were weak, owing to the disclosure of a "bull" account, and other oil shares also declined. In the miscellaneous market Cables and Wireless stocks were flat, the "B" falling below 20. Textile shares were lower in a number of cases. Rhodesian copper shares weakened, Congo Border suffering from profit-taking.

Old Consols were depressed and fell to 56⅛, but the tendency for BRITISH FUNDS as a whole was firm. Four per Cent. Consols, of which the market appeared to be short, closed ⅛ higher at 89, and the Four-and-a-Half per Cent. Conversion Loan advanced to 98⅛, changing hands at 98 13-16. The Five per Cent. War Loan was steady at 102 1-16. L.C.C. scrip was prominent; it touched ¼ premium, and the new Agricultural Mortgage Debenture closed at par bid, after being ¼ discount. HOME RAILWAY stocks weakened in the later dealings, and closed flat. The Ordinary stocks generally fell ¼ to ½.

In the FOREIGN market Peruvian Corporation stocks weakened further, but closed above the worst points. The Ordinary finished ¼ lower at 7⅞, and the Preference, after being 45¼-46, closed with a net loss of 1½ at 46; the Debenture stock fell to 92. Selling by stags depressed the new Japanese loan, which fell 3-16 to 1 1-16 premium, but there was support at the lower level. Brazilian bonds were firm as a whole, though San Paulo loans weakened, the new Seven per Cent. bonds falling to 1½ discount. The French Railway bonds again moved upwards. Argentine Railway securities were a little steadier, but Entre Rios and Argentine North Eastern weakened. United of Havana stocks lost further ground, and the market in them was very nominal. The Ordinary fell a point to about 13, while the Four-and-a-Half per Cent. tax-free Debentures were marked down 5 to 62-66, and the Four-and-Three-Quarter per Cent. Western Debenture 3 to 58-62.

FALL IN ANGLO-PERSIAN

Our shares were dull. Anglo-Persian opened at 4 9-16, but, following the announcement of the dividend, fell sharply, and were offered at 4¼, at which price they closed. Satisfaction was expressed with the figures, but the disclosure of a fairly large bull account at the carry-over weighed upon the market, and a number of shares were sold for cash. Burmah lost 1-16 sympathetically, and falls were marked in Royal Dutch, Lobitos, Trinidad Leaseholds, Mexican Eagle, and Attock.

The price of RUBBER rose ½d., but the shares were mostly easier. The market expects a fairly large increase to be disclosed in the London and Liverpool stocks of rubber on Monday, and does not look for the effects on stocks of the rubber tapping holiday to become apparent before the third week in June. TEA shares were steady.

In the MISCELLANEOUS market Cables and Wireless stocks were conspicuously weak. The "B" fell two points to 19, the "A" three to 45, and the Preference one to 91½. Textile shares were easier. Courtaulds closed with a small fall at 2½, having been offered at that figure on the Glanzstoff results. Celanese issues also weakened, British Celanese Ordinary falling 9d. to 13s. 6d. Small falls were shown by Coats, English Sewing Cotton, Calico Printers, and Bleachers, while Bradford Dyers were a shade firmer. With the New York market closed, Anglo-American securities were quiet. Brazilian Traction rose to 51½, and Hydro Electric strengthened to 49½. International Nickel was steady at 34½. Columbia Graphophone and Gramophone were both easier, the former at 5 23-32 and the latter at 4 13-16. Swedish Match were firmer at 16 1-16. United Molasses weakened further. Unilever shares lost further ground; the old shares fell to 3 1-32 and the new (15s. paid) to 11s. 9d. Turner and Newall recovered. Royal Mail closed two points down at 23½. In the motor group Austin again receded, but Rolls-Royce rose further and Rover was harder. Brewery shares were firm, Allsopp and Distillers both rising 6d. Guinness, however, were again easier. Harrods and Harrods (B.A.) both weakened. British Ropes fell to 3s.

Rhodesian shares were a weak feature in the MINING market. Congo Border suffered from profit-taking before the settlement and fell to 18 at one time, closing at 18½, a fall of ½ as compared with Thursday's price. N'Changa fell 3-32 to 3 19-32 after being 3¼, and Rhodesian Selection Trust finished 3-16 lower at 2. Bwana M'Kubwa declined to 16s. 6d. With the Johannesburg market again closed, South African shares remained very quiet. Tin was lower, but tin shares were firm on the whole. Among copper shares Rio Tinto, at 39½, lost ½.

RECOVERY IN SILVER

The prospect of very easy monetary conditions next week owing to the distribution on Monday of the half-yearly dividend on the Five per Cent. War Loan caused a decline in discount rates yesterday. The demand for bills was stimulated, while at the same time brokers were reluctant sellers. For the Treasury Bills tendered for yesterday a lower average rate—£2 2s. 0.65d. per cent.—was obtained, and the market's general buying rate for three months fine bank bills became 2½ per cent., with business occasionally reported at 1-32 under this figure. Some inquiry was reported from home banks for July bills at 2¼ per cent., and for August maturities at 2 1-16 per cent. The new Treasury Bills were offered at 2 1-16 per cent. In spite of the absence of Treasury Bill maturities, money was plentiful. During the morning fresh advances were obtainable at 1¼-2 per cent., while old loans carried at variable rates were usually renewed at 1½ per cent. In the afternoon balances were offered at 1½ per cent. Loans to the end of June were offered at 2 per cent., while business was reported in end-June bills at 1½ per cent. A recovery occurred in the China exchanges and in silver, but it was very small by comparison with the previous fall.

The Bank rate is 3 per cent., to which it was reduced from 3½ per cent. on May 1. The banks' deposit rate is 1 per cent. and the deposit rates of the discount houses are 1 per cent. at call and 1¼ per cent. at notice.

FOREIGN EXCHANGES

The New York exchange was slightly lower, closing at $4.85⅝, against $4.85 15/16. Dealings in this exchange were restricted in view of the New York market being closed. The discount on forward dollars was 3/32c. one month, and 1c. three months. At 123.93½, the French exchange showed a rise of ½c., while belgas were rather offered, the Belgian rate closing at 34.81½b., compared with 34.81½b. Italian lire were also cheaper, the Milan rate being quoted 92.75l., against 92.76l., and the Dutch exchange moved slightly in favour of London, closing at 12.08⅛fl. Swiss francs appreciated, but weakness was apparent in Spanish pesetas, the Madrid rate being finally 39.91½p., compared with 39.82p. The Batavia rate declined to 12.06½fl. A small recovery took place in the eastern silver exchanges, the Hong-kong rate being 1/16d. higher at 1s. 4 7/16d., and the Shanghai rate rising ⅛d. to 1s. 8¼d. A decline of ⅛d. occurred in the Buenos Aires rate.

(against 8.40d.). The company retains its interests in Kinta Kellas Rubber Estates and in Batu Kawan Rubber and Coconut Estates. # COMPANY MEETINGS

THE KASSALA COTTON COMPANY

EXTENSION OF CONCESSION AREA

AN EXCELLENT COTTON CROP

ENCOURAGING OUTLOOK

THE HON. A. M. ASQUITH'S SPEECH

The SEVENTH ORDINARY GENERAL MEETING of the members of the Kassala Cotton Company, Limited, was held yesterday at Winchester House, Old Broad-street, London, E.C.

The HON. ARTHUR M. ASQUITH, D.S.O. (the chairman), presided.

The SECRETARY (Mr. W. O. Simms) having read the notice convening the meeting and the report of the auditors,

The CHAIRMAN said:—Gentlemen,—Sir Frederick Eckstein is unable to be with us to-day. He has undergone two operations in the last three weeks, and his condition still gives cause for a good deal of anxiety. I am glad to be able to tell you that he is reported to be going on as well as can be expected in the circumstances. I spoke to you last year of the prominent part which he had taken in the formation of our company and in the guidance of its fortunes. Probably only his colleagues can appreciate how much the company owes to his help. You will, I am sure, wish to join the board in expressing to his family our deep sympathy with them in their prolonged anxiety and our warmest wishes for his rapid and complete recovery. (Hear, hear.)

I presume that you will agree to take the report and accounts as read. (Agreed.)

THE BALANCE-SHEET

In the balance-sheet you will see that during the year we redeemed and cancelled a further £19,800 of our Debentures, so that £58,500 in all had been redeemed up to December 31, 1929. The figure £4,770 7s. 7d. at the credit of Debenture redemption reserve account represents the difference between the nominal amount of such Debentures and the cost to the company of their purchase for redemption.

Under creditors the figure £12,716 19s. consists mainly of a provision for taxation, which we are advised is more than ample.

On the assets side of the balance-sheet the item "Balance of expenditure in respect of the concession in the Gash Delta" is reduced by the instalments received from the Sudan Government during the year, £14,346 10s.

The item "Expenditure in the Gezira" stands at £116,725 1s. 5d., as against £39,331 10s. 5d. last year. This increase of about £77,393 is accounted for by the completion of development, canalization, buildings, &c., on our original area of about 45,000 feddans; and partly by similar expenditure, still in progress, on our new additional area referred to in the report. The purchase of "heavy implements"—which means windlass cultivators—accounts for the sum of £23,350.

Additional capital expenditure in the Gezira in the year 1930 to complete the equipment of the new extension should be comparatively modest in amount.

The item "Debtors—Sudan, £41,685 11s. 3d." consists almost entirely of advances made to our tenant cultivators towards financing them in the cultivation of the cotton planted during the latter half of last year. These advances are recoverable out of the proceeds of the crop, the picking of which is now almost completed.

"Cash at bankers, on deposit and in hand" stands at £139,307 14s. 1d., as against £298,794 17s. 4d. This decrease of £159,487 3s. 3d. is accounted for by the expenditure and advances which I have dealt with, by tax payments, and by the excess of Debenture interest payments over the year's net revenue.

PROFIT AND LOSS ACCOUNT

Turning to the profit and loss account, you will see that our profit, before charging Debenture interest, amounted to only £2,568 this year, as against £13,098 in 1928.

Revenue, consisting of interest earnings and of commission received for selling the Government's cotton grown on the Gash Delta, was nearly £3,000 down. This was, of course, due to the reduction, through capital expenditure, of the funds in our hands.

General expenses, at £11,128, were £7,721 up, this being due to the inclusion of cultivation expenses up to December 31 last.

Our financial year ends on December 31. At that date half a season's cultivation expenses have been incurred, but scarcely any of our crop has been picked, and none of it has been marketed.

It will be more convenient to make our financial year coincide with the agricultural season, and we have therefore decided to make this change.

This means that in future our financial year will end on June 30 instead of on December 31, and that the next accounts which we shall present to you will cover the 18 months ending June 30, 1931.

I am advised that this will entail our formally holding our next annual general meeting within 15 months of the present date, and adjourning it to a date in the autumn by which accounts to June 30 should be ready for presentation.

I am glad to be able to add that again this year the Government have entrusted to us the selling of their Gash crop, which is an exceptionally big one.

The upshot of our accounts is that we came into the year 1929 with a carry-forward of about £62,281, and we went out of it with a carry-forward of about £37,920.

During the development of our new concession area we have had to maintain ourselves out of past profits and interest earnings. We have come out of this period much better than we had calculated that we should, but it is a great relief that in our next financial period we shall be enjoying the benefits of revenues derived from the cotton crop.

WORK OF THE YEAR

Now as to the year's work. I gave you last year some account of the work which had been done up to May last year in the development, canalization, levelling, ploughing, ridging, equipment, and allotment to tenants of our concession area.

The acreage of crops planted was as follows:—Cotton, 15,500 feddans; dura, 5,752 feddans; lubia, 9,706 feddans.

A feddan is practically the same as an acre.

In the planting season—July and August—there were abnormally heavy rains. As compared with other parts of the Gezira Plain, we were quite exceptionally favoured in the incidence of this rainfall, and our cotton did not suffer to any great extent.

The abnormally rainy planting season was followed by an exceptionally cold spell in December and January, but as the plants had not suffered much from the rains they were able to withstand the adverse effects of the cold weather, and a very satisfactory crop has resulted. The yield to date is 67,796 kantars, or 4.36 kantars per feddan, and there is still a little to pick. But for the exceptional cold we should have exceeded this very satisfactory figure. Our share of the proceeds of this crop will appear in the accounts for the next financial period.

During the year we have been engaged with the Sudan Government in expanding into a detailed concession agreement the heads of agreement under which we have been working. No serious difficulties have yet been encountered, and I hope that we may have an agreed document signed by both parties this year.

The staff provident fund, which I mentioned last year as being in contemplation, is now in being, its funds being held by trustees outside the company.

THE ADDITIONAL AREA

I would now call your attention to a very important paragraph in our report—I mean that which records the Government's agreement to an extension of our concession area by approximately 15,000 acres. This area is conveniently irrigated from the same main canals which serve our other blocks. The land is considered to be up to the general average of the irrigated areas of the Gezira Plain.

We are to receive 20 per cent. of the proceeds of the cotton crop grown on this additional area, the terms in this respect being identical with those obtaining on the greater part of the Sudan Plantations Syndicate's concession area.

With this addition our total area exceeds 60,000 feddans. Satisfactory progress has been made with the development and equipment of this extension, and we hope to plant in cotton this autumn 20,000 feddans, which is the maximum, or approximately the maximum, area possible under the system of a three-years' rotation.

You will appreciate how valuable an addition this is to our company's concession and how great an advantage it is to have this basis of a broader acreage to come and go on. I should like you also to appreciate that for this great improvement in our position we are indebted to the labours of our managing director, Mr. MacIntyre. (Cheers.)

To sum up. Under our original programme we were to have picked a crop from 5,000 feddans this season. Instead of this, we have picked a crop from over 15,000 feddans. (Cheers.) In a difficult year we have been lucky in obtaining a very good yield. A few small sales have been effected at satisfactory prices, but the marketing of the bulk of the crop is still ahead of us. Conditions in Lancashire and in the world generally are not such as to help those who have commodities to dispose of.

Among the more permanent factors in our fortunes we have the facts that our land has in practice proved itself to be exceptionally good and that with the extension of our concession area we have the basis of a broader acreage to come and go on.

TRIBUTE TO SUDAN GOVERNMENT AND COMPANY'S STAFF

Finally, I think you will wish to join the directors in thanking the officials of the administrative, irrigation, and railway services of the Sudan Government for their usual helpful cooperation in the common interests, and in congratulating Mr. Fleming, our manager, and his staff on their success with this their first crop in the Gezira. Mr. Fleming came to the Gezira with a small nucleus staff experienced in the very different conditions ruling in the Gash Delta. The rest of his personnel has been recruited over the last two years. To have produced these good results in their first year of cultivation—and that a year of exceptionally difficult conditions—is a great achievement, and Mr. Fleming would, I am sure, wish me to give a large share of the credit for these results to the senior officials of the Sudan Plantations Syndicate, whose help has always been freely given, and without whose help these results could not have been so quickly or so economically achieved.

In the accounts which are before you we have made no provision for any bonus to our staff. Out of the proceeds of our good crop, when realized, it is in our minds to set aside about £1,500 for this purpose. Our staff in the Sudan and in London have served us most conscientiously and well, and the climate of the Sudan is fairly severe. I feel sure that this recognition will meet with your approval. (Hear, hear.)

I now beg to move: "That the report of the directors and statement of accounts to December 31, 1929, now laid before the meeting, be and they are hereby received and adopted," and I will call upon Mr. Alexander MacIntyre to second the motion. (Cheers.)

STATEMENT BY MANAGING DIRECTOR

Mr. ALEXANDER MACINTYRE (managing director) said:—Gentlemen,—I think that our chairman has given you such a clear picture of the company's position that there is very little that I can add.

I was out in the Sudan during the winter months and spent a good deal of time on the company's concession. I was very pleased indeed with everything I saw, and with the good work which has been done by the manager and his staff.

I would like to endorse your chairman's statement as to the benefits which will accrue to the company by having the area extended. This will be of great value in keeping up the average returns in years of low yield and in years of low prices, and in normal years will add to revenue.

The company has had a very good cotton crop, and had the climatic conditions been more favourable it would have been a bumper crop.

When the present crop which has just been picked is sold, and if the average prices now ruling are maintained, I see no reason why the company, in its next financial year, should not be in a position to pay some dividend on the Preference and Ordinary shares, as well as earning Debenture interest. (Hear, hear.) I am sure that nothing would give our chairman greater pleasure than to be able to do this.

The company has had rather a "long row to hoe." Through no fault of its own it has had not only to carry out the development of the whole of the Gash Delta concession but also to start afresh and develop and bring to fruition our present concession in the Gezira. This has been done in record time, and without increasing the company's capital. Meanwhile Debenture interest has been paid regularly, and a substantial number of Debentures have been redeemed. This is no mean achievement and reflects the greatest credit on the ability of your chairman, General Asquith, and of his colleague Sir Frederick Eckstein, who, on this side, have given of their best at all times to make the company successful.

I have much pleasure in seconding the resolution proposed by the chairman. (Cheers.)

The resolution was carried unanimously.

Sir W. H. HIMBURY (the retiring director) was re-elected, and Messrs. Cooper Brothers and Co. were reappointed auditors of the company.

A cordial vote of thanks to the chairman concluded the proceedings.

ARGENTINE GRAIN MARKET

BUENOS AIRES, May 28.—Maize shipments have been retarded somewhat by the damp and foggy weather, but conditions are now much more favourable. Wheat closes with a steady tone, the ex-dock quotation remaining unchanged on the week at $10.50 per 100 kilos, while maize closes easy and 15c. down at $5.95. Oats are quiet but 5c. up at $4.35, and linseed is also 5c. dearer, closing steady at $19.30.

The week's shipments of wheat, consisting of 4,500qr. to London, 23,000 to U.K. ports other than London or Liverpool, 83,000 for orders, 101,000 to the Continent, and 46,000 to non-European ports, amounted to 257,500qr., compared with 207,000 a week ago and 441,500 during the corresponding week in 1929.

Maize clearances comprised 14,000qr. to London, 9,000 to the U.K. other than London or Liverpool, 60,000 for orders, 27,500 to the Continent, and 37,000 to non-Europe, the total, 147,500qr., comparing with 225,000 last week and 473,500 a year ago.

Of a total of 64,500qr. of oats cleared, 7,000 went to the U.K. and for orders, and the remainder to the Continent. Last week's total was 21,000 and that of a year ago 14,000qr.

Linseed shipments totalled 14,400 tons, against 11,100 the preceding week and 27,300 last year. Details show that 6,400 tons were to the U.K. and for orders, 6,000 to the Continent, and 2,000 to the U.S.A.

Stocks of wheat at 200,000 tons are 10,000 tons smaller, and those of maize at 150,000 tons are 5,000 tons larger than a week ago. Oats and linseed stocks are unaltered at 35,000 and 100,000 tons respectively.

CITY AND WEST END PROPERTIES

CONSERVATIVE VALUATION OF THE ASSETS

ANOTHER SUCCESSFUL YEAR

MANAGING DIRECTOR ON TAXATION INJUSTICES

The ORDINARY ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING of the City and West End Properties, Limited, was held yesterday at Bush Lane House, Cannon-street, London, E.C.

Mr. W. R. DAVIES, J.P. (the chairman of the company), presided.

The SECRETARY (Mr. H. P. Hoare) having read the notice convening the meeting and the report of the auditors,

The CHAIRMAN said:—Gentlemen,—The accounts we present to you to-day are in the new form consequent upon the resolutions passed on March 26 last year. The result is that the ordinary capital has been increased from £151,500 to £530,250—or 3½ times. This is the result of a careful and conservative valuation by our managing director, and it would no doubt have been possible to have obtained a higher valuation from outside experts if we had decided to do so.

The dividend recommended on this increased capital is 7½ per cent., free of tax, which equals 26¼ per cent. on the old capital, as against 24 per cent. paid last year. To arrive at this satisfactory dividend there has been no straining of profits, because we have added £30,000 to our reserves and the carry-forward is increased by some £1,600, a total of £31,600—approaching the amount of the ordinary dividend recommended of £39,700.

INCREASED NET PROFIT

The gross rentals, as you will see from the profit and loss account, are about the same. Expenses, due to increased rates and taxes, are higher, and the carry-forward to the net profit and loss account is £3,700 less. After placing the same amount to reserves as last year, and interest and dividends being £1,650 up, and having no expenses in connexion with the capital increase, we show a net increased profit of £2,700.

Turning to the balance-sheet, you will see that the reserves amounted in last year's balance-sheet to £288,500, and that this year they are £340,000, an increase of £51,500. When we are able to add another £30,000 to our reserves out of profits our reserve fund investments will equal the amount of our uncancelled Debenture stock. So that our properties of the value of £1,180,000 would be clear of encumbrance for the £822,000 of share capital if it were advisable to redeem our Debenture stock by realizing our investments. If from the £1,180,000, the value of our properties, we deduct the Preference capital of £292,000, there is left £888,000 as the property of the Ordinary shares £530,000, which is equal to 31s. 6d. per share.

I give these figures to show how conservative our managing director's valuation has been. (Hear, hear.)

There is one small item I should like to call attention to in the balance-sheet, and that is the furniture and fittings which have hitherto stood at the nominal figure of £500 and have been increased to £700. That, I think, is due to the very nice room in which we are meeting to-day. It has been decorated, as you can see, in very good taste. Seeing that we are saving the fees which we have had in the past to pay to Cannon Street Hotel for our meetings there I do not think you will consider that £200 an extravagant amount.

THE COMPANY'S INVESTMENTS

Investments outside our properties continue to increase, and now require a page to themselves. Nearly all are choice trustee securities, but a few are just outside that category. Personally, I should like to see our investments spread over a wide area with slightly increased risks, on the principle of the successful trust companies—in fact, that we may ultimately become as much a trust company as a property owning company. I may mention two examples of this. The River Plate Electricity Company started out for the holding of electricity securities, and they have spread their position to such an extent that they have become a first-class trust company. In the case of Bieckert's Brewery much the same thing is happening. They have divided their property into two—one the brewery and the other their trust investments—and they are, in fact, becoming very largely a trust company. That is a position that I hope our managing director will see his way to arrive at some day. Properties are excellent holdings, but the wider we spread our investments the safer and better.

I want to refer to a matter in the report which we feel sorry about, as I am sure you will be, and that is that Mr. Creer, owing to advancing years, has found it necessary to retire from the board. He was our chairman for a long period, and I succeeded him some few years ago. We hoped still to be able to have his services as a director for a long time further, but he found it necessary to retire, and we, as a board, very much regret losing his services.

A WARNING AND A SUGGESTION

I want to end with a note of warning and a suggestion. In all periods of depression and of improvement in trade owners of property are the last to be affected. This country is going through a period of almost unexampled depression, coupled with costs of social services and of taxation unexampled in the history of this or of any other country. This has been caused largely, as you know, by the enormous sums at present being distributed in doles to the unemployed, the number of whom has increased to the 1¼ million mark, and that at a period of the year when unemployment should be decreasing.

As property owners we have not yet felt the effects of the present depression, but that is a matter that will inevitably come upon us if this trade depression continues and is accentuated. We are already finding the demand for housing and office accommodation is not so keen as it was. Owing to the appalling direct taxation, people will not be able to afford to pay the rents they have been paying, and some reduction in rents and increase in unlets may follow.

THE IMPORTANCE OF "SAFEGUARDING."

Is there any remedy for this trade depression and its resulting unemployment? I answer yes, emphatically yes. We must protect—safeguard if you prefer the term—our own manufacturers, so that our home markets may be supplied by them and not by outsiders. This will enable them to reduce their costs, and so put them in a position to compete in the world's markets. My suggestion is that you should use your vote, and your influence on those with whom you come in contact, to support the only policy which can provide a remedy.

Gentlemen, I have taken the chair at many meetings over many years now, and this is the first time that I have ever touched on political matters. But this business which I have referred to touches your pockets as shareholders in this company, or it may do so, and I have thought it very important that it should be mentioned at our meeting to-day.

I now move:—"That the report of the directors produced, together with the annexed statement of the company's accounts at March 25, 1930, duly audited, be now received, approved and adopted." I will ask Mr. Podmore to second the resolution, and then I shall be pleased to hear any questions or any criticisms you may feel inclined to offer and will do my best to deal with them.

THE MANAGING DIRECTOR'S STATEMENT

Mr. J. H. PODMORE, in seconding the resolution, said:—The claim of the Revenue Department to assess the rents of office buildings as profits under Schedule D was defeated. The Judges were unanimous both in the Court of Appeal and in the House of Lords. Had the Crown won, great injustice would have resulted to property companies. The rules of Schedule D, made to apply to the profits of a trade or business, have no provision to deal fairly with the perishable assets of a property company. In our case, our properties being leasehold, the sum necessary to put aside to protect the capital is easily calculated by recognized tables, and is, in fact, shown in our accounts, but the rules of Schedule D ignore the obligation. Consequently we should have been liable to pay tax on capital charged as profit not one penny of which would be a "profit" under accountancy rules.

PROPERTY COMPANIES AND INDUSTRY

Property companies are a valuable assistance to a vital industry. Why try to damage their economic position? I fear, however, the business side is ignored in all cases where the Revenue Authorities make a claim. Mr. Houghton, of the Association of Officers of Taxes, recently said: "We have great difficulty in stimulating public interest in the Income-tax Department. The more efficient it is the more they dislike it." So long as the Department shuts its eyes to the facts and acts on such an utterly mistaken notion of what is complained of the "dislike" will increase. As individuals I like and admire "officers of taxes"; what I dislike, and what we fight against, is the blind persistence in demands which are contrary to the principle of an Income Tax Act, and the injury done by trying to read into words an interpretation which would justify a demand on something which in fact does not exist. We might have hoped some good would result from the severe criticisms of Judges in the High Courts which go direct to the point.

Take the Schedule A dispute with a sister company now down for appeal. It is an attempt by the Revenue Authorities to deprive poor-class hereditaments of the special provisions made in the Income Tax Act. For many years these low-rented flat properties have been assessed with the special allowances provided in the Act. The Revenue Department now discover words which might be used to deprive these properties of these allowances. The Commissioners say the Revenue Department is wrong: flats should have the special benefits necessary to secure equity between the poor and the better class flats. The Department, however, fights to upset the Commissioners' judgment. Is this Mr. Houghton's idea of "efficiency"? It may be, because efficiency is "power to produce results," and might apply to a successful fraud; but the word "efficiency" may mean potency where we look for "moral power" and the "ability to effect a purpose," and this is where the demand fails and the good intentions of officers of taxes turned from appreciation to dislike.

REVENUE AUTHORITIES AND THE METROPOLIS ACT

The Revenue Authorities have come to the conclusion that the Metropolis Act is detrimental to their interests and so find it easy to remedy the disability by new rules inserted in the Finance Bill now before Parliament. The poor rate reassessment of the Metropolis is a vast undertaking, costly in both time and money. The single valuation was intended to save time and money, and it was considered the benefits exceeded any disadvantage. It may be admitted that War conditions did in fact add to the disadvantages, but the 1930 revaluations will restore the original conditions, and the near future might easily reverse the position and add to the advantages. The amending Act, however, sweeps aside all the benefits of the old Act, and is based on problematical advantages; but why is there no new rule to do away with the injustice of depriving poor-class flats of the special protection intended by the Act?

Speaking of the Income Tax Act and the "efficiency" of the Department, a Judge in the High Courts said: "It is a crying scandal that legislation by which the subject is taxed should appear in the Statute-book in such utterly unintelligible form." Another said: "I do not think I have ever been called on to decide a more useless appeal," and then the Master of the Rolls, who goes very much the point, says: "It seems to me unreasonable to interpret words . . . and adopt an interpretation which offends against the basic principle of the Income Tax Act." The mistaken views of Mr. Houghton are repeated by the Paymaster-General, who, when called upon to answer the Judges' comments, said: "We do not appeal unless there is a very large sum of money involved"—a reply which ignores the real complaint.

"EFFICIENCY" IN INCOME-TAX LAW

What we want is "efficiency" to act in accordance with the principle of income-tax law, not an unbusinesslike method which would for the purpose of some casual gain create injustice and damage vital industries involving the welfare of the community. "The Officers of Taxes" are men qualified in experience and good will to earn the full appreciation of the community if only they were not forced to reply as one did to me: "I cannot listen to arguments of equity, I am bound by the rules of the Act," rules which, as a disgrace to the Department, are admittedly drafted "in words few people can understand." The Chancellor of the Exchequer said he could not understand why there was so much sympathy with people who would not pay their income-tax. He misses the point; the sympathy is given to those who are being forced to pay tax on something which does not exist, "efficiency" it may be called, but an act of injustice is contrary to the interests of the community and prejudices the position of officers of taxes.

There being no questions or comments, the resolution was then put to the meeting and carried unanimously.

The final dividend as recommended was approved, and the retiring directors—Mr. W. R. Davies and Captain A. C. Brooks—were unanimously re-elected.

The auditors having been reappointed, the proceedings closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman, directors, and staff.

FALL IN MARKET VALUES

DIVIDENDS MAINTAINED

The THIRTY-SEVENTH ORDINARY GENERAL MEETING of the Cape Asbestos Company, Limited, was held yesterday at Morley House, 26-30, Holborn-viaduct, E.C.

Mr. ROBERT WALKER, after expressing the board's deep regret at the death of Mr. L. Breitmeyer, who had been chairman of the company since its incorporation, said that the net profits for the past year amounted to £39,382, a result which, while well maintaining the average of the years 1926 and 1927, showed a decline of £12,828, compared with 1928. Trading conditions in 1929, however, had not been so favourable as those obtaining in the previous year. Prices had been on a lower level, and the asbestos industry, in common with most industries, had suffered severely from the slump in trade resulting from the financial crisis in America in the autumn, and the continued fall in prices which had been a feature of practically all commodity markets. Consequently, at the end of the year, they had had to make heavy provision for depreciation in the value of their stocks of white and amosite asbestos, and this accounted largely for the reduction in profits. He might mention that certain grades of these stocks had been depreciated by as much as 35 per cent. Fortunately, their stocks of blue crudes had not been affected in the same degree, the prices of these qualities having remained fairly stable. The sale of blue crudes and fibres, which constituted a fair percentage of the company's business, had been very well maintained. The sale of manufactured goods, however, had been affected by the increase in competition in all departments, and the insulation work in shipbuilding yards, for which their blue asbestos was especially suitable, showed a falling off. "Capasco" brake lining continued to find favour, but here again competition was keen.

RESULTS NOT UNSATISFACTORY

In view of the adverse conditions under which business had been carried on, he thought it would be agreed that the year's results were not unsatisfactory. The directors recommended a final dividend of 10 per cent. on each class of share, making, as for 1928, a total distribution for the year of 20 per cent. on the Preference shares and 15 per cent. on the Ordinary shares. No addition was made this year to the reserve fund, which now amounted to the substantial sum of £150,000, against the issued capital at the end of the year of £200,000.

With regard to the balance-sheet, the issued capital now stood at £250,000. The chief change on the assets side was the reduction of "cash at bankers, on deposit and current accounts" from £90,845 to £23,286, a considerable portion of which was due to the investment of nearly £25,000 in their subsidiary company, Egnep, Limited, and to the purchase of additional blue asbestos properties in South Africa at a cost of nearly £20,000.

The Turin factory continued to make highly satisfactory progress, its turnover for 1929 having broken all previous records. It would be observed that the dividend had been increased from 8 per cent. to 10 per cent. for 1929.

The company's blue asbestos mines had been fully occupied, but in the case of amosite it was necessary to slacken production towards the end of the year. Amosite was a fibre differing materially from the known grades of asbestos on the market. It was new to the industry, and it was to be expected therefore that it would take time to introduce and extend its use among manufacturers. Its uncommon length as compared with other grades of asbestos made it particularly adapted for certain types of insulation work, and the board felt confident that it had a distinct future.

As to the current year, they were satisfied with their trading in view of conditions prevailing at present. A portion of their business, being closely identified with shipbuilding, engineering, and allied enterprises, must naturally reflect the conditions prevailing in those industries. The outlook in this direction was not entirely free from difficulties, but the company, by reason of its financial and raw material resources, and by the quality of its products, was well placed to maintain its position and to participate in the benefits which must follow a revival in industry.

The report and accounts were unanimously adopted.

WHESSOE FOUNDRY AND ENGINEERING COMPANY

DIVIDEND OF 17½ PER CENT.

INCREASE IN OUTPUT AND TRADING PROFIT

STRONG FINANCIAL POSITION

The TENTH ANNUAL GENERAL MEETING of the Whessoe Foundry and Engineering Company, Limited, was held yesterday at 25, Victoria-street, London, S.W.

Mr. HAROLD G. JUDD presided.

The CHAIRMAN, in the course of his address, said:—The directors are glad to be able to submit accounts which again show a satisfactory result. The trading profit for the year is slightly higher than that of the previous year, but on this occasion we have written off out of profits buildings to the value of £981, which have been demolished in connexion with the reconstruction of the works, and the net profit available for division, £28,093, is accordingly slightly below that of the previous year.

LIQUID ASSETS OVER £200,000

The balance-sheet is in a somewhat different form from those of previous years, owing mainly to the provisions of the new Companies Act, and the opportunity has been taken to make it even more informative than before on other matters. It will be seen that the financial position of the company is very strong; the liquid assets, which are taken in on a conservative basis, amount to £203,089, while the liabilities are only £48,837.

I may mention incidentally that the investments, totalling £89,760, stand at a figure which is well below the present market value, and the investment in our subsidiary company also stands at a figure below its value.

A DECADE OF PROGRESS

It may be of interest to review the progress of the company during the 10 years of its existence as a public company. At the time of formation the works and fixed plant stood at £97,807. During the 10 years since, the works have been almost entirely reconstructed, enlarged and improved, the total capital expenditure during the period having amounted to £80,886. Against this we have written off by way of depreciation and demolition a total of £71,162, so that the present book value of £107,530 exceeds the original book value by only £9,723, although the works have been practically rebuilt and thoroughly modernized, their capacity almost doubled, and their efficiency greatly improved.

It may also interest you to know that during these 10 years dividends averaging over 14 per cent., less tax, have been paid to the shareholders, and in addition a reserve of £40,000 has been built up. These figures are, I think, a tribute to the energy and ability of our managing director, Mr. R. B. Hodgson, and his staff, and on your behalf I should like to congratulate and thank them for the splendid work which has brought about these satisfactory results.

Competition in the industry has been and still is most keen, and, in fact, tends to increase. It is therefore a matter of special gratification that we have been able to secure orders which have resulted in an output even higher than that of last year, and practically double that of any earlier year. The increased tonnage has enabled us to reduce our costs, so that most of the benefit has been passed on to our customers.

EXTENSION OF ACTIVITIES

The directors have kept steadily before them the desirability of extending not only the range of our manufactures, but the area of our markets. With this object our London director, Mr. Spielman, is now on a visit to South America, where he has already strengthened our touch with existing customers and made contacts with other sources of future business.

We are planning for Mr. Hodgson to make a similar visit to South Africa later in the year, and developments in other countries are under consideration.

While the immediate industrial outlook is none too bright, we have commenced the year with a fair order book and shall leave no stone unturned to maintain our position.

WELFARE OF THE EMPLOYEES

As indicated in previous reports, the welfare of our employees is a matter to which we have given a good deal of attention, and we are glad to acknowledge the esprit de corps which exists in a marked degree.

A few years ago we started contributing equally with the workmen to a works benevolent fund for the purpose of assisting necessitous cases. This was followed by a provident fund for the staff, established on a contributory basis. On the recreative side, tennis courts were laid down for the staff two years ago, and last year we assisted in organizing a sports club, with pavilion and playing-fields. We now propose to lay down a bowling green, and for this purpose we have set aside this year a sum of £1,000 out of profits realized on the sale of certain investments.

We feel sure that the shareholders will approve of these progressive steps in recognizing the loyal service of our employees and in promoting their comfort and welfare.

The Chairman concluded by moving the adoption of the report and accounts, and the declaration of a dividend of 17½ per cent., less income-tax.

This was seconded by Mr. H. CLAYTON and unanimously approved.

The retiring director, Mr. H. Clayton, was re-elected, and the auditors, Messrs. Peat, Marwick, Mitchell, and Co., were reappointed.

BOMBAY COTTON MARKET

BOMBAY, May 29.—There has been a moderate business in cotton, and the market closes steady, with fully good M.G. Broach, July-Aug. delivery, hedge contract, quoted at Rs.257. The picketing of the principal markets has been discontinued, but the piece-goods market has been closed for several days during the week owing to fresh disturbances. There is still no inquiry for foreign cotton goods, but there has been a fair demand for Indian, particularly bleached goods, and prices are in sellers' favour. In the imported yarn division there is a moderate demand for 30's grey yarn.

The exchange rates (three months sight credit) on London and Paris are unaltered to, the week at 1s. 6d. and 9f. 40c. respectively. The steamer freight for cotton to Liverpool is unchanged at 15s.

Receipts of cotton at Bombay during the week were 55,000 bales, bringing the total for the season since Sept. 1 last up to 3,173,000 bales, against 2,948,000 a year ago. Shipments (from Bombay) consisted of 2,000 bales to the U.K., 21,000 to the Continent, and 29,000 to Japan and China, while there are 11,000 bales afloat in harbour for Europe. From other Indian ports 15,000 bales were shipped to the Continent. Stocks are estimated at 1,286,000 bales, against 1,202,000 a year ago.
